Gov. Dewey Nominated on Third Ballot; Vote Unanimous After Others Withdraw

Soviet Bans Food, Milk Supplies for West Berlin

Clay Explains 'War' Statement, Saying U. S. Must Consider Germans

Berlin, June 24 (AP).—The Russians snapped off electricity, milk and food for western Berlin today but the American military governor declared they "cannot drive us out of Berlin by any action short of war."

[The New York Herald Tribune correspondent in Berlin said she spoke to General Clay by telephone late today. She said Clay declared his "war" statement was made off the record and was quoted out of context. She quoted Clay as saying, "If the Americans only were concerned, the Soviets could not drive us out of Berlin short of war, but there is, of course, the fate of the Germans to consider."]

The Soviet military administration declared tonight the Allied Kommandatura "has practically ceased to exist as a body for the administration of Berlin." The statement was an answer to a western proposal earlier this week to solve Berlin's currency crisis in the Kommandatura.

The statement by Marshal Vasaily D. Sokolovsky, Russian military governor, accused Berlin's city government (magistrat) of "openly following the policies of American occupation authorities."

"In view of this situation," Sokolovsky said, "the magistrat cannot be regarded as representative of the people's opinions."

Sokolovsky emphasized that the new western zone currency will not be permitted in the Soviet sector of Berlin or the Soviet zone of Germany.

Steel-helmeted United States soldiers in armored cars with mounted machine guns and rifle-carrying military police patrolled the American sector and gave the city its most war-like atmosphere since 1945.

British soldiers were dispatched to protect scrap metal stocks they said the Russians were trying to haul from the British sector, it was announced tonight. The British said they rejected a Russian demand to withdraw the soldiers.

The British countered the Soviet

Fast Police Action Saves Girl's Life 'As Power Fails

Quick action by Maryland State Police at Waterloo saved a 15-year-old polio victim when the iron lung in which she was encased ceased to function as Elkridge, Md., power went off.

The girl, Shirley Leppo, 5608 Washington blvd., Elkridge, has required the "iron lung" since she was stricken seven years ago.

When the power suddenly failed yesterday, her mother, Mrs. O. W. Leppo, frantically called the Potomac Electric Power Co. The phone line was down and she could not get through. In the meantime, Shirley was growing weaker steadily.

[redacted] telephone operator called police, who responded hour with a portable Soon the girl was easily again. The electric company later rigged a special line to service the "lung."

Western Powers Assailed Again

Russia and Satellites Urge Government for All Germany

London, June 24 (AP).—Russia and seven of her satellite nations called tonight for a four-power agreement on the formation of a "provisional democratic all-German government."

(A communique issued at Warsaw said the Eastern nations had decided on one more effort for four-power agreement on Germany.)

A long communique, broadcast by the Moscow Radio at the end of a two-day meeting in Warsaw of the Foreign Ministers of the eight nations, said Russia and her eastern bloc of states "consider as urgent" these steps:

1. Germany's demilitarization by four-power agreement.
2. The establishment of four-power control . . . over the Ruhr's heavy industry and prohibition of the restoration of Germany's war potential.
3. The creation by four-power agreement of a provisional democratic all-German government.
4. The conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany "in order to withdraw the occupation troops of all powers from Germany within one year after the conclusion of the peace treaty" in accordonce with the Potsdam agreements.

The eastern states also called for an "elaboration of the measures on the fulfillment by Germany of her reparation obligations toward the states which suffered from German aggression."

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov headed the Russian delegation at the Warsaw meeting. The other participating states were Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Poland, Romania and Hungary.

The communique, as broadcast by the Moscow Radio, said the recent six-power conference on the future of western Germany showed the western powers "are not interested in a speedy conclusion of a German peace treaty and a speedy withdrawal of occupation troops from Germany."

The London conference—attended by the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—drafted plans for eventual self-government for Germans of the three western occupation zones.

The communique charged the United States, Britain and France violated an agreement with Russia (Potsdam) by creating a separate currency for the three western zones of Germany.

The London conference, it said, was "aimed at the liquidation of the Council of Foreign Ministers as well as the liquidation of the

Truman Signs Bill for Draft Of Men 19-25

Measure Authorizes Record Peacetime Force of 2,176,883

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman signed the draft bill late yesterday, subjecting men aged 19 through 25 to 21 months of military service.

Aimed at bolstering America's armed forces as a warning to aggressors, the new law authorizes expansion of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force to a new peacetime high of 2,176,883 officers and men.

The President's action also stops the flood of enlistments in the National Guard and reserves by men seeking exemption from the draft.

An unprecedented rush of applicants this week shot the Guard over the authorized strength of 341,000 and put naval and Marine organized reserve units close to their manpower ceilings.

Can Begin in 90 Days

Under the draft act, inductions can begin 90 days after signature, unless the President declares a national emergency sooner. Meanwhile, the draft machinery can be set up and camps readied for the new men.

Officials estimate that some 900,000 men must be taken in by the armed forces during the fiscal year beginning July 1, to reach the new strength.

Volunteers and reenlistments are expected to fill up most of the billets, leaving about 225,000 men who must be drafted. More can be called, however, if volunteers do not come up to expectations.

All men aged 18 through 25, except members of the regular armed services, reservists on active duty and foreign diplomats and members of their families,

D. C. Ordered To Cut Costs In Every Way

Department Heads Told Expenses Must Be Slashed to Bone

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered all department heads to start planning at once for cutting down the cost of local government next year.

Expansion of present services and initiation of new services are absolutely out, the Commissioners warned. Instead, all municipal chiefs must "concentrate on improving administration to effect economies."

The commissioners are thinking about the District budget and expenditures for fiscal 1950, which begins July 1, 1949. But they want the preliminary information now on the minimums that departments will need in that year.

Order Issued

The economy order was issued by the commissioners in response to a warning by the Senate Committee on Appropriations, which approved a local budget of somewhat under 100 million dollars for fiscal 1949.

A "determined effort must be made" by the District Commissioners during 1949 to find ways of reducing expenditures in the fiscal year 1950.

"If District expenditures can not be brought within the limits of revenue in another year," the committee warned, "it will be necessary to seek increased property taxes in the District to cover part of a deficit that may be nine million dollars.

"The District can remain solvent this year only because it will sell all its securities and will obligate the $1,600,000 of unexpended balances."

The District Commissioners pointed out that to accomplish partially the suggestion of the Senate

Tel Aviv, June 24 (NYHT).—Israeli troops penetrated the headquarters stronghold of Irgun Zvai Leumi today and routed the rebel forces and their leaders.

There was no resistance as hundreds of Irgun troops scattered from their small enclave in southeastern Tel Aviv when the Israeli column of jeeps and armored cars approached at 4:30 p. m. and fired over the heads of the dissidents. Manham Beigen, Irgun leader, slipped out the rear of his headquarters and disappeared.

All of Tel Aviv was under control of the provisional government and arrests of Irgunists and their sympathizers spread through Haifa Nathanya and Rehovoth. More than 100 dissidents were reported under arrest.

The government received a vote of confidence today from the provisional legislative council. By a vote of 24 to 4, with five abstentions, the council, which represents all political parties in Israel, approved a resolution indorsing the government's action in the Irgun revolt.

The government position was further strengthened today when two cabinet ministers who resigned yesterday agreed to return to the administration. They were Rabbi I. L. Fishman, Minister of Religion, and Moshe Shapiro, Minister of Immigration.

[The Associated Press said heavy explosions were heard today south of Tel Aviv. It was reported the Israeli army is attacking Irgun strongholds near Abu Kebir.]

There were indications that irregular Arab forces were attempting to capitalize on the Jewish conflict. United Nations truce observers here were informed that 200 Arabs from the old liberation army of Fawzi el Kaukji attacked Jewish forces at Birwa in western Galilee this morning.

Coal Accord Ends Threat Of Walkout

Terms of Contract Agreed on by UMW And Operators, Says Facts Board Head

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

An agreement ending all danger of a work stoppage in the Nation's soft coal fields July 1 was reached last night, according to David E. Cole, chairman of President Truman's fact-finding committee.

The announcement came up at 6 p. m. after a short meeting by the presidential board with John L. Lewis and representatives of the mine owners.

"The board is gratified to announce that the United Mine Workers and the operators have come to an agreement on all important features of a contract for 1948," Cole told newsmen.

"They have assured us that completion of the contract is only a matter of detail."

The agreement, he added, has been approved by the operators of mines producing 460 million tons of America's 600 million-ton annual soft-coal production.

That means that both the Southern Coal Operators and the owners of the so-called "captive mines" have agreed to the terms.

Later this was confirmed by Harry M. Moses of the "captive mines" owned by the United States Steel Corp.

Moses declared that while "we were opposed to a general wage agreement and the attendant price advance that would be inevitable, we are aware of the realities of the situation.

"The contract has been negotiated by the commercial segments of the industry where we have always contended it should be.

"Despite our basic belief that the theory is wrong, we accept our minority role here, and reluctantly consent."

Cole said terms of the new agreement will be given out by Lewis and the operators.

"The board is not aware of the specific terms and conditions of the contract," he said. "The parties concerned will make their own announcement at their own convenience."

Cole added that a report to Philadelphia, June 24.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, is the Republican Party's 1948 nominee for President of the United States.

He was nominated tonight on the third ballot by the unanimous vote of the 1094 delegates to the twenty-fourth Republican National Convention.

Governor Dewey, also GOP standard-bearer in 1944, was the first Republican to be given a second nomination after defeat in an earlier presidential election.

The 46-year-old New Yorker won the great prize in Philadelphia's cauldron-like Municipal Auditorium at 8:50 tonight. Here eight years ago, he led in the early balloting only to have the nomination go to dark-horse Wendell Willkie.

Has Speech Ready

Twenty-five minutes after House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., permanent chairman of the convention, had proclaimed him the 1948 nominee and "the next President of the United States," Governor Dewey appeared before the convention.

So sure had he been that nomination would be his, that he had his speech of acceptance written long before the balloting was over.

He got his biggest cheer when he told the sweating, shirt-sleeved assemblage that he came to it "unfettered by a single obligation or promise to any living person"—an answer to the earlier cries of a "Dewey-Grundy" deal.

After Dewey's speech, the convention adjourned until 10:30 a. m. Friday, when a nominee for Vice President will be chosen.

Governor Dewey very nearly was nominated on the second ballot this afternoon. He was only 33 votes short of the necessary majority of 548 when the roll call ended.

He was only 33 votes short of the necessary majority of 548 at the end of the second ballot.

At this point, members of the stop-Dewey coalition made a desperate last-stand maneuver and

Heat Kills Two Before Storm Brings Relief

An electrical storm accompanied by a 58-mile-an-hour wind and rain at 6 p. m. yesterday broke a 95-degree heat wave that killed two.

The wind felled trees, toppled electric cables in some sectors and caused a power failure in Silver Spring. It also sent the temperature tumbling to 78 an hour later.

Two Washington men died from heart failure induced by the heat and more than a dozen others were treated for prostration as the city recorded its hottest June 24 since 1930.

Dead at Freedmen's Hospital were Jerry Wood, 39, of 1030 16th st. ne., who collapsed about 3 p. m. in the 2100 block of Georgia ave. nw., and Richard Day, 38, of 516 M st. se.

At Casualty Hospital, James Stephens, 40, of 524 23d pl. ne., was treated for heat prostration.

Dewey Urges 'Righteous' World Order

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 24.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York tonight accepted the Republican nomination for the Presidency with a call for a world order "founded upon justice and righteousness."

Governor Dewey told the huge audience of delegates and visitors to the 1948 Republican Convention that it was "with all humility" he accepted his second nomination by the Republican Party, an award that shattered precedent.

As the vigorous New York Governor triumphantly strode to the platform to accept the unanimous nomination, he was accompanied by his smiling wife, Frances Hutt Dewey.

In the visitors gallery his two young sons leaned eagerly forward to watch the proceedings.

The bands were playing "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here," as Dewey made his way to the speaker's platform for his formal notification by Permanent Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., that he was the unanimous choice of the 1948 Convention.

As soon as the Governor and Mrs. Dewey and their escort reached the platform, ushers rushed up with a big American Flag made of flowers—10 feet long and approximately 6 feet wide. It was quickly taken from the platform where it was crowding the delegates off.

The first half of the twentieth century, Dewey told the delegates,

Housecleaning In January, Dewey Says

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 24.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight said he would conduct "the biggest housecleaning you have ever seen in Washington next January."

Immediately upon returning from convention hall, where he had just accepted the Republican presidential nomination, the New York Governor made the pledge in an informal talk to workers and others in his hotel headquarters.

"And nobody," he added, "will have to ask Congress for money to run the Communists off the Government payroll. There won't be any appointed after January."

"We will restore the faith of the American people in the spoken word of their Government and the integrity of their purpose."

Later Dewey spoke from a balcony to a crowd in front of his hotel.

He declared he would establish a foreign policy that would not "vacillate between appeasement one day and bluster the next."

To the building of a "strong and permanent peace," he said "I dedicate my whole soul and every possible capacity I can bring to our Government."

He said he was late in appearing on the balcony because he had put through a phone call to his mother in Michigan, and asked if the crowd would forgive his being late.

Cries of "Yes" went up.

He said that if elected he would bring "the finest type of talent in the country" to Washington to

Post Mortems Reveal Reasons GOP Losers Failed to Win

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 24.—"The winner gets the postoffices.

"The loser gets the postmortems."

This is an old rule of politics to which this Philadelphia convention is no exception. The winner may have to wait a while for the postoffices, but the losers are getting immediate delivery on the postmortems.

Friends of those who didn't get the nomination will be debating what went wrong with their campaigns for a long time. The best general answer to each disappointed candidate, of course, is that his campaign ran into a better campaign. Apart from this generalization, however, are the visible defects of the various pre-convention drives. These are the faults and follies that politicians in all camps will chew over in coming months—the things that will figure in all the "might have been" stories.

Most spectacular of the losing campaigns was that of former Gov. Harold E. Stassen. He pushed his drive to the point where he led Governor Dewey as the favorite of rank-and-file voters in the Gallup poll for a few weeks. Why didn't it deliver the delegates?

So far as his failure is explained by what happened in the Stassen drive, the single most disastrous event on the road to Philadelphia, all agree, was the Oregon fight. Stassen was riding high when he went into Oregon—he came out a loser in Oregon and in the pre-convention campaign.

The cause of the failure in Oregon, it seems plain, was the debate with Dewey. This was the turning point in the Stassen battle. Many of his campaigning associates feel he made two mistakes in that debate: (1) He was on the wrong side of the issue; (2) He did not do his best in presenting his side. How he got on the wrong side of the issue is one of the important stories of this nomination struggle. The gist of the situation seems to be that Stassen didn't take a position—the position took him. He laid down a broad declaration about dealing with Communists in a question-and-answer period. It provoked great attention. He repeated it in question-and-answer periods and in speeches without pausing to narrowly define the manner in which he would like to curb the Communists. With his grueling campaign pressing him, Stassen deferred getting into details. He thought a general discussion adequate for the initial educational period. By the time he got around to the details his advisers were talking in terms of "methods to outlaw the subversive activities of the Communist Party." Stassen had already been fastened to the proposal to outlaw the Communist Party itself. It was an albatross for the rest of the campaign. His Mundt bill advocacy was inconsistent with his liberal coloration and did not typify his devotion to civil liberties. It may have cost him the nomination.

In the field of tactics, as distinguished from the area of principles and policies, the Stassen campaign

Stassen Prominently Talked As Vice Presidential Choice

By Robert C. Albright

Philadelphia, June 24.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight called a GOP leadership conference on the choice of a 1948 running mate and consulted some of the defeated candidates.

The group started assembling at the Governor's suite at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel shortly after his return from making his speech accepting the presidential nomination.

James Hagerty, secretary to the Governor, told newsmen the conference was on party policies, including the Vice Presidency. In addition to those meeting with Dewey, Hagerty said the Governor had talked with Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Meeting with Dewey were Senate President Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Gov. Robert F. Bradford of Massachusetts, Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, John Foster Dulles, Dewey's adviser on foreign relations; Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Lew Wentz of Oklahoma, Mason Owlett of Pennsylvania, Harold Talbott of New York and Roy Roberts of the Kansas City Star.

Meanwhile, Senator M. Alexander Smith of New Jersey emerged from a separate talk with Herbert Brownell, Dewey's campaign manager, to tell newsmen that in his opinion a Dewey-Stassen ticket would be a "world-beater", considering Stassen's appeal to youthful voters and veterans. He said that Governor Driscoll shared his view.

The convention itself recessed until Friday without receiving vice presidential nominations or balloting on the No. 2 spot. Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr. an-

District's 3 Votes on Line For Dewey

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 24.—The District's three convention votes were cast tonight for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York to be the Republican presidential nominee.

With approval of Governor Dewey, the District delegation cast two votes for Dewey on the first ballot, three for Dewey on the others.

The third vote on the first ballot was for Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) in tribute to his work for the Nation's Capital as chairman of the House District Committee through the Eightieth Congress.

This arrangement was cleared and approved by Governor Dewey in a morning conference with the District delegation.

Edward F. Colladay, one of the District delegates, said the opening vote for Dirksen met with Dewey's full approval. With Colladay, the District group included Mrs. William S. Culbertson and George A. Parker, delegates.

Also in the conference were Alternate Delegates Chester B. Hewes and Mrs. Elizabeth E. Botts, and these officials of the Republican State Committee in and for the District of Columbia: James G. Wilkes, chairman; Joseph G. McGarraghy, vice chairman, and Col. George Hart, secretary.

Others who attended were Mrs. Thad H. Brown, Republican National Committeewoman of the District, and Clyde D. Garrett, who is succeeding Colladay as Republican National Committeeman for the District.

Deweys Share Big Moment of Victory

Philadelphia, June 24 (AP).—Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey sat on the rose-plush divan of her Bellevue Stratford sitting room and watched intently tonight as Senator John Bricker's figure appeared on the television screen.

As Bricker read Senator Robert Taft's release of delegates, the wife of the New York Governor touched her cheeks lightly with her fingertips and sighed:

"I guess I'd better put on my hat," she said.

As she reached her bedroom next door, the entrance of the suite was lighted with flashlight bulbs, and Governor Dewey strode into the room. It was 8:21 p. m. He walked into their bedroom and directly into his wife's arms. They hugged each other silently for a second.

He left the suite within two minutes, retiring to a near-by corner room. Mrs. Dewey, in the black suit, black-and-white blouse and orchid corsage she had worn through t[illegible] afternoon, soon followed him into the outer room.

The Republican nominee for President of the United States and [illegible]wife were ready to be presented to the convention.

Dewey Nominated On Third Ballot

shortly after 5 brought about a recess to 7:30 p. m.

In the interval, however, the opposition to Dewey collapsed.

Before balloting could start at the night session, United States Senator John Bricker of Ohio strode to the rostrum and made an announcement that clinched the nomination for Dewey.

Bricker read a statement from Senator Robert A. Taft, Dewey's chief rival. Taft was releasing his delegates and was urging them to vote for Dewey—"a great Republican" who would be "a great President."

Senator William Knowland of California followed Bricker to the rostrum. He read a letter from Gov. Earl Warren, favorite son of the Golden State.

Warren, too, had released his delegates and was casting his own ballot for Dewey.

Then came former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota. Whatever disappointment there may have been inside him, he was smiling as he faced the mike.

Stassen said he wanted to second the recommendation that Governor Dewey's nomination be made unanimous.

There were cheers, as there had been after each of the earlier announcements, but there were also boos and cries of "No* No!"

Stassen persisted in his announcement and went on to pledge his active efforts toward a Republican victory in November, from the courthouse on up to the White House.

He also pledged himself to carry on within the GOP "my efforts to strengthen the liberal program of the party on behalf of the young men and women of the party in particular."

This brought a salvo of cheers from the arena and from the galleries.

Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan joined the parade up to the platform to say that Senator Arthur Vandenberg joined "most heartily" in what was going on.

"We had placed him (Vandenberg) in this position contrary to his wishes and without his consent," Sigler said.

It had been within Sigler's power, doubtless, to have settled the whole business on the second ballot.

As the Dewey total mounted on the ballot, James D. Powers, a delegate from Detroit, turned to Sigler out in the sweltering arena.

"Now is the time, Kim," Powers said. "You can decide who's going to be in the White House."

Governor Sigler said that he was standing pat, and would take no such action without a caucus. Powers asked for a poll of the delegation. When the showdown came, however, and his own name was called, he voted for Vandenberg. Later, at a recess caucus, the whole delegation voted to go to Dewey.

Harlan W. Kelly of Milwaukee was the last to withdraw a candidate from the path of the Dewey steamroller. His candidate was Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who had never been taken seriously by the convention.

Once the third roll call started, there was no doubt about the outcome. It was all Dewey—1094 delegates solid.

The New Yorker got 434 votes on the first ballot. He picked up 81 on the second ballot, just 33 shy of what he needed.

The delegates were set for a third ballot when, suddenly, Gov. James Duff of Pennsylvania made his motion for a recess to 7:30. He was supported by Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio, Taft's manager, and Senator Knowland of California.

Howls of protest were reverberating in the hall when Judge William F. Bleakley, chairman of the New York delegation arose. He said Governor Dewey's supporters had no objection to the recess.

Ed Jaeckel, one of Dewey's three campaign managers, later told reporters that the "stop-Dewey" people had been tripped by their own strategy.

"A recess was just what we wanted," Jaeckel said. "We knew that if we could get certain delegations out of the hall, and into rooms where they could caucus—well, we knew that they would see the light."

It turned out that he was right.

Governor Dewey began to gain at the outset of the second roll call. Alabama stood pat, but Arizona, called next, switched one vote from Taft to Dewey.

The New Yorker picked up another in Delaware and three in the predominantly Taft delegation from Illinois.

His first big surge, however, came when Iowa was reached. Here he got 15, a gain of 10.

New Jersey, which gave 35 votes to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, a favorite son, on the first ballot, threw 24 to Dewey on the second.

By the time Texas was reached on this ballot, Dewey was past the 500 mark.

In advance of the balloting, Gov. Kim Sigler gained the rostrum to denounce a headline in the early edition of the Philadelphia Bulletin. This read: "Michigan Says It Will Switch From Vandenberg." A subhead said that "Sigler's group may turn to New Yorker."

Governor Sigler said nobody in authority had ever made such a statement. There were cheers from the galleries and from the anti-Dewey delegates in the arena, and Chairman Martin stepped forward to rap his gavel.

Sigler went on to say that the Michigan delegation certainly was going to vote for its great Senator as soon as it got a chance.

Just after this former Governor Stassen made his first appearance on the platform, with Mrs. Stassen. They were given a lusty cheer.

The calling of the roll began immediately thereafter.

In downtown Philadelphia, meanwhile, Representative Clarence Brown, Taft manager, was telling reporters that an agreement was near on a single candidate to oppose Dewey.

Before the balloting began, Governor Warren appeared before the California delegation and made this grim statement:

"If I couldn't have the nomination without deals, I would be happier without it and I know you would think more of me for not getting it."

The taking of the vote on the first roll call was punctuated by cheers and by one hearty laugh.

This came as the chairman of the Oklahoma delegation announced 18 votes for "Oklahoma's favorite son-in-law, Thomas E. Dewey." It was Oklahoma's way of telling the world that Mrs. Dewey, the former Frances Eileen Hutt, was a former Sapulpa, Okla., belle, who met the future New York Governor at a singing school in Chicago in 1923.

The tension increased as the second ballot was being taken. For some reason not made clear, a Michigan delegate demanded that the delegation be polled—a long, tedious business which meant the calling out the names of all 41 delegates.

As the men and women of the Wolverine State announced their preference, there were cries of "hold that line."

"Vandenberg forever!" cried one delegate, amid cheers.

Michigan did hold the line on this ballot, giving all its 41 to the Senator.

When Ohio was reached on this ballot, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert announced the vote as Taft, 44; Stassen, 8, and Dewey 1.

Mrs. Lois Cossit of Toledo, Stassen manager in Ohio, demanded a poll of the delegation.

"No turncoats," shouted one man in voting for Taft.

It turned out that the Dewey man was Chester J. Gillespie.

"I do not apologize for voting for Thomas E. Dewey," he announced more defiantly.

When the second ballot ended Dewey needing only 33 to cross the victory line, old-timers in the press box were sure that enough States would switch to put him over.

The switches failed to come however, and a third ballot was in order.

Immediately after the result of the second ballot was announced, Gov. James E. Duff of Pennsylvania, moved that a recess be taken until 7:30 p. m. A bitter foe of Dewey, he was trying desperately to head him off.

The Dewey people sent up a roar of protest against the Duff motion.

Above the din of angry boos could be heard the voice of Senator William Knowland of California. On behalf of Governor Warren and the Golden State delegation, he was seconding Duff's motion.

Dewey Plans Housecleaning

help him administer the Government.

A violent thunderstorm was raging over this historic city when the "presidential lightning" struck Governor Dewey.

Dewey was listening behind guarded doors in Room 820 of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel when his radio brought word of the big break that gave him the Republican presidential nomination.

The word was shouted down the hall, a step ahead of a rush of newsmen and photographers. Into the little circle they made around his door, Governor Dewey stepped, quiet and smiling.

He met shouts, applause, yells of congratulation. He started to speak.

Asks Strength of God

So low-pitched was his voice, it could be heard only inches away. He stood, head slightly bowed, waiting. The noise stopped.

Then, seriously, eyes turned away to his own thoughts, he said:

"I am humbly grateful for the confidence of the elected representatives of the Republican Party. And hope God gives me strength to merit it."

He strode then into the thick of the crowd, down the hall toward his own suite, 807-8, at the far end of the corridor. It was a parade of applause, glaring flashbulbs and shouts. Police rushed in to hold the crowd back. Dewey disappeared into his own room. His wife had been listening for the word in their suite. Their two children, Thomas E., jr., 15, and John M. Dewey, 12, were in the convention hall.

Until he rode to the convention hall, Dewey had spent the day in his eighth-floor campaign headquarters in the Bellevue-Stratford. He rose about 8 a. m., breakfasted half an hour later with his family, then conferred with his top political strategists and met other visitors.

He launched with the big three of his political campaign staff in his suite. They are Herbert Brownell, jr., campaign manager; J. Russel Sprague, New York Republican National Committeeman, and Edwin F. Jaeckle, former State Republican chairman. They then went to convention hall, the first time the three of them had moved to the public field of nominating operations.

Dewey heard the start of the balloting in his own suite, but there was trouble with the television set. An aide ran out to get a radio set, saying that Governor Dewey was the only one in town who couldn't hear what was going on. A portable radio was rushed in.

In the break between the first and seconds ballots he walked, coatless, to the room of Bradley Nash, New York attorney and friend of Dewey's, where there was a radio and a direct telephone to the convention floor.

He came outsmiling shortly after 5 p. m. when the second ballot had brought him within 33 votes of the nomination. He then predicted his nomination would be made on the third ballot. He returned to his suite, dined there, and went back to Nash's room to hear the night session.

Storm Clears Away

Through the day his headquarters was a scene of wilted collars and soaring hopes. The temperature went to 93 degrees at 4:15 p. m., high for the day, according to the Weather Bureau here.

Then, moments after Dewey stepped into the room where he finally received the big news, the corridors filled with blasts of wind from open windows. There was a sound of breaking glass. The wind had blown in a large window pane on the stair well. The noise rolled up through the hotel court.

The Weather Bureau said winds of 30 miles an hour were recorded and the velocity of wind gusts was much greater.

The downpour had ended when Dewey left the hotel to ride behind a motorcycle escort to Convention Hall. He rode west where under the low line of storm clouds a luminous streak of clear blue sky was showing. Lightning still raced across the cloud banks to the east. He stepped from his car and was swept through the crowd at Gate 8 in the rear of Convention Hall. He entered the building about 9:12 p. m.

'Three Musketeers' Deliver for Dewey

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 24.—It wasn't a blitz, but three men named Brownell, Jaeckle and Sprague hit Philadelphia and delivered the GOP presidential nomination to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on the third ballot.

Dewey's famed three comanagers came here far short of a nominating majority. They crashed Senator Taft's national committee stronghold in the first contest, then stampeded the favorite son delegations for the margin to win.

But it was the cool, planning and plugging of the 46-year-old governor himself who turned a trend in mid-May, floored an opponent in one never-to-be-forgotten debate, and serenely turned to the No. 1 spot.

'The Team' Wins Again

In Albany, they simply call it "the team." The fact that no defeated Republican before had ever been nominated a second time for the Presidency was an obstacle overcome by the same kind of teamplay that twice elected Dewey Governor of New York and four years ago laid the presidential nomination in his lap without even a contest.

Those three musketeers: Herbert Brownell, jr., who seasonally leaves a lucrative law practice to do a Dewey stint; J. Russel Sprague, manager of New York's Nassau County when he isn't working for Dewey, and Edwin F. Jaeckle, upstate lawyer and politician with a Jim Farley flair.

"The team's" first problem was to turn a trend in the primaries that was beginning to look like a Stassen bandwagon.

Using Stassen's own "meet the people" technique, Dewey tried and failed in Wisconsin and Nebraska. The No. 1 opponent, Senator Taft, came to the rescue by holding against Stassen in Ohio.

Opportunity Knocks

Dewey chose Oregon for his last stand, campaigning like a sweating alderman shaking any calloused hand offered, holding Q and A periods, adlibing his speeches. Then one night in May, a week before the Oregon primaries, opportunity knocked.

Up and down the country, Stassen had called for the outlawry of communism. Repeatedly he had challenged Dewey to debate. Dewey maintained outlawing communism would only drive it underground. He invited Stassen to meet him in a broadcast debate.

Oregon and the Nation cocked their ears that night, heard the resounding thud as Stassen hit the canvas. A week later Dewey handily won the Oregon primaries. The New Yorker, who had dropped behind Stassen, returned to the lead.

Confident for the first time, Brownell told reporters: "There will be no deadlock at Philadelphia."

With Sprague and Jaeckle, he moved into this convention city ahead of Dewey, documented opposition strong and soft spots, decided to lead with a left to the chin.

Just one week ago Senator Taft, in Washington opening the Senate's 44-hour stretch to adjournment, first learned he had been hit. The Republican National Committee in Philadelphia, always believed in Taft's pocket, had just seated the Dewey delegation from Georgia in its first preconvention tilt.

Confidentially, the Taft forces appealed the decision to the credentials committee where the Ohioan thought he had reserve strength. Dewey won again.

Taft-Stassen managers next became aware of strange rumors from favorite-son delegations. Philadelphia newspapers published reports of a "Grundy-Dewey deal" to deliver the bulk of the key Pennsylvania vote to the New Yorker, after a token first ballot for Senator Edward Martin. The politicians just shrugged: "Philadelphia and its deals!"

Things Suddenly Happen

Few were prepared for what actually happened. Republicans had just convened and recessed, and the balloting was still three days off, when Senator Martin tipped his hat to the Pennsylvania delegation, said he appreciated its support, then stepped out of the race in favor of Dewey.

The Taft and Stassen camps, and the few hold-to-the-bitter-end favorite sons, never fully recovered from the shock. Belated efforts to form a "stop Dewey" coalition agreed only on joint efforts to try to hold the line. There's an old political axiom: "You can't stop somebody with nobody," and they couldn't agree on the man.

The Dewey bandwagon already was rolling through the crowded streets of Philadelphia and right into convention hall, drowning out the music of the Stassen bagpipers and Taft's "four leaf clover" chorus.

Governor Driscoll of New Jersey followed Senator Martin aboard. On the eve of the nominations, House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck and his entire Hoosier delegation swung on to the rear platform in a clear bid for the Vice Presidency. And bright and early this morning, Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts just caught the bus.

They Planned It

It didn't just happen that way. Messrs. Brownell, Sprague and Jaeckle have been to conventions before.

So have Senators Taft and Vandenberg and Mr. Stassen, who floor-managed Wendell Willkie's 1940 blitz.

But Taft, busy with his Senate chores, was represented by Congressman Clarence Brown, and Dewey's three horsemen rode circles around him.

Stassen was on the scene in person, but Oregon was his Armageddon.

As for Senator Vandenberg, he was never quite in or quite out of the race and never accredited any manager.

With that set-up, and "the team" running interference, Dewey couldn't lose.

Seven Candidates Nominated in Night of Convention Speechifying and Hoopla

Philadelphia, June 24 (AP). — Amid traditional fanfare and tumult, the Republican National Convention early today heard the last of seven names presented to it as candidates for the Presidency.

Dawn was barely an hour distant when the noisy speech-making session came to a husky-throated end at 4:02 a. m.

Interspersed with demonstrations ranging from two to three minutes, the sales-talk oratory presented the names of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, Gov. Earl Warren of California, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, and General Douglas MacArthur of Wisconsin.

Nominating Speeches

Here are some of the things said about the candidates in the major nominating speeches:

Of Dewey by Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, amid cheers and some boos: the New York Governor "towers above all others" in qualifications for President, has the American people behind him, and "has the fighting vigor to wage a winning campaign." Early in his political career, he gave Tammany Hall in New York City "the worst licking it ever had in its whole history," and the New Yorker has a "breathtaking" record as Governor.

Of Taft, by Senator John W. Bricker, a fellow Ohioan: he could lead the Republican Party to "overwhelming" victory in November because "seldom in the history of our country has one man assumed such responsibilities (in the Senate) as has our candidate." Those responsibilities include detecting the "fallacies of the President's proposals" and revealing them to the people.

Stassen Sendoff

Of Stassen by Representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota: he would make a President of "vision and forthrightness, integrity and courage, statesmanship and stature." He has "wide experience" in many fields, understanding agriculture, labor, business and government, and he could get the votes of independents and young people.

Of Vandenberg by Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan: The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has "subordinated any and all personal aspirations in a determination to develop for America a foreign policy recognized for its breadth and wisdom throughout the world." He is a "recognized statesman" and could do more than any other to "unite" the Republican Party.

Of Warren by Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California: The "Republican Party can accept without reservation full responsibility for any administration that Earl Warren heads."

Of Baldwin by Mrs. Frances Burke Redick, Connecticut's secretary of State: This "favorite son" candidate is a "great leader and vote-getter" as demonstrated by his record during three terms as Governor and in his present senatorial post.

"Only One MacArthur"

Of MacArthur by Harlan W. Kelley, blind Milwaukee attorney: with the atomic bomb hanging like a spectre over the course of future relation with Russia "no mere politician is big enough to fill the President's chair." Politicians are "a dime a dozen but there is only one Douglas MacArthur." Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, hero of Bataan, seconded the nomination of his former commander, now Supreme Allied commander over Japan.

MacArthur, proposed for nomination shortly before 4 a. m. (Philadelphia daylight time), received the shortest of the ovations from the by then exhausted delegates. A round of applause lasting about two minutes greeted the mention of his name.

Taft took the prize for the longest demonstration—38 minutes. Dewey's lasted 32, Warren's 26, Stassen's 25 and Vandenberg's and Baldwin's about six minutes each.

But in terms of wild and unrestrained roistering, plus imagination and inventiveness, Stassen's supporters were unchallenged.

They were the ones who floated the boat, sent the buxom and besweatered little drum-majorette to the podium, along with a Sioux Indian chief and the Scottish Highlanders. They were the ones, too, who stormed the galleries and put two brass bands on the floor, each blaring a different tune.

California was a disappointment. Neither noisy nor colorful. Miss Irene Dunne and George Murphy, film stars, appeared on the podium and dutifully chanted "We Want Warren," for some 75 minutes.

Some Reasons Why They Lost

suffered from centralized control. The former Governor played pitcher, catcher, first baseman and coach on the Stassen team. He had plenty of able men around him: Warren Burger, successful St. Paul lawyer; Ted Gamble, West Coast theater chain operator; Fred Seaton, Nebraska publisher; Bernard Levander, Minnesota State chairman.

None of the Stassen aides, however, ever attained the stature of a real "manager" of the Stassen drive and spokesman for the candidate. Stassen was his own "Jim Farley." That he felt the lack of such an agent-extraordinary is known. At the start, he looked for such a man. He didn't find one. Maybe this was the most important failure. Stassen tried to carry the burden alone. It was an unbearable burden that would have killed a lesser man. It did weaken him and leave him weary and worn for such ordeals as the Oregon debate. It also brought him to Philadelphia the sole spokesman in his headquarters who could speak with enough authority to command press attention. Stassen was dealing single-handedly with problems of contact that Dewey handled with a staff.

This campaign, beyond doubt, has shown Stassen himself that he must learn to delegate authority, to master administrative method, to rely more on staff work and less on his own intuition. If he adds these executive qualities to the great gift of leadership proven by the remarkable following he gained, he will be invincible in some future struggle.

Senator Vandenberg (always assuming he really desired the nomination) tried to work the most difficult maneuver in politics and didn't succeed. It is hard to manipulate a convention fight so as to become a compromise candidate when deadlocked leaders are in a stalemate. Then it takes some fancy manipulation. This convention did not even get to the stalemate stage, so the Senator's skill was not put to the test.

Could the Senator have succeeded if he had launched the usual preconvention campaign? Certainly he could have had a formidable bloc of delegates. If he had won a few pledged delegations, he might have got Taft and Stassen to rally to him. Such a rally was definitely a possibility as late as Tuesday. It was plainly to be noted—by the convention reaction when Vandenberg first appeared—that the Republican rank and file was not afire for Vandenberg. The delegates reflected the Vandenberg poll strength. There may have been enough Vandenberg support in the country so that he could have won with a vigorous campaign. There certainly wasn't enough to give him a victory without a campaign. With Vandenberg standing for the nomination and Dewey running for it, the issue never was much in doubt.

Senator Robert Taft's difficulties are the best evidence that Stassen was right in deciding that the Senate is a poor place from which to campaign for the Presidency. Taft's important role in the Senate, in the midst of all the legislative battles of his party, worked a triple disadvantage on his candidacy: (1) He was on one or another side of every controversy—making some enemies with every bill; (2) he had a full-time job with legislation and had little time left over; (3) he came to Philadelphia wearied by the congressional session. He had not slept for 48 hours when he arrived here. His fate resembles that of many other party leaders who have found the role of the great party advocate and legislative leader a handicap in seeking the Presidency. It was a handicap to Seward, Clay, Webster and Blaine, to name a few.

Warren's weakness was the limited campaign he permitted to be made for him. Many of his supporters believe he could have taken Oregon away from both Stassen and Dewey, if he had tried. He could have garnered delegates e e. too.

Mrs. Dewey 'Campaigner' In Own Right

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 24.—Mrs. Dewey's day, or 24-hour Philadelphia kaleidoscope of our probable next First Lady's doings:

Wednesday, 6 p. m., Tommy and Johnny Dewey arrived from Albany, chaperoned by New York State Trooper Corpl. Joe Micklas. Carrying suitcases, they go to the Bellevue Stratford, room 805, their mother's small bedroom-living suite. Bumped into the Governor in connecting hallway, hugged and kissed him, 15-year-old Johnny getting there first with a "Hi-Ya, Dad," Dad replying "Hi-Ya, Big Boy."

6:30: Mrs. Dewey, who verifies every detail personally, inspected hands, hair, straightened their ties. A stickler for balanced meals, she shooed them away from a table piled with candy, cakes, soft drinks.

6:45: The Dewey boys and their Ma had supper in their sitting room.

7:30: Mrs. Dewey, the boys, Mrs. Betsy McNab, Jim Haggerty, jr., the Governor's public relations expert, Maureen McKernan, Westchester newspaper woman who served as the Governor's lady's watchdog for press and similar nuisances, plus Corporal Micklas, joined Dewey in room 807. Room 807's a big living room where the now famous Dewey caucuses have been held. They posed for still cameras and newsreels while radio commentators described the scene.

Boys Are Briefed

8 p. m.: The room was cleared of the press and the boys briefed for their evening program. They were to go to Convention Hall in the charge of Corporal Micklas. Jim Haggerty reminded them that the television camera would be turned on them constantly. They could tell when the camera was working by a red light burning on top.

Asked who they'd like to take with them, Tommy asked: "How about Aunt Margy and Uncle Pat?" Then, as an afterthought, "and couldn't we take Pat Driscoll?" Aunt Margy and Uncle Pat are the Carl T. Hogans, the latter a classmate of Governor Dewey at the University of Michigan. Pat Driscoll is the New Jersey Governor's 16-year-old daughter. The Dewey boys have seen her a lot recently at the Governor's convention.

Mrs. Dewey reminded the boys seats were scarce, they musn't ask for favors.

"I think we can manage some way," said the Governor.

Tommy aimed an exaggerated bow at his father.

"My friend," he exclaimed, imitating you know who.

"Always glad to do a favor," replied Mr. D., returning his son's bow.

Quiet Reigns

9 p. m.: Comparative peace and quiet. During supper a television set had been set up in Mrs. Dewey's sitting room. Ensconced on a sofa in front of the machine and plopping a few pillows behind her back, Mrs. Dewey and a few intimate friends sat in front of it beady eyed until 11 o'clock. An alert observer whose skill would get her a reportorial job any day, Mrs. Dewey missed no trick. "There's poor Joe Martin, why doesn't someone get him some colored glasses—he'll go blind without them. There's Judy Weiss (New York national committeewoman). Doesn't she look pretty. I've never seen that dress before. Isn't it nice that Sentaor Martin comes out so well on the screen. Oh, there's Jane Todd, she looks well, too. Brunettes seem to come out better. Blondes fade—there's a blonde who looks wonderful, do you suppose it's a matter of pigmentation?"

Midnight: Johnny came home with the Hogans. Tommy, Johnny and the corporal rolled in around 1.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MEET THE DEWEYS—Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican Party's choice for President of the United States, poses with Mrs. Dewey and two sons in Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia. The boys are Thomas, jr. (left), 15, and John, 11

Both boys slept on cots in their mother's room.

Thursday, 7:30 a. m.: Mrs. Dewey woke as usual, talked with her housekeeper in Albany. She breakfasted with the boys.

Reads Newspapers

Up to 10:30 a. m. she read the newspapers from half a dozen cities. Possessor of an almost photographic memory, she can remember in which paper, what page and column she saw an item.

Up to luncheon time, Mrs. Dewey busied herself answering personal telephone calls, writing notes and waiting for the doctor. She's talked to so many thousand people, she woke up with a dry throat. Interviews were canceled and her voice is being saved for tomorrow.

By now Mrs. Dewey's an old campaigner and can take a tough convention in her stride. What makes her successful is her gift for silence at the right time, an unusually well trained memory for faces, details, a natural instinct for good housekeeping. Personally extremely neat, she can't abide overflowing ashtrays, and even with scores of visitors keeps her sitting room tidy. The other day she was photographed at her desk. The cameraman, to make her look busy, scattered papers over the desk surface.

"I'll leave it this way if you insist," she said politely, "but I never allow papers to accumulate."

Of all the presidential candidates, Governor Dewey is easily the best groomed. Mrs. Dewey has no personal maid, her husband no valet. She takes charge of his clothes herself, watches him like a hawk.

During the convention he wore a broadly striped tie. Mrs. Dewey spotted it in the television. "You can't wear that tie again. Those stripes stood out like a zebra."

Why I think it looks pretty good," protested her husband. But he didn't have a chance. The bit of neckwear was consigned to limboland.

Mrs. Dewey never lounges in a negligee. She steps out fully dressed in early morning. She uses a light scent, loves flowers and even in her food. The other day, ordering a vegetable plate luncheon, she drew everyone's attention to the attractive juxtaposition of bright-hued carrots, asparagus, beets.

Perhaps the only Dewey habit annoying to their friends or political confreres is the zeal with which they follow each and every political speech. Mrs. Deewey will ask those around her for their opinion of a special flow of oratory. They've discovered it's impossible to get away with an enthusiastically noncommittal "awfully" because then Mrs. Dewey follows up like a terrier wanting to know precisely why they thought it good. It's pretty embarrassing for any politically slovenly minded in Mrs. Dewey's immediate neighborhood. She's a smart cookie all right and once her husband has the job he wants, Frances Dewey will blossom out on her own and make a terrific personal hit.

Text of Dewey's Acceptance Speech

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 24 (AP).—Following is the text of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's speech tonight accepting the presidential nomination at the Republican National Convention:

YOU, the elected representatives of our Republican Party, have again given to me the highest honor you can bestow—your nomination for President of the United States.

I thank you with all my heart for your friendship and confidence. I am profoundly sensible of the responsibility that goes with it. I accept your nomination. In all humility, I pray God that I may deserve this opportunity to serve our country.

I come to you unfettered by a single obligation or promise to any living person, free to join with you in selecting to serve our Nation the finest men and women in the Nation, free to unite our party and our country in meeting the grave challenge of our time.

United we can match this challenge with depth of understanding and largeness of spirit; with a unity which is above recrimination, above partisanship, above self-interest. These are articles of faith from which the greatness of America has been fashioned. Our people are eager to know again the upsurging power of that faith. They are turning to us to put such a faith at the heart of our national life. That is what we are called to do. That is what we will do.

In this historic convention, you all high-minded men of character and ability and deeply devoted to their country—Senator Raymond E. Baldwin, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Senator Robert A. Taft, Senator Arthur Vandenberg and Gov. Earl Warren. It has been a difficult choice in an honorable contest. It has been a stirring demonstration of the life and vitality and ideals of our Republican Party.

There has been honest contention, spirited disagreement, hot argument. But let no one be misled. You have given moving and dramatic proof of how Americans, who honestly differ, close ranks and move forward, for the Nation's well-being, shoulder to shoulder.

The responsibility and the opportunity that have come to our party are the greatest in the history of free government. For tonight our future—our peace, our prosperity, the very fate of freedom—hangs in a precarious balance.

Mere victory in an election is not our task or our purpose. Our task is to fill our victory with such meaning that mankind everywhere, yearning for freedom, will take heart and move forward out of this desperate darkness into the light of freedom's promise.

Our platform proclaims the guideposts that will mark our steadfast and certain endeavor in a fearful world. This magnificent statement of principles is concise and to the point.

You unanimously adopted it. I proudly support it. It will be the heart of the message I will take to the country. After January 20, it will be the cornerstone of our Republican Administration.

WE ARE a united party. Our Nation stands tragically in need of that same unity.

Our people are turning away from the meaner things that divide us. They yearn to move to higher ground, to find a common purpose in the finer things which unite us. We must be the instrument of that aspiration. We must be the means by which America's full powers are released and this uncertain future filled again, with opportunity. That is our pledge. That will be the fruit of our victory.

If this unity is to be won and kept, it must have great dimensions. Its boundaries must be far above and beyond politics. Freedom can be saved—it can only be saved—if free men everywhere make this unity their common cause.

Unity in such a cause must be the chief cornerstone of peace. A peace won at the expense of liberty is a peace too dearly bought. Such a peace would not endure. Above all other purposes, we must labor by every peaceful means to build a world order founded upon justice and righteousness. That kind of world will have peace. That kind of peace will be worth having. That is the crowning responsibility that our people have laid upon us. That is the crowning task to which we dedicate ourselves.

The unity we seek is more than material. It is more than a matter of things and measures. It is most of all spiritual. Our problem is not outside ourselves. Our problem is within ourselves. We have found the means to blow the world, physically, apart. Spiritually, we have yet to find the means to put together the world's broken pieces, to bind up its wounds, to make a good society, a community of men of good will that fits our dreams. We have devised noble plans for a new world. Without a new spirit, our noblest plans will come to naught. We pray that, in the days ahead, a full measure of that spirit may be ours.

The next presidential terms will see the completion of the first half of the twentieth century. So far it has been a century of amazing progress and of terrible tragedy. We have seen the world transformed. We have seen mankind's age-long struggle against nature crowned by extraordinary success.

YET our triumphs have been darkened by bitter defeats in the equally ancient struggle of men to live together in peace, security and understanding. For this age of progress, this twentieth century, has been dominated by two terrible world wars and, between the wars, the worst economic depression in the history of mankind.

We must learn to do better. The period that is drawing to a close has been one of scientific achievement. The era that is opening before us much be a period of human and spiritual achievement.

We propose to continue to carry forward the great technological gains of our age. We shall harness the unimaginable possibilities of atomic energy, to bring men and women a larger, fuller life. But there is something more important than all this. With all the energy, intelligence and determination which mortal heart and mind can summon to the task, we must solve the problem of establishing a just and lasting peace in the world, and of securing to our own and other like-minded people the blessings of freedom and opportunity.

To me, to be a Republican in this hour is to dedicate one's life to the freedom of men. As long as the world is half free and half slave, we must peacefully labor to help men everywhere to achieve liberty.

We have declared our goal to be a strong and free America in a free world of free men—free to speak their own minds, free to develop new ideas, free to publish what they believe, free to move from place to place, free to choose occupations, free to chose and use the fruits of their labor, free to worship God, each according to his own concept of His grace and His mercy.

When these rights are secure in the world, the permanent ideals of the Republican Pary shall have been realized.

The ideals of the American people are the ideals of the Republican Party. We have lighted a beacon here in Philadelphia in this cradle of our own independence. We have lighted a beacon to give eternal hope that men may live in liberty with human dignity and before God and loving Him, stand erect and free.

McGrath Says Taft's Record Repudiated

Narragansett, R. I., June 24 (AP).—Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath said tonight the Republican Convention, by its nomination of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, has "repudiated" Senator Robert A. Taft and the record of the Republican Party in the Eightieth Congress.

"Now, it will be necessary," Senator McGrath said, "for Governor Dewey to explain away all that the Congress did or failed to do under Senator Taft's leadership."

THE BIRTH AND GROWTH OF CO-OPERATION D.G.S.

IT'S 1923 . . . Calvin Coolidge has been sworn in as President of the United States . . . Here in Washington the fledgling retail grocers' co-operative organization known as the District Grocery Stores has barely survived after two years of weathering many storms . . . Various arrangements with wholesale grocers as sources of supply have proved unsatisfactory in lowering the cost of foods to the consumer . . . A warehouse of some sort becomes an absolute necessity if the determination of the group to "provide the HIGHEST QUALITY FOODS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES" . . . is to be realized . . . A momentous decision is made . . . the group starts warehousing in a small one-story building in the 900 block of C Street, N.W.

Dewey Maps World Order has been one of scientific achievement.

"The era that is opening before us must be a period of human and spiritual achievement," he declared.

Denies Any Deals

Early in his speech, Dewey firmly told his fellow Republicans he had made no deals or commitments to secure the nomination.

"I come to you unfettered by a single obligation or promise to any living person, free to join with you in selecting to serve our Nation the finest men and women in the Nation, free to unit our party and our country in meeting the grave challenge of our time," Dewey said.

Probably it was on this point that he received his greatest volume of applause.

It was a statement made against a background of charges of "deals in smoke-filled rooms"—deals for the Vice Presidency and deals for Cabinet posts.

Previously at his press conferences, the New York Governor flatly denied making any deals of any kind.

There is the charge, for example, that in order to secure Indiana's 29 votes, a Vice Presidency was promised House Majority Leader Charles Halleck of Indiana.

Yet the men who attended the conference between Halleck and Herbert Brownell, when Indiana's votes were discussed, are authorities for the statement that Halleck was given one assurance and one only. It was this: If he could become the choice of the convention, he would be acceptable to Dewey.

Asks United Action

The grave challenge of leadership in the present world can be met by united action and understanding, Dewey said.

"United we can match this challenge," he told the delegates, "with depth of understanding and largeness of spirit; with a unity which is above recrimination, above partisanship, above self-interest.

"These are articles of faith from which the greatness of America has been fashioned. Our people are eager to know again the upsurging power of that faith. They are turning to us to put such a faith at the heart of our national life. That is what we are called to do.

"That is what we will do."

To his rivals for the nomination, which Republicans here proclaim is tantamount to election, Dewey paid graceful tribute.

Mentioning Senator Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Senator Robert A. Taft, Senator Arthur Vandenberg and Gov. Earl Warren, Dewey said all are "high-minded men of character and ability and deeply devoted to their country."

Mere victory is not enough, Dewey asserted.

"Our task is to fill our victory with such meaning that mankind everywhere, yearning for freedom, will take heart and move forward out of this desperate darkness into the light of freedom's promise."

Repeatedly Dewey emphasized the need for spiritual growth.

"Our people are turning away from the meaner things that divide us. They yearn to move to higher ground to find a common purpose in the finer things which unite us.

"We must be the instrument of that aspiration," he declared in ringing tones.

Freedom can only be saved, Dewey asserted, if free men everywhere unite in common purpose in this cause.

"Peace won at the expense of liberty," he said, "is a peace too dearly bought. Such a peace would not endure. Above all other purposes, we must labor by every peaceful means to build a world order founded upon justice and righteousness."

"That kind of world will have peace. That kind of peace will be worth having. That is the crowning responsibility that our people have laid upon us. That is the crowning task to which we dedicate ourselves."

As long as the world is half slave and half free, Dewey told the convention, "we must peacefully labor to help men everywhere to achieve liberty."

"We have declared our goal to be a strong and free America in a free world of free men—free to speak their own minds, free to develop new ideas, free to publish what they believe, free to move from place to place, free to choose occupations, free to choose and use the fruits of their labor, free to worship God, each according to his own concept of His grace and His mercy."

His speech over, the nominee turned toward Mrs. Dewey and smiled, then shook hands with those crowding around him.

Hot as any of the delegates, who have been sweltering here in 100-degree heat with the hot white lights for television cameras focused on the stage, Dewey drew his handekrchief and mopped a steaming brow.

A woman delegate flung Hawaiian leis of white orchids around the necks of the Governor and Mrs. Dewey. The long white lei set off Mrs. Dewey's all-black costume, which was topped by a black halo hat.

About 7 tonight before the delegates cast their third ballots, Philadelphia crowds knew the nomination was "in the bag."

Drawn up in front of the Bellevue-Stratford, Dewey's hotel, was his long black limousine with the New York license plate No. 1. A squad of motorcycle policemen waited near it, ready to escort the nominee to Convention Hall.

Just before he left the platform, Dewey turned once more to the microphone and called out "Well, I guess this i sall for now. So long and I'll see you all again."

Heat-exhausted delegates applauded but did not prolong their demonstration.

It's All Over, Now . . .

Farm Population 27,440,000 After 110,000 Fall in '47

Nearly one million persons left cities, towns and villages last year to settle on farms, but more than 1,500,000 moved away from farms into cities, towns and villages.

The January 1 farm population was estimated by the Department of Agriculture yesterday at 27,440,000. That was 110,000 fewer than the estimate for January 1, 1947, when a peak of 27,550,000 was recorded after a two-year rise from 25,190,000 at the outset of 1945.

The 1947 decline in farm population was modified by the fact that births exceeded deaths in that group by nearly 500,000, the largest annual increase from that cause since 1925.

Dewey Confers On No. 2 Spot

nounced nominations will be in order Friday.

Traditionally, the presidential nominee himself picks a running mate and the voting is a routine formality. Dewey has indicated he wants some advice in the choosing, however, and one of his lieutenants said:

"It's wide open."

Members of the Indiana delegation who threw all their first ballot votes to the New Yorker after Representative Charles A. Halleck bowed out continued to predict the selection of their favorite son.

But Dewey's decision on a late night conference with leaders convinced others that he hasn't yet made up his mind.

In the Ohio delegation, a mild boom started for Senator John W. Bricker, Dewey's 1944 running mate, to make the second-place race again following word that Taft is among the defeated candidates being consulted.

Bricker was the first to clamber to the platform when the convention returned for the unanimous third ballot to read a complete release from Taft and put Ohio's full support behind Dewey.

One member of the Ohio delegation said he expects Governor Herbert of Ohio to put Bricker's name in nomination in any event.

As word of the vice presidential huddle got around interest even perked up in the Stassen contingent. Little love was lost between Dewey and Stassen in recent months of sharp campaigning, but when the second ballot chips were down the big Minnesotan was the only major presidential candidate to personally take the rostrum and urge unanimity.

Governor Dewey is still believed to have a strong personal preference for Gov. Earl Warren of California, but despite urgings by some of his close friends to accept, the Californian still gives his 1944 answer: "No."

The only other name still figuring in convention hall speculation is Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois. Some Green talk persists despite the fact that the Illinois Governor swung to Taft at the urging of Col. Robert R. McCormick.

Halleck, who still figures on top in the speculation, has been an avowed Dewey man ever since the New Yorker backed him for House majority leader in the close 1946 House Republican leadership race.

In 1940, Halleck was the man who placed Wendell Willkie's name in nomination, but his friendship with the 1940 nominee soon cooled.

Halleck did not see eye-to-eye with Willkie on foreign policy and has since been on the isolationist side in many a House tilt.

GOP Women Stake Claim to Top Jobs

By Christine Sadler Coe

Philadelphia, June 24.—Republican women expect at least one Cabinet post as a result of their work at this GOP convention—work that has included everything from coffee serving and placard toting to platform writing, caucusing, speech making, and vote swinging.

As one of them put it, "anything to do with the care and feeding of elephants—that's us."

The ladies have not placed their expectation of a Cabinet post on the identity of their nominee, but on their numerical strength and their claim of "political maturity." At last, they think, they are in a position to ask—and receive.

Which post in the Cabinet will it be? That's not certain yet, by any means. Stassen had promised them a postmistress general, and it has been generally conceded that the talked-about but yet unrealized Department of Education and Welfare would be headed by a woman. For some reason, the GOP does not want to follow in the footsteps of Democrats and name a woman Secretary of Labor—although the New York delegation includes several women who have had good training in the field of industrial and labor relations.

In addition to at least one full Cabinet place, the women expect some of their sex to become undersecretaries and assistant secretaries in the Cabinet—and will raise cain if they fail to get one of these jobs in the State Department. For they are thinking in terms of top spots this time, and if they stick to the determination they evince here, will not be willing to settle for peanuts.

Scores Well Qualified

What women? The list of 353 women delegates and alternates shows scores of them who are well qualified and also experienced in the rough and tumble of politics.

Mary Donlon, chairman of the New York State Compensation Board and chairman of the convention's subcommittee on labor and welfare, is mentioned frequently among the womenfolk. She's an expert attorney and a long-time party worker.

Jane Todd, vice chairman of the New York State Republican Committee, and one of the party's best known women, has worked hard for Dewey at three conventions. Mrs. Charles Weis, jr., national Republican committeewoman from New York, who seconded Dewey's nomination, is another out-in-fronter.

Mrs. Ruth Stockton, a young Republican from Colorado, served the convention as secretary to the Platform Committee, and Mrs. Marion Schultz of Washington State was vice chairman. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., chairman of the committee, praised Mrs. Stockton's work when he presented the new platform.

Money There, Too

When it comes to money—something that rarely has hindered a man politician seeking a top-of-the-bottle job—Republican women have their share of it. To mention three who are here: Clare Boothe Luce, former Congresswoman from Connecticut and delegate to the convention, has both talent and coin; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, official hostess to the convention and often considered more typical of the party than is the elephant itself, is one of Pennsylvania's wealthiest — and best-dressed — women; and Congresswoman Frances P. Bolton from Ohio, who made the speech directed particularly to women voters, supposedly has a million or so in her bank account.

When it comes to being widely known, Mrs. Lafell Dickinson, a member of the New Hampshire delegation, is past president of the huge General Federation of Women's Clubs and is known to every club-minded person in the country. The fact that she is here at all is interesting, for the federation long has shunned partisanship in politics and Mrs. Dickinson has thought its members should break up the old tradition, get into politics and fight for their own particular candidates.

Another past president—Mrs. John Whitehurst of Baltimore—will be here shortly as a member of the Democratic delegation.

The same philosophy spread by Mrs. Dickinson has been adopted wholeheartedly by the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, which were represented before the platform committee.

The National League of Women Voters and the Federation are the two most important groups that still shun partisanship as a policy.

Dewey Known to Favor Cabinet Post for Women

Philadelphia, June 24.—Thomas E. Dewey, the nominee, is on record in favor of a Cabinet post for the ladies—and has been since 1944. As chief executive of New York he has recognized more of them with more and better places of responsibility than any other Governor, last year winning an international women's award for this. "With him," a Dewey fan said tonight, "maybe it will be two places rather than one."

The Gallup Poll

Independent Voter Ratio Rises Sharply

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 24.—The balance of power in elections today is, more than ever before, in the hands of the independent voters.

A Nation-wide survey by the Institute finds that the proportion of independents in the electorate has increased sharply. In 1940 and 1944 one voter in every five (20 per cent) considered himself an independent. Today the ratio is 29 per cent—that is, 29 per cent say they do not look upon themselves as either regular Democrats or Republicans but as voters who disregard party lines in making their choice.

This year no candidate can win without being able to attract the independent voters, for without their support no one can have a clear majority.

The size of the independent vote, as measuerd in surveys by the Institute, shows the following trend. In translating today's percentage into millions of votes a total of 58 million was used as the base, which would be the turnout this November if the same proportion of people vote in 1948 as voted in 1940, the last presidential election before the war.

Proportion of Voters Classifying Themselves As Independents	Per Cent	Number
1940	20%	10,000,000
1944	20	9,000,000
Today	29	16,800,000

Independent voters are found in all income and occupation groups and in all sections of the country, but the proportion runs highest among voters with the most education, and among the younger voters.

Among people who have been to college considerably more than one third call themselves independent, and the proportion is nearly the same among business and professional men and women.

So far as occupation groups are concerned, the farmers indicate the lowest percentage of independent voters, mainly because such a large proportion of the Nation's farmers live in the solidly Democratic South.

Sectionally, a higher proportion of independents is found in the East Central States (Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois) than in any other section.

One reason why the total percentage of independents is higher than in former years is the Wallace vote. A substantial proportion of the followers of Henry A. Wallace classify themselves in the independent category. However, even if all the Wallace supporters—who constitute somewhere between 6 and 8 per cent of the total electorate—were to classify themselves as independents, that would still leave a group of more than 20 per cent of others, non-Wallace independents for whose support the Democratic and Republican parties must bid to win.

The comparative percentage of independent voters in various groups of the population is shown in the following tabulation:

Truman Signs Bills Granting Armed Services 10 Billions

President Truman yesterday signed two bills providing $10,455,588,413 for the Army, Navy and Air Force to defend the United States during the 1949 fiscal year.

The Army-Air Force appropriation totaled $6,705,418,163. The Navy was given $3,750,170,250 to run the world's biggest fleet.

Congress slashed 500 million dollars from the President's request for the Army and Air Force, and $172,568,450 from the amount he wanted for the Navy.

But the Navy bill still will permit the service to build up its strength to 527,014 officers and men, compared to 518,092 this year.

Biggest single item in the Army-Air Force measure is $2,314,342,000 for Army pay. Some $889,486,000 goes for Air Force general expenses and a maximum of 305 million dollars is provided for Air Force civilian personnel.

The bill also carries money for 101 military construction projects throughout the United States and its Territories.

The President also signed bills:

Amending the Railroad Retirement Act to raise by 20 per cent the annunities of retired railroad workers.

Barring private contractors from hauling air mail to and from airports in cities where Postoffice trucks are available.

Extending disability benefits to veterans with chronic and tropical diseases after they left the service. It is assumed the diseases were contracted during service.

Authorizing hte Public Health Service to start a national program of research into dental diseases.

Church Penalizes Hungarian Deputies

Budapest, Hungary, June 24 (U.P.).—Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty's secretary said today that all Hungarian Catholic deputies who supported the nationalization of church schools have been excommunicated.

The Hungarian board of bishops met here today and observers believed they were planning further steps in their resistance to the government nationalization program.

Cardinal Mindszenty's secretary said the excommunication went into effect two weeks ago when Parliament approved the nationalization of church schools.

"All Catholic deputies who cast a positive vote that day were automatically excommunicated," he said. A total of 230 deputies voted in favor of nationalization.

It was learned that Premier Lajos Dinnyes, Joseph Revai, a Communist leader in Parliament, and V. Bodka, an undersecretary in the Education Ministry, are members of the Catholic Church.

Newspapers said the bishops had gathered to decide whether monks and nuns will be allowed to teach in the nationalized schools.

[Dispatches from Vatican City said Cardinal Mindszenty already had enforced a minor excommunication against Hungarian Catholics who supported the government's program. These reports said a minor excommunication, enforced three days ago, included Catholic members of the government, such as Education Minister Gyula Ortutay.

[A minor excommunication, it was explained, means the affected Catholics are barred from taking full part in ceremonies. They may not receive absolution without permission of their bishop. Major excommunication bars Catholics from attending mass, and means they should be avoided by other Catholics.]

Informed sources in Budapest agreed that Parliament's decision to nationalize Hungarian schools would not be affected.

blockade of western Berlin by embargoing coal and steel shipments from the Ruhr to the Soviet zone.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander, took similar action by suspending all trade shipments to eastern Germany.

Bevin Cuts Vacation

London reported that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin cut his vacation short by 12 hours tonight. An official Whitehall source said the British expect some form of "armistice" temporarily will end the East-West fight for Berlin.

Bevin is expected to confer with Prime Minister Clement Atlee and other members of the cabinet's defense committee.

[The United Press said Bevin is expected to confer with U. S. and French authorities on the Berlin crisis.]

(The offiical British informant said "neither Russia nor the Western powers wants to see the Berlin impasse flare up, so we are pretty sure a compromise can and will be reached.)

Germans in Mass Meeting

From 50,000 to 70,000 Germans overflowed Hertha Sports Stadium in the French sector under the slogan "Berliners fight for your freedom." Franz Newmann, a Social Democrat, told the mass meeting "Berlin never will go Communist."

Russian-controlled electricity was cut off to the three western sectors of the city.

Water presssure grew low in the French sector for unexplained reasons.

All freight trains from the west, which carry 2000 tons of food daily, and supplies for western Berlin's two million Germans, were stopped by Soviet action.

The bank accounts of pro-western Germans held in eastern Berlin were threatened with sequestration.

The Russians halted deliveries of fresh milk to western Berlin. The Americans provided powdered milk for hospitals and public welfare institutions.

The Russians cut off deliveries of bread from eastern sector bakeries, but restored deliveries when the Americans cut off the eastern sector's fresh meat supplies.

The Russian actions caught western Berlin with a two weeks supply of food and coal and reduced the electricity supply by half. That made power service sporadic.

The only trickle through the food blockade was a small amount of water-borne traffic.

The American military patrols were sent out to guard against "unrest," it was explained.

"It can lie only in the interests of Communist groups to create panic and hysteria at this time," said an American spokesman.

The Soviet sanctions tied in with the conference of Russia and her seven satellites in Warsaw. If the Russians set up an eastern German state they would naturally want the western allies out of Berlin in the heart of that state.

Clay said the western sectors had enough water supplies of their own, and could furnish about half the normal consumption of electric power. But this supply is dependent on coal which must be shipped in.

Exchange of old Reichsmarks for new Russian-stamped currency proceeded smoothly in eastern Berlin. The exchange of old Reichsmarks for new western-approved Deutsche marks in western Berlin begins tomorrow.

Each German receiving Deutsche marks must accept a stamp on his identification papers. The Russians, who have outlawed the mark in all Berlin, warned in a broadcast that bank balances are frozen in banks in the eastern sector and "anyone who is identified as having taken the western currency will never be able to collect on those frozen accounts when they are released."

Anyone who accepts the stamp will be marked as a person who violated the Soviet order outlawing the Deutsche mark, the broadcast said.

Most newspapers were not affected by the power shutdown, since they have their own power plants. Newsprint supplies, however, must be shipped in.

Power officials said they had turned off the current on "Russian orders."

The Russians already had taken action which prevents supplies from reaching American, British and French personnel by land. The western powers have organized an air supply service for their own personnel.

The Russians announced through their German News Agency tonight that "it is difficult to foresee" when railway traffic will be resumed to Berlin from the west because technical difficulties were "of a far more serious nature than at first expected."

The news agency said the electric supply to Berlin was halted because of damage to two power stations.

British transport officials said there was "no evidence of genuine technical dificulties" in railway operation which the Russians gave as the reason for the food blockade.

U. S. Charges Soviet With 'Provocative Steps'

A State Department spokesman yesterday asserted that Russia is taking "provocative steps" in Berlin in "flagrant violation" of past promises.

Michael J. McDermott, special assistant to Secretary of State Marshall, declared Gen. Lucius Clay is "handling" the Berlin situation, and added:

"The unilateral and provocative steps taken by the Russians, in flagrant violation of existing agreements, make the situation in Berlin more difficult.

"I think you all fully understand where responsibility for this situation rests, and the motivation behind those unilateral acts."

quadrilateral control body in Germany."

Western zone currency reform, the communique said, "is erecting a wall between Germany's western part and the rest of Germany" and is being carried out to aid German monopolists and big property owners "closely connected with American and British capitalist monopolies."

"Having recognized the impossibility of drawing the whole of Germany into the military strategic plans of U. S. A. and Great Britain, the London conference strove to make Germany's western zones a base for its plans by tearing off these zones from the rest of Germany," the communique said.

Earlier, the Moscow radio announced that the meeting of the ministers in Warsaw had ended.

One More Attempt Urged for Agreement

Warsaw, Poland, Friday, June 25 (AP).—Eight European nations under the leadership of Russia called early today for one more attempt by the Big Four Powers to agree on a "provisional, democratic, peace-loving, all-German government."

The conference ended at midnight.

The conference communique did not mention any possibility that Russia would set up a separate government for eastern Germany.

Authoritative sources said Russia and her allies wish to go the limit in working out a solution to the German problem and therefore have held in abeyance plans for setting up an eastern German state.

Well-informed sources said delegates had strongly favored a separate eastern German state.

Western German Reds To Join Government

Frankfurt, Germany, June 24 (AP).—A Communist leader said today Communists of western Germany will take part in any "all-German" government which might be set up in the Russian occupation zone.

Max Reimann, chairman of the Communist Party in the occupation zones of the United States, Britain and France, told a mass meeting of 3000 Germans that the use of two different currencies in Germany "makes the division of Germany complete." He urged Germans to unite for reunification of their country.

Truman Signs Draft Measure

must register. The date has not yet been set, but is expected to be in mid-August.

Most veterans are exempt from draft except in a national emergency, and it is planned to defer married men and those with dependents.

Many details, including what camps will be reopened or expanded, remain unanswered. The Army had prepared answers for these queries, which were to be made public by Army Secretary Kenneth Royall after the President signed the bill.

Last night, however, it was stated that the country will have to wait until Monday for these answers. Royall wants to release them personally at a press conference and he has out-of-town speaking engagements today and Saturday.

National Guard and Naval Reserve recruiting offices here and in some other cities remained open until midnight last night to accept recruits seeking exemption from the draft.

Earlier, there had been some question as to whether yesterday's reserve enlistments would carry such exemption. The act provides that anyone enrolled in an organized, drilling reserve unit on the date the measure became law would be exempt as long as he satisfactorily attends drills.

Some authorities raised the question whether this would not cut off those who enlisted yesterday or those sworn in after the President signed the act. Mr. Truman put his name to the bill at 5:40 p. m., yesterday, after a conference with Royall and Defense Secretary James Forrestal.

However, a spokesman for Forrestal said last night that in the unanimous opinion of Office of Defense lawyers, anyone accepted up until midnight last night in an "organized reserve unit" would be exempt.

The question remained: what constitutes an organized reserve unit. Congress left this for Forrestal to determine. Obviously, however, it was intended to apply to the National Guard and the Navy and Marine Corps organized units, which have weekly, paid, drills and summer camps or cruises.

It is not at all clear, though, whether the exemption applies to men enrolled in the Army and Air Force Organized Reserve. Some of the latter units will begin holding weekly paid drills next month. The test is expected to be whether the unit holds 48 paid drills a year.

The new law authorizes the Army to expand to 837,000 officers and men, plus 110,000 18-year-old trainees. Appropriations, however, limit Army strength next year to 790,000, not counting the trainees.

Navy-Marine Corps strength is limited to 676,882, plus 36,000 trainees, with the total held to 588,000 officers, men and trainees next year. The Air Force is allowed 502,000, plus 15,000 trainees, but is not expected to go above 460,000 next year.

Enlistment of the 18-year-old trainees is expected to begin early in July. After serving 12 months in continental United States, the youths will be transferred to the Reserve for six years and are exempt from the draft.

Most, if not all, of the men to be drafted next year will go into the Army. The Navy and Air Force believe they can get the men they need by voluntary enlistments.

Veterans who had at least 90 days' service between Pearl Harbor and VJ-Day are exempt in peacetime. So are pre-Pearl Harbor and post-VJ-Day veterans with 12 months' service. If the latter had at least three months' service, they can become exempt by enrolling in the reserve—in an organized unit if available.

Marshall Plan Compact With Britain Lags

London, June 24 (U.P.).—The government indicated today in Commons that it might have to delay final approval of a Marshall Plan agreement beyond the July 3 deadline.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison told Commons Washington talks were not progressing as rapidly as expected.

"The government will insure that the house has adequate time to consider the agreement before debate takes place," Morrison said. "It would be preferable to go past the date of July 3 rather than to rush through an agreement of such vital character."

Morrison said, however, that both the United States and Britain earnestly desired to reach an agreement, and that it was possible a pact might be concluded in time. Under terms of the original agreement, Marshall Plan aid to Britain would be suspended July 3 pending signing of a pact.

Earlier today, a foreign office spokesman said Washington talks were progressing favorably, and that he hoped a pact would be concluded this weekend to give Parliament five days to consider its terms.

U. S.-French Aid Talks 'Proceeding Favorably'

Paris, June 24 (U.P.).—A Foreign Office spokesman said today negotiations were "proceeding favorably" in Washington between France and the United States on an agreement governing Marshall Plan aid to France.

Dr. Stuart, China Envoy, Resigns Post

Peiping, China, June 24 (U.P.).—United States Ambassador Dr. John Leighton Stuart announced today, on his seventy-second birthday, that he has submitted his resignation to Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Dr. Stuart, born in China and a missionary-educator here since 1905, said he will resume the presidency of Yenching University in Peiping, if his resignation is accepted. He was president of Yenching from 1919 until after the war, when he was named Ambassador.

Stuart repeatedly has attacked both the Chinese government and the Communists for failing to settle their differences peaceably.

In Nanking, United States Embassy officials said there was no indication Marshall would act on the resignation in the near future.

Civilian Killings Laid To Government Planes

Nanking, June 24 (AP).—Chinese legislators charged today more civilians were killed by government warplanes in Kaifeng than by Communist troops who captured the city. Telegrams from Chenghsien said a great number died during Monday's bombing after the Communists broke into the city.

Legislators asked: "Who was responsible?"

The newspaper, Hsin Min Pao, said Honan Gov. Liu Mo-en died in the fighting. He led the defense. Kaifeng, capital of Honan, was the first provincial capital in China proper to fall to the Reds.

A reliable source said Defense Minister Ho Ying-chin told legislative members that President Chiang Kai-shek was "responsible for strategic orders." The Honan representatives declared movement of Honan divisions into Shantung Province had exposed Kaifeng.

Military authorities showed concern over the fate of Tzeyang, 140 miles northeast of Kaifeng. They said Communist Gen. Chen Yi was converging on Tzeyang with 500,000 troops. Loss of the rail town, they said, would leave the central China plains wide open for a Communist drive on Nanking, 270 miles away.

Malay Troops Added in Fight On Terrorism

Singapore, June 24 (AP). — Military and police forces were increased in the Malayan federation tonight to combat terrorism that has taken 30 lives. The British blame Communists for the outbreak.

Sir Edward Gent said the security forces would be "armed to the limit" and indicated the government plans an intensive drive against Communists.

The Straits Times reported that 22 military vehicles loaded with British soldiers reached Bahru from Singapore tonight, en route north. A gurkha force of 160 reached Penang from India by ship.

Five clashes between police and armed raiders were reported in Malaya tonight. No one was killed. Four Chinese gunmen killed another Chinese in Sitiawan district last night.

Md. Judge Urges News Restrictions

Atlantic City, June 24 (AP).—Judge Joseph Sherbow of the Baltimore Supreme bench urged tonight that all Maryland courts use a Baltimore rule which restricts news stories about crime.

In an address on "Contempt of Court by Publication, Broadcast and Television" prepared for the annual meeting of the Maryland State Bar Association, the judge suggested some modification of the Baltimore rule.

Generally, his proposal would prevent publication of facts and evidence which come to light after arrest of the accused.

As he illustrated it:

"If the revolver (used in a shooting) is found before the arrest, this may be published. If found after the arrest, it may not be published unless mentioned at the magistrate's hearing.

"Whatever was known prior to the arrest regarding the crime may be published, even if it is in the paper or on the radio after the arrest. If it comes to light after the arrest, then its publication must await the preliminary hearing or actual trial."

The Baltimore Supreme Bench, made up of circuit judges who preside over State courts in the city, has two rules which subject police, attorneys and newspapers to punishment for contempt if they divulge or publish certain details about crimes before the case comes up for trial.

Pictures Restricted

Officers, for example, may not say and newspapers may not report that a man has confessed or denied a crime.

The rules also restrict pictures of the accused.

The Court of Appeals, Maryland's highest tribunal, has proposed that the restrictions be extended to all State courts.

The restrictions prohibit pictures in courtrooms, in or near the courthouse during trials, and at the jail. An accused cannot be photographed anywhere while in custody without his consent.

Also prohibited are:

"Issuance by police authorities, the State's attorney, counsel for the defense, or any other person having official connection with a case, of any statement relative to the conduct of the accused, statements or admissions by the accused, or other matters bearing upon the issues to be tried.

"Issuance of any statement or forecast as to the future course of action of either the prosecuting authorities or the defense relative to conduct of the trial.

"Publication of any matter which may prevent a fair trial, improperly influence the court or the jury or tend in any manner to interfere with the administration of justice."

Judge Sherbow said some of these provisions are too broad. He suggested the picture rule be simplified to prevent photographs of an accused while he is in custody, deleting the "consent" clause.

Reframing Proposed

He reframed the other regulations into a single statement prohibiting:

"The issuance by police authorities, the State's attorney, counsel for the defense, or any other persons having official connection with the case, after the arrest of the accused, of any statements or admissions made by the accused, or of any statements relative to the case or the past record of the accused, or the issuance of any statement or forecast as to the future course of action of either the prosecuting authorities or the defense relative to the conduct of the trial."

Judge Sherbow put the legal profession's arguments for such rules in this vein:

"Trial by newspaper is an evil that perverts justice. It is a vicious practice that often does irreparable harm.

"A misleading headline or a distorted statement of alleged facts may make a subtle but lasting impression on a juror that cannot be effaced by evidence produced at the trial.

"Just as an independent judiciary does not mean one free from criticism, so freedom of the press does not mean license to publish indiscriminate 'news' about a criminal case.

"There need not be a clash between the principles of freedom of the press and the right to a fair trial.

"(A defendant's) right to a fair trial, free from outside influence, must be jealously safeguarded . . . When the accused is denied this inherent right because of improper publicity, it is the duty of the courts to protect him."

Hauptmann Case Cited

Judge Sherbow said newspapers and other media cannot be depended upon to set up high standards and follow them in reporting crime news. Past experience, he said, proves it. He cited the Hauptmann murder and kidnaping trial.

"Some restraint on the publication of news of crime is necessary," he declared.

"Too many readers obtain their impression of events from headlines and the first paragraphs of a newspaper story.

"A new medium, radio, has entered the field—and now television. Statements on the air, with every sentence the equivalent of a headline, may make lasting impressions, and with television the opportunity for influencing the public cannot be measured.

"From the point of view of good reporting, leaving aside the concept of ordinary decency, it is far better to tone down the publication or news of criminal cases than give sensational display to details of crime."

Judge Sherbow said present Maryland laws protect the information services from abuse of the contempt power by courts.

"Clear and Present Danger"

He cited rulings of the Supreme Court of the United States that there must be a "clear and present danger" of obstructing justice before a publication may be held in contempt for its comment on a trial.

He added:

"Just what constitutes a clear and present danger in the trial of a criminal case has not yet been decided by the Supreme Court.

"It may well be that in dealing with a prisoner on trial the court might view the clear and present danger rule in a light quite different from that where criticism of a judge is involved."

On the taking of pictures, Judge Sherbow declared:

"The liberty of the press does not include the privilege of taking advantage of the incarceration of a person accused of crime to photograph his face and figure against his will."

Pictures should not be permitted while an accused is in custody, the judge said, because being in custody he has no opportunity to take measures against being photographed.

Judge Sherbow gave these as some of the guides he would lay down in reporting crime news:

"Every event up to and including the fact of arrest may be published.

"Those who engage (in the pursuit) may be interviewed and their statements published.

"No opinions as to guilt or innocence may be published.

"At the time of arrest, any statement blurted out by the accused that he was guilty or innocent should not be published.

"When he is taken up to the police station the charge on the police blotter may be published in ordinary everyday English.

"Everything brought up at the preliminary hearing (including a confession) may be published.

"At no time may any statements as to the past criminal record of the accused be published unless it is a part of the evidence offered at the preliminary hearing.

"The newspapers may publish the news as gathered from eyewitnesses and the policemen . . . so long as they do not publish opinions.

"Traffic cases should not be covered by the rules.

"When the trial is concluded, there may be free discussion and criticism. The end of the trial means when the verdict is returned by the jury or the court. It does not mean when a motion for new trial has been heard or decided, or when an appeal has been concluded by the decision of the Court of Appeals.

"The State's attorney may announce the date when a case will be heard by a magistrate or laid before the grand jury, but he may not comment on the facts or predict the outcome or otherwise publicly prejudge the case."

Says Editors Agree

Judge Sherbow said news editors agree with the legal profession on "attaining the common object of the rules."

"All agree," he added, "that outside influences that tend to create prejudice, emotion, or influence, no matter how subtle, should be eliminated.

"We do not want censorship in any form, yet we do not wish to see even unconscious prejudice or influence created by newspapers or radio publication of matters pending in the courts.

"Reasonable editors will always be willing to discuss with the court any difficulties presented by a particular trial or unusual situation.

"The power of contempt . . . must be used to protect that part of the press which respects the real object of judicial proceedings against the unfair competition of other agencies of publicity which recklessly disregard that object.

"There should be no apprehension on the part of honest and competent newspaper officials in the performance of their duty.

"There should be no feeling of harassment . . . no need for constant consultation of legal counsel as to what should be published.

"In dealing with borderline cases, newspaper publishers, editors and reporters should bear in mind that the accused must receive a fair trial and govern the published material accordingly.

"At the same time the courts should rarely invoke the power of contempt . . . and then only when the violation is deliberate and serious."

Missouri Alumni Pay Honor to Late Rep. Zimmerman

Members of the University of Missouri Alumni Association yesterday paid tribute to the late Representative Orville Zimmerman, who died April 7.

Zimmerman, who received his law degree from the University in 1911 and represented the Tenth Missouri District in Congress for 14 years prior to his death, was eulogized by John T. Barker, of the Wardman Park Hotel, former State attorney general.

Barker, who spoke on "Missouri Personalities" at the luncheon in the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw., said that despite the "volunteer Jesse Jemeses who keep cropping up "there was no question of the original being dead. Barker said that William H. Wallace, who had been prosecutor in the trial of Frank James following Jesse's death and had seen the dead outlaw, had assured him of that.

The Association will not meet again until September 30.

Newsmen Pick Group to Protest Restrictions

Thirty-five Prince Georges and Montgomery County newsmen last night unanimously denounced court-advanced proposals to restrict publication and broadcast of Maryland crime news.

Meeting at Silver Hill, Prince Georges County, the group named a six-man committee to forward its protest in resolution form to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

A standing committee on rules and procedure of the Court of Appeals has advanced proposals on releasing crime news which, newsmen said, would make State-wide the restrictions now in effect in Baltimore City.

The meeting, held at the Quonset Inn, was a joint session of the two county press associations, called for the express purpose of formulating a protest over the proposed restrictions.

Restrictions Proposed

The restrictions proposed by the court committee would, among other things:

1. Prevent publication of a picture of an accused person without his consent.

2. Prohibit anyone officially connected with a criminal case from releasing statements made by the accused, or telling of the accused's actions, or predicting the future course of a trial.

3. Prohibit officers from giving and newspapers from publishing evidence brought to light after the accused is arrested.

Philip J. Austensen, president of the Prince Georges County Press Association and reporter for The Washington Post, who presided, told the editors, publishers, reporters and radio executives the restriction would seriously endanger freedom of the press throughout the State.

Members of Committee

The meeting was originally scheduled by the Prince Georges County Press Association, but the Montgomery County Press Association was invited to attend.

Named to the committee to frame the protecting resolution were G. Bowie McCeney, publisher of the Laurel News-Leader; Joseph M. Mathias, attorney and legislative chairman of the Montgomery County Press Association; John W. Coffman, jr., editor of the Takoma Park Journal and president of the Montgomery association; Samuel A. Wyvill, editor of the Marlboro Enquirer-Gazette; Joseph Brechner of Silver Spring, general manager of Radio Station WGAY, and Charles A. McAleer, reporter for the Evening Star of Washington.

Could Harm Defendants

McCeney said the restrictions would be not only "objectionable from a newspaper standpoint but possibly prejudicial to the interests of defendants" who, he said, may benefit from full publication of facts surrounding their cases.

McCeney asserted news reports of crimes may prove as big a deterrent to crime as a court conviction and any restriction on crime publicity, he added, might lead to more crime throughout the State.

Copies of the resolution were directed to be sent to the Court of Appeals, its judges individually, the court's standing committee on rules and procedures, and to the Maryland Bar Association now meeting in Atlantic City, N. J.

Following passage of the resolution, the group heard a general discussion of how news restrictions of the past had affected newspapers and the public generally.

D. C. Ordered To Cut Costs committee, "department heads must for the present time postpone consideration of expansion of services or beginning of new services."

Must Turn In Estimates

Department heads must turn into the District budget office, on or before July 15, 1948, a list of increases and decreases that will be included in the 1950 operations budget estimates, together with a complete list with the rough cost of capital outlay. Thus, the Commissioners will have an early start on reducing proposed spending.

The Commissioners called for "realistic" estimates of 1950 expenditures, and added:

"If these preliminary estimates exceed the revenue by an appreciable amount, it will be necessary to set ceilings in the 1950 estimates for all departments."

Such an action, officials observed, might well result in a reduction not only of operations, but of jobs as well.

In Electric Chair

Griffin Now Faces Death On July 9

Baxter Griffin, 42, condemned murderer whose execution date was uncertain for a week, was sentenced yesterday to die in the District Jail electric chair on July 9.

Griffin was found guilty of first-degree murder in the "Blackjack game" shooting of Lee Hunter in February, 1947.

Griffin was to be electrocuted on June 11. But the execution date was vacated by the United States Court of Appeals pending decision on an eleventh hour appeal move. The Appeals Court failed to set a date, although the appeal was dismissed.

For that reason, Griffin's counsel quickly filed legal papers stating that Griffith was being held illegally since a court cannot sentence a man to death and then not state the date on which the execution is to be carried out.

After reviewing the facts, Justice Alexander Holtzorf of District Court apparently remedied the possible legal error by setting the July 9 date.

More than a dozen policemen and two bloodhounds scoured the woods near Mount Vernon yesterday in search of an armed hitchhiker who beat and robbed a 55-year-old carpenter early in the morning.

By late evening, the searching party, which had thrown a ring around the area from Mount Vernon west to Route No. 1 and from Route No. 235 south to the Potomac, had still not seen the fugitive. Two shots fired at them during the day, however, indicated he was still in the woods.

State and Fairfax County police were joined in the search by Sergt. G. G. Jefferson, superintendent of State Work Camp No. 13 in Woodbridge, Va., and two bloodhounds from the camp.

Jefferson said Vincent's trousers and wallet were found beside the trail.

Object of the hunt was described only as a white man about 20 years old, who allegedly beat Gus Vincent, 665 F st. ne., and robbed him of his pants and $5 about 7 a. m. after Vincent had picked him up near the 14th Street Bridge.

Jefferson said Vincent's trousers and wallet were found beside the trail.

Vincent told State police he had stopped his car about a mile west of Mount Vernon. He said he was then struck a blow on the back of the head, and beaten with some instrument.

The youth ordered Vincent at gunpoint to take off his trousers, and made off into the woods with the pants and a wallet containing about $5, police learned.

A passerby took Vincent to Fort Belvoir Hospital, where he was given emergency treatment and transferred to Mount Alto Hospital. His condition there was termed "satisfactory" last night, though he was suffering from cuts and bruises on the head and face.

Message Suggests Fire Was Cause Of DC-6 Crash

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—Sound experts have deciphered a message that might indicate fire aboard the United Air Lines DC-6 transport which crashed last Thursday with the loss of 43 lives.

This was reported today by W. A. Patterson, United president.

Automatic radio recordings of two-way radio conversations that day with all United planes in the Mount Carmel, Pa., area, where the DC-6 crashed, have been analyzed, Patterson said. He continued:

"Although indistinct and not clearly discernible, a message at 12:32 p. m., EST, was deciphered as follows:

"'New York . . . New York . . . (followed by a word which could be interpreted as fire) . . . fire extinguishers . . . forward . . . pit.'

"The next message was at 12:33½ p. m. It was: 'Emergency descent.'"

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

11:45 a. m.—TVA Director Gordon R. Klapp.

Noon—Octavio A. Vallarino, new Ambassador of Panama.

12:15 p. m.—The President signed a bill to provide for dental research with Dr. H. E. Washburn, president of the American Dental Association as a witness.

3:15 p. m.—Secretary of Defense Forrestal and Secretary of Army Royall.

Kinsey Imposters Question Women On Sex Life

New York, June 24 (U.P.).—Imposters, posing as interviewers for the Kinsey Report, have been questioning women about their intimate sex life out of motives that were not scientific an article in the magazine Today's Woman said today.

The article was written by an anonymous woman who had been interviewed by Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey for his second, forthcoming book, "Sexual Behavior of the Human Female."

"One such unidentified man made his way through an entire New York office building, where everybody fell for his talk, including all of the models of the famous agency housed there," she wrote.

"And recently several young men making similar false claims have been approaching students on the campus of Columbia University."

The writer said her interview with Dr. Kinsey had helped her to face squarely the facts of her sex life, although, after three hours of questions, she felt "utterly drained of emotion."

14 States Alerted in Search For 2 Escaped Md. Prisoners

Two of five prisoners who escaped from the Prince Georges County Jail at Upper Marlboro Wednesday night, after overpowering a jailer, were sought over a 14-State area last night.

County police, who recaptured three of the men only a short time after the escape, alerted authorities in all States connected with the Eastern States teletype network yesterday, after an all-night manhunt in the area of the break proved fruitless.

Still at large were John T. Ford, 35, of 1415 57th ave., Chapel Oaks, Md., and Preston Wallace, jr., 19, 4600 Gallatin st., Hyattsville. Ford was serving a 30-day sentence for assault, while Wallace was awaiting grand jury action on two housebreaking charges.

While the search for Ford and Wallace continued, their three companions in the break were returned yesterday to the county jail from Hyattsville, where they were kept overnight following their capture. They were Charles McManus, 25, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Maurice Irving, 28, 1214 Eastern ave. ne., and Alfred Coleman, 19, 1238 Delaware ave. sw.

Meanwhile, the break was blamed yesterday by Sheriff T. Ward Martin on what he termed a combination of carelessness by Jailer William B. Richards and lack of an adequate alarm system in the jail. Richards was overpowered as he was returning Wallace to his cell, after having permitted the prisoner to use a telephone in the lobby of the jail. This is usually allowed, Martin said, when there are two jailers.

Police described Ford as 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, and has a dark brown complexion. Wallace was described as being 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 135 pounds, and having a dark brown complexion.

Healthy Youth Seen Need Of Country

What this country needs is a generation of robustly healthy youth, 350 high school leaders from 48 States, the District, Sweden, Argentina, Canal Zone and Hawaii were told last night.

Here for the first postwar conference of the National Association of Student Councils, the student officers and 75 faculty advisers were offered the following formula for being good citizens:

"Be mentally strong, domestically true, politically sound, vocationally correct, morally brave and spiritually deep," counseled Dr. Willis A. Sutton, former Atlanta, Ga., superintendent of schools and a founder of NASC. Occasion was a banquet at Coolidge High School.

The group, guests of high schools here, will be addressed by Attorney General Tom Clark today at 1 p. m. in the Department of Justice Great Hall. The three-day conference closes with tours of Arlington, Alexandria and Mount Vernon this afternoon.

Discussion groups yesterday considered problems of organizing student councils and making them effective.

Quick Gets His Broker's License Back

The District Real Estate Commission yesterday bowed to a District Court decision and withdrew its order revoking the broker's license of Mitchell Quick, 2413 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

At the same time, however, the commission suspended Quick's license for 90 days.

On November 20, the commission revoked Quick's license after finding him guilty of "fraudulent and dishonest dealings" in the sale of a house to two veterans.

It was charged that Quick had arranged the sale of a house at 614 19th st. ne. to two former GIs for $250 higher than the Veterans Administration appraisal.

Quick went to District Court the following day and appealed the decision on the ground that testimony taken at the commission's hearing did not justify its conclusions.

The District Court on Wednesday overruled the rent commission on the revocation order and directed a 90-day suspension instead.

Engineer Sends Food Parcel to Ex-KingFerdinand

Falls City, Nebr., June 24 (AP).—When Gus Phillips, now a Falls City railroad engineer, left Bulgaria as a "penniless boy" to come to the United States, King Ferdinand was on the throne.

Today a food package was on its way to the former King, sent by the same Gus Phillips. The aged monarch, Phillips said, had requested it.

Phillips said the request was contained in a letter just received from Ferdinand, who abdicated in 1918 in favor of his son, Boris. Ferdinand now lives in an old castle in Coburg, Germany.

The letter was in reply to one he sent the former King last December, Phillips said.

Ferdinand's letter said, in part: "On account of my great age and rather poor health, I am very glad and thankful when my dear overseas friends send a CARE package to me. Perhaps you also could help me by such a parcel."

Four GWU Students Injured When Classroom Ceiling Falls

The Washington Post

LAW CLASS CRACKS DOWN—A George Washington University law student injured yesterday when a classroom ceiling collapsed is lifted into a rescue squad ambulance

Four students were injured yesterday when a piece of plaster ceiling fell in a classroom at Stockton Hall, George Washington University Law School.

James E. Fitzsimmons, 33, of 532 20th st. nw., a partially disabled Navy veteran, suffered shock, and Ralph Kuchler, 23, of 2019 Massachusetts ave. nw., sustained scalp cuts. Both weer taken to George Washington University Hospital.

John G. Hoyt, 24, of 3004 P st. nw., and John H. MacMillan, 35, of 35 Williams lane, Chevy Chase, Md., bruised by the falling plaster, were treated by private physicians.

The third floor classroom was closed pending inspection.

Building employes, who swept up almost a barrelful of fallen plaster, said the intense heat could have caused the plaster to expand, crack and fall.

Professor S. Chesterfield Oppenheim was launched on a two-hour lecture on negotiable instruments before 175 students when the ceiling fell.

Cleveland Man Killed by Bolt Of Lightning

Hot Springs, Va., June 24 (AP).—John L. Morrissey, 68-year-old Cleveland businessman, was killed here today when struck by lightning while playing golf.

Three companions were stunned by the bolt. They were:

J. W. Fribley, president of the Cleveland Screw Co.

Clarence Needham, vice president of the Chandler Products Co., Cleveland.

Frank Kauffman, jr., of the Cleveland Cap Screw Co.

The golfers were standing in the open fairway of the Homestead Hotel golf course at the time of the accident, hotel officials reported. Companions said Morrissey was struck on the head by the bolt, which then glanced off and into the ground.

Morrissey was vice president of the Ferry Cap and Set Screw Co. of Cleveland. He is survived by his widow, whom hotel officials said had accompanied him here, and a son, Robert.

Prominent in Cleveland golfing circles, he was a member of the Cleveland Athletic Club and the Canterbury Golf Club. His Cleveland address was given as Lincoln Boulevard, Shaker Heights.

He was attending a convention of Industry Services Bureau representatives here.

Latin America Warns ILO on Communism

San Francisco, June 24 (AP).—Warnings that communism may spread in Latin America and that the Marshall Plan is threatened by "new types of economies in European countries" reached the International Labor Organization conference today.

They were made by delegates from eight nations who reviewed social, political and economic conditions in their own countries.

Julio B. Pons, employer delegate from Uruguay, said there is danger of communism spreading in Latin America. He said those countries may need help from the democracies to the north.

"Forces are operating (in Latin America, today," he said, "that are killing initiative and hitching humanity to the wages of tyranny."

Pedro Chapa, employer delegate from Mexico, said the ILO annual report should mention that the Marshall Plan is threatened by Russian tactics. The result, he said, will be to make ideologocial struggles in the world more painful.

The Right Hon. George Isaacs, British government delegate, said ERP has the approval of the great majority of trade unions.

He said they had reached their decision on their own initiative, and not at the dictates of a poltical party or at government request.

Gilpatric Named China Mission Aid

Shanghai, China, June 24 (U.P.).—Roger D. Lapham, chief of the United States Aid Mission in China, today announced the appointment of Donald S. Gilpatric as deputy director of the 400-million-dollar program.

Gilpatric has been director of the United States-Chinese Relief Mission, in charge of a 60-million-dollar post-UNRRA program in China. This ageney will end its operations June 30.

Snack Bar's Close Stirs Passengers

Capital Transit passengers who use the terminal at Wisconsin ave. and the District line are aroused over a company order to close up a snack bar which Thomas M. Hoyle has been operating for four years, it was disclosed yesterday.

Hoyle, who lives at 5514 Wisconsin ave., Chevy Chase, says the company's order doesn't matter much to him, but his customers have complained. Petitions, he reports, have been circulated by bus riders, drivers and others asking the company to reconsider.

Vice President E. Cleveland Giddings of Capital Transit says:

"We need the space at Wisconsin ave. and we believe the majority of people will be better served by using it for terminal facilities than if we continued the food service. There are other eating places in the vicinity."

Triple Charges Face Man Who Stayed on Scene

His individuality in remaining on the scene where a disorderly crowd was reported, yesterday led to charges of assault on an officer, possession of numbers slips, and disorderly conduct against Robert E. Young, 48, of 4920 Nash st. ne.

When a police scout car was sent to break up a disorderly crowd at 48th st. and Deane ave. ne., on Wednesday, Officer T. J. Thomas said in Municipal Court yesterday, Young was the only one there when police arrived.

Thomas said Young hit him on the arm and in the abdomen, and said that numbers slips were found on Young, who was held under $1500 for a hearing on June 28. Last month, court records show, Young pleaded guilty to possession of numbers slips and paid a $50 fine.

Warwick Cancer Clinic Moves to New Quarters

Warwick Memorial Clinic for Cancer and Allied Diseases will move today from quarters on Garfield Hospital grounds to the old George Washington University Hospital Building at 1339 H st. nw.

The move consolidates previously announced plans for affiliation between the clinic and the George Washington University School of Medicine. This is expected to reduce cost of operation of the clinc, which is maintained for diagnosis and treatment of persons who have suspicions or symptoms of cancer, an official said.

The clinic will prove of educational value to the GW hospital staff and medical students, Mrs. Claire E. Kennedy, clinic administrative assistant, said.

Another clinic is operated by the Warwick Foundation for periodic checkups of persons who have no malignant growths or other positive symptoms of cancer, at GW's new hospital at Washington Circle. Both clinics are under supervision of Dr. Calvin T. Klopp, who is also GW assistant professor of surgery and supervisor of the cancer program.

Adventist Stresses Faith as Peace Aid

"World peace, safety and happiness will never be realized so long as men's hearts are not yielded to the transforming power of the Spirit of God," Elder H. J. Detwiler, president of the Potomac Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, said last night.

He opened the 10-day camp meeting and conference session in Takoma Park, Md., being conducted in the Sligo Church and on the campus of the Washington Missionary College.

The principles lived out by Christ himself, when on earth, must be lived today, he said.

Elder Detwiler charged delegates to study diligently the Scriptures and be faithful in proclaiming prophecies that "throw light upon the present world situation and give hope for the future." He declared that the Christian Church today is entering upon its greatest work of all ages.

The conference business session to be attended by representatives of 50 churches throughout Virginia, the District and parts of Maryland will organize today at 9:30 a. m. The regular camp meeting program today will be highlighted by a talk by Elder N. C. Wilson, president of North American Division of the General Conference, at 11 a. m.

The afternoon session at 3 p. m. will hear Elder D. A. McAdams, general conference associate publishing secretary. Elder D. A. Ochs, president of the Columbia Union Conference, will speak tonight at 7:30.

An ordination service to invest six young men as ministers will be held at 3 p. m. Saturday.

Gladys Swarthout To Sing July 30 With Symphony

Famed mezzo-soprano Gladys Swarthout will sing on July 30 at the final concert of the Sunset Symphonies series at the Watergate, the National Symphony Orchestra Association announced yesterday.

The association noted that for her appearance at the Watergate last summer, an estimated 32,000 persons jammed the Watergate, rented every available canoe, and packed other free listening space nearby.

First program in this year's series will be Sunday, July 4, with Dorothy Maynor as soloist. Concerts follow each Wednesday, Friday and Sunday night until July 30, with Miss Swarthout appearing on the last of the Friday programs.

Seats are on sale at the National Symphony box office and Kitt's Music Store, 1330 G st. nw.

Armenian Students Convene Here Today

The Armenian Students Association of America will hold its thirty-ninth annual convention at the Statler Hotel here today, Saturday, and Sunday.

Three gold medals will be presented to undergraduates selected as outstanding in scholarship at the annual banquet to be held at the hotel Saturday night, to be followed by the traditional ball.

Arthur Dadian, president of the Washington chapter, will be convention chairman.

Rays Of Hope

In these dog days, when the notion seems prevalent that the whole solar system is going to the dogs, a few crumbs of hope may be discerned to help set the world's tail awagging. These tidbits may not seem momentous individually. Nevertheless, coming as they do from the news pages of a single day, they suggest that some semblance of sanity exists, at least in the realm of foreign affairs. Here is a decalogue of modest cheer:

1. In Frankfurt, Germany, the formidable wire fence separating Allied headquarters from the rest of the city was torn down. Ever since the central offices of the American zone of occupation were established in Frankfurt, this fence has been a symbol of the conqueror vs. conquered relationship.

2. In Munich and Frankfurt, as a result of the new currency decree, hoarded goods appeared in the shops, and the German consumers suddenly had more food and household goods available for purchase than at any time since the end of the war.

3. In Berlin, the Russians agreed to hold four-power talks on German currency reform.

4. In Belgrade, it was announced that the Danube Conference would be held in Belgrade, after all, thus making possible the first major international meeting "behind the iron curtain" in more than a year.

5. In London, the United Kingdom and Ireland, bitterly at odds during and since the war, agreed "in principle" on a trade treaty under which each will help the other.

6. Also in London, trade figures were published showing that Britain exported a million tons of coal in May and drastically reduced the gap between imports and exports.

7. In New Delhi, India, when the first Indian Governor-General assumed office, the retiring British Governor-General, Lord Mountbatten, was all but mobbed by friendly, cheering throngs as he left India.

8. In Jerusalem, the Arabs and the Israel government agreed on a "no-man's land," thus strengthening the hope that an international status may be established soon for the Holy City.

9. Elsewhere in Palestine, the Haganah asserted its authority for the first time against the illegal activities of the Irgun, Zionist extremists.

10. In Greece a determined attack on the guerilla trouble-makers raised new hope that peace and recovery are on the way.

Tongues Of Angels

From the official transcripts of speeches at the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia one might gather that the issue before the Nation is one of democracy and free enterprise. But in listening to the same speeches on the radio we had the impression that it was merely another case of politicians versus the language of Chaucer, Shakespeare and Milton. This being so, we are gratified to note that language, although getting, to be sure, somewhat the worst of it on points, is taking no such beatings as it used to receive from the Indiana-cum-Wall-Street accent of the late Wendell Willkie or from the Groton-cum-Harvard accent of the late President Roosevelt.

To give you an idea of what we mean let us reproduce, phonetically, a sentence or so from Mr. Willkie's famous report in October, 1942, on his trip around the world.

No sech uthr Wessern nechun hes sech a rezzivohr. Uhrs mus be use tuneify the peepulz a th' yearth in th' yumin ques fer freedim, en juztiz . . . Th' prezzivechun uthiz rezzivohr of gut will izza sekrud rezpunzibilty, nut unly twerda aspuring peepluz uthey yearth, butwerd ur on sunz wore fytink this batul uh evhurry cuntinunt.

And this from one of the speeches of Mr. Roosevelt:

I hahv zeen waw. I hahv zeen waw on lond un sea. I hahv zeen blud running from the wounded. I hahv zeen mayn coughing out theuh gahst lungs. I hahv zeen the' in the mud . . . I hahv zeen the aguny of muthuhs and whyvz. I hayt waw!

At Philadelphia this year the mother tongue has received no such drubbings, except from Mr. Joe Martin in his address as permanent chairman. There is no doubt, however, that when Mr. Martin went into his exordium he had the language against the ropes. It is even possible that, if Mr. Martin's manuscript had been a few pages longer, the mother tongue might have gone down for the full count. From a blow-by-blow account of this exciting, if one-sided, round we quote the following, which should be read larghetto.

Win this defec is remuded nex Navembuh, the Murkin peepuh wih cimplit the job of owstink frim Washitun the diszipuhs of govvamen by guess. In please otheh plannuhz who've nevuh hodny planz, the Murkin peepul weh chewzin adminstraychin thet nose whehiz goin . . .

Had it not been for Mr. Martin and the temporary chairman, Mr. Green, a bit of a bully boy, honors might now be almost easy between the language and the Republican politicos. More than once indeed we felt that a really fair-minded referee would already have awarded the battle to the language on fouls.

Standard Bearer

There was no stopping Thomas E. Dewey after he put foot in Philadelphia. The delegates saw in operation a smooth-running organization which worked with effortless efficiency. The best tribute to him and his coadjutors was that the chief slogan of this convention has been: Stop Dewey. That was an admission that the New Yorker was marching inexorably to nomination. If the other contenders could have joined forces, they might have put a crimp in Dewey's progress, but such a combination called for self-abnegation and agreement upon a dark horse. Neither element was present. On the platform, Mr. Stassen remained hopeful and self-satisfied even when Mr. Dewey was within hailing distance of victory. And the dark horse stayed stubbornly in his stall when the rivals were straining on the home stretch. His name, of course, was Senator Vandenberg, the man who, if he had given the word a month ago, might conceivably have won the blue ribbon. As it happened, however, the New Yorker from the start simply had to await the collapse of his opponents.

Without a question, Governor Dewey is a redoubtable candidate for the Presidency. He is not the same man who went down to defeat before the ailing but spectacular Roosevelt. He is a seasoned campaigner who has the faculty of learning, even of overlearning, from his experience. He will not repeat the mistakes of his tilt with Roosevelt. What is more, he has studied and absorbed the Roosevelt method, which was to taunt his opponent, and put him on the defensive. Self-confidence and shrewdness are now part of the Dewey make-up. It is growth rather than metamorphosis. And he has been helped in the evolution by as clever and as clicking a team as this country has witnessed in action in a generation. The team has completely cured the New Yorker of what four years ago seemed to be an incurable self-consciousness.

But the greatest advantage that Mr. Dewey possesses for his aspiration is his four extra years of service. As Governor of New York, he has won many encomiums. He has given the Empire State economical government. He has picked the best men available for the high posts in his administration. His adviser on foreign affairs, for instance, is John Foster Dulles, who has been a tower of strength in the working out of this Nation's bipartisan foreign policy. Mr. Dulles would undoubtedly be the next Secretary of State if Mr. Dewey were elected President. To top all, Governor Dewey's attitude since his defeat four years ago has not been illiberal. This was demonstrated in full view of the country at large when he pricked the hysterically blown up balloon of the Mundt bill in his debate with Mr. Stassen.

Mr. Dewey is a man of organization rather than a man of conviction. He was nominated at the height of a terrific thunderstorm, which left a rare rainbow over Convention Hall, and the delegates sought to read the omen according to their several prepossessions. Far be it from us at this time to suggest anything more than that Mr. Dewey, if he were elected President, would seek to duplicate in Washington the ways and methods he has used in Albany with conspicuous success.

Threat To Israel

The tragic break in the cabinet of the Israeli government brings into the open another grave threat to peace and stability in the Near East. The Jewish groups which took over power in the Jewish section of Palestine when the British withdrew are bedeviled by a terrorist faction within their midst. The majority group, which is in control of the government, is eager to work with the United Nations in observing the truce arranged by Count Folke Bernadotte and in effecting peaceful relations with the Arabs. But the extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi apparently has no such intentions. Its unreasoned insistence on landing arms in Israel in spite of the terms of the truce has set Jew against Jew in the Holy Land, even as Arab was previously working against Arab.

It took a great deal of courage on the part of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and his colleagues to resist the Irgunists when they attempted last Monday to land arms to fight the Arabs. Yet that was the only course which could be taken consistent with good faith with the United Nations. And the future of Israel is necessarily bound up with its good standing before the U. N. What the new state has lost in the support of the Irgun and the services of the two ministers who have resigned from the cabinet it has gained in the respect of statesmen and peoples who are seeking peace through rational live-and-let-live accommodations in accord with democratic principles.

The danger is that extremists may succeed in taking over control in Israel as they did under similar circumstances in Ireland after World War I. The Sinn Fein Party elected 73 out of 106 Irish representatives in 1918 largely as a result of the brutal executions after the insurrection of 1916. These men met in Dublin as a national assembly and passed a resolution of independence but apparently had no intention of resorting to violence. The subsequent "Anglo-Irish War" resulted from terrorist activities by a relatively small group led by Daniel Breen and the counterterrorism of the Black-and-Tans. While the Irgun commander has ordered his followers never again to take up arms against their brothers, as they did in the arms-landing incident, Irgun soldiers are being withdrawn from the Israeli army and they no longer recognize the authority of the state. That seems to leave the situation wide open to perilous consequences.

This newspaper finds special interest in the reports from Tel Aviv that Peter Bergson, head of the Hebrew Committee for National Liberation, was among the prominent dissidents arrested by the Israeli government. It is reported that Mr. Bergson's group financed the five-million-dollar shipment of arms that brought Irgun forces into conflict with the Israeli army. When this group presumed to set up a Hebrew "embassy" in Washington four years ago we pointed out that it did not have the representative character it claimed to have. The Jewish Agency had nothing to do with Mr. Bergson's group. Now the alleged tie-up of that group with the terrorists appears to be inflicting on the Israeli government, to use the words of Premier Ben-Gurion, "the bitterest blow" the infant state has suffered.

Communists In Uniform

The right of the armed forces to protect themselves against subversives within their ranks cannot be challenged. The instrumentalities of national security are among the most sensitive of all agencies, and it is no surprise that defense heads are reported to be planning a loyalty check for all men called up under the new draft law. This is merely an amplification of the procedure followed during the war, when actual and suspected subversives were, for the most part, segregated into nonsensitive units.

There is good reason why Communists, who are the principal category of subversives now in question, should not be exempted from the draft. In the first place, as American citizens they are subject to the same obligations for national service as are other Americans. Secondly, permitting deferment of members of the Communist Party would encourage evasion of the draft. Nevertheless, Communists in uniform will bear watching. During the war some Communists were magnificent soldiers; but they were good soldiers only so long as it suited the party purpose. It would be folly to attribute such moves as the "over the hill in October" campaign of 1941 or the premature demobilization clamor of 1945-46 solely to the Communists. But certainly they were quick to capitalize on soldier demoralization and twist it to their ends.

But while the necessity for keeping tab on potential subversives is recognized, the armed forces have an obligation to see that the loyalty checks are administered fairly. In the past such attempts occasionally have gone to ridiculous extremes because of the lack of personnel qualified to pass on questions of such a delicate nature. A loyalty program in the military establishment will be particularly susceptible of abuse unless efforts are made to provide the same essential safeguards as now pertain in the Federal Government. The premium must be on judgment and facts, rather than hearsay.

The Scientific Method

As this is written, both the issue of the balloting at the Republican National Convention and the issue of the twice-deferred buffetings in the Yankee Stadium in New York remain, as the saying has it, in the lap of the future. Thus, on what seems the reasonable assumption that you have glanced at the first page before reading this one, you are doubtless better informed than we are at this time as to the identity of the Republican candidate.

But as to the affair of the Messrs. Walcott and Louis we have scarcely any doubts since acquainting ourselves with a prognosis prepared by Dr. J. L. Moreno, an eminent psychiatrist in the service of the Associated Press. After a painstaking evaluation of the clinical evidence, Dr. Moreno advises us that the tide of battle must certainly flow in one of the following directions:

(a) Mr. Louis will knock out Mr. Walcott in an early round.

(b) Mr. Louis will knock out Mr. Walcott in a later round.

(c) Mr. Lewis will not knock out Mr. Walcott at all.

With his inexorable logic, Dr. Moreno goes on to demonstrate that if Mr. Louis does not knock out Mr. Walcott either soon or late, then beyond any doubt—

1. The judges will award the victory to Mr. Louis on points; or

2. They will award it to Mr. Walcott on points; or

3. They will call it a draw.

What distinguishes Dr. Moreno's scientific method from the subjective, or intuitive, methods of prognostication followed by such persons as our Mr. Shirley Povich, for example, and from the mystical or Delphian methods of those who try to work such things out with the assistance of Tarot playing cards or moist tea leaves is, of course, its clarity and precision. By a rigid scientific discipline the prognosticator must first make sure that he is not being influenced by any subconscious predilections or prejudices. The method of making certain that all suppressed emotions have been eliminated from the calculations is to fish them out of the depths of the subconscious and expose them, as it were, to the light of day. Thus Dr. Moreno has courageously faced the facts of his own psyche. "Were I to choose," he says, "the winner on the basis of emotion, my pick would be Walcott. I feel sympathy for him, and for his long, hard struggle . . . But such emotions can't rule in a scientific selection."

So implicitly do we accept Dr. Moreno's findings that we shan't even bother to listen to the radio accounts of the fight or to read the news reports. In having removed all our uncertainty he has also managed to remove whatever interest we had in it. But this, of course, is part of the price one pays for progress.

Byrd's Economy

In regard to the inequitable decision on raises in Government salaries and the veto of the famed economist, Senator Byrd, prices are as high for one class as the other. Senator Byrd knows well that his own prospects will not be affected by his influence opposed to the raises. But the United States employes received a raise which makes for political expediency and unfairness—and aid for Senator Byrd.

Senator Byrd also constitutes himself the main stumbling block to the progress of Virginia in general and the schools in particular, which rate sixth lowest of the 48 States. There is widespread dissatisfaction throughout Virginia at the educational qualifications of the teachers; crowded schools; lack of facilities to teach shop work in both white and colored schools; lack of schools and teachers—all results of Senator Byrd's economy ideas, carried out faithfully by Governor Tuck.

Challenging Communism

As a veteran of the last war I view with no little alarm the desire many of our legislators voiced to pass anti-Communist legislation in the form of the Mundt-Nixon bill. I am most strongly opposed to any such measure.

What a terrible waste of lives, effort and wealth was this last war if our Government now adopts that which we fought against—that is, undemocratic police state rule. At present this bill would be used to halt Communist activities. In the future it could be used against any liberal-minded individual who did not see eye to eye with those in Government.

I believe that the United States Government is giving the Communist Party much more credit than it actually merits. If this danger of communism is truly imminent, then our Government admits deficiency and inadequacy by its very cry of alarm. If Government provides for the masses of the people their actual needs: adequate housing, employment at decent wages, good educational facilities, security for all, and a sound economy, then the people of America and of the entire world for that matter, would shun Communist ideology.

Freedom, liberty are just so many fancy words when a person is hungry, homeless, and with nothing better to look forward to in the future, as people in Germany and in other parts of the world can testify. Unfortunately, some people are at that stage whereby they have nothing whatsoever to lose by communism and everything to gain by it.

Communism is a powerful force which no form of legislation is able to abolish. A judicious government can only hope to stop its growth by eliminating that which nurtures it.

I sometimes think that the world would not be in such a chaotic state if some of our religious leaders were just half as fervent and zealous in spreading their doctrine as are the Communists.

Competent Salesgirls

A recent conversation with the floor manager of a Washington department store indicated that there is an appalling shortage of salesgirls; that the turnover is very rapid and the caliber of girls they get even for the short period of time they work is not very high.

It seems to me that out of sheer economics in terms of increased volume of sales through the use of competent salesgirls, the department stores in Washington would use a resource of qualified salesgirls that has not been used before. That resource is Negro salesgirls.

There is no "social equality" involved in making a purchase of goods in a department store. Further, the primary reason for retaining "white" jobs and "Negro" jobs has been to keep wages low. It seems logical in these days of high production and consumption; to say nothing of high prices, that the retail trades would no longer have to revert to this undemocratic practice to keep wages low. If there were competent salesgirls, the volume of goods sold would more than compensate for any present or future added labor costs.

Further, white workers should realize that wage scales would go up—and the industry could afford to pay it—if this type of discrimination did not exist. As long as there are potential pools of labor that can be used as a threat to replace workers of any kind, wages are depressed.

Alexandria Sanitation

Your illustrated story of June 21 covering Alexandria's unsanitary conditions put the onus on the health department. That is the wrong inference. The whole responsibility rests with the city manager and city officials, who rule, hoodwink, or obey the city council.

This condition is not a situation where the outs play any part in the deplorable condition and impasse in civic effectiveness. The health officer has for some years attempted to obtain the aid his office needs. That he failed in that respect is no fault of that competent official.

It is the ins who fail their responsibilities. The city council's complete record of incompetence, "about face" decisions, playing politics, and disregard of the rights of taxpayers and property owners in general is apparent to anyone who is informed. Rump sessions of council back-room secret agreements and hide-out conferences in offices where the public is not invited, have long been a disgrace to the City of Alexandria.

Attacks On Health Insurance

In politics it is perhaps not very surprising that defamation of character should have become a more or less normal weapon of debate. But when this and other bad and thoroughly undemocratic practices are used within fields where scientific judgment alone must prevail it is surely time to protest.

Some eight years ago a group of New York physicians joined forces to study means for improving medical care, and to battle the intransigent policies of the local county medical society. Problems of hospitals, clinics, medical education, discrimination were discussed at meetings and some forward looking resolutions were introduced in the county society.

The organization quickly attracted members from the medical profession all over the country and became the Physicians Forum—a national organization of physicians interested only in the improvement of medical care. After prolonged study its membership reached the mature conclusion that the full benefits of modern medicine can be brought to all the people only through the agency of national compulsory health insurance. They, therefore, supported the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, and spoke at Senate committee hearings in its behalf.

This immediately brought on the organization the violent disapproval of the American Medical Association, and of its propaganda satellite the National Physician's Committee. The American Medical Association has a vested interest in medical practice as it is. For years it has opposed any and all attempts to make it easier for the patient to pay his medical bills. It fought workmen's compensation insurance, Blue Cross hospital insurance and voluntary sickness insurance until public opinion forced it to accept these social devices to make medical care more widely available.

Today the American Medical Association advocates voluntary health insurance, but only in plans that are wholly controlled by the medical profession, and in the management of which the consumer of medical care has no voice. It is still unalterably opposed to compulsory health insurance, and fights it with every weapon, fair or foul.

For example, in editorials in the Journal of the American Medical Association it has been insinuated that the Physicians Forum is a Communist - front organization: while in the literature distributed by the National Physician's Committee the attack has been more direct. It is stated that compulsory health insurance is derived from Moscow, that all who support it are fronting for Communists, and that health insurance legislation is chiefly intended to serve as a means of introducing totalitarian methods of government into the United States. The facts that President Truman sent a special message to Congress advocating such legislation, that some of our most distinguished legislators are identified with the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, that outstanding citizens such as Bernard Baruch, William Green, Philip Murray, and the late Mayor LaGuardia have favored national health insurance are deliberately ignored.

Because of the nature of the attacks on the forum by organized medicine many physicians who are in sympathy with its purposes are afraid to become members. They fear it may result in loss of membership in their local county society, of their hospital connections, and that it may hinder their advancement. Such fears have been justified in a number of instances.

Recently the New York County Chapter of the Physicians Forum sponsored an opposition ticket at the annual election of officers of the Medical Society of the County of New York. In this election campaign baseless slanders were freely used to gather votes for the regular ticket. The false impression was deliberately created that the opposition slate was a Communist ticket. Every attempt was made to capitalize on the fears which today grip the medical profession no less than the public at large.

Compulsory health insurance has nothing to do with communism nor with Russia. The Physicians Forum has no ideology save the traditional idealism of medicine and the hope of improving medical care in the United States. It has no direct or indirect affiliation with any other organization of any sort. Very definitely it is not a political organization.

Dewey's Cards

PHILADELPHIA.—A sense of anticlimax hangs over this convention. It had been billed as slambang fight but with each hour that passes it looks more like a stage setting, carefully lighted, carefully managed.

Particularly among the eager amateurs who have spent a great deal of money and unlimited energy in behalf of Harold Stassen, there is a sense of letdown. They feel that something unfair, something slightly sinister, is being put over.

Yet what is happening is in the oldest and firmest tradition of American politics. Skillful managers have almost always done the behind-the-scenes work preparing the way for the victorious nominee.

Sometimes the bosses are rich and respectable in the tradition of Pennsylvania's Boise Penrose. Or they come from the wrong side of the tracks and rise to riches as did Missouri's Tom Pendergast. But always they are operators, knowing every political angle.

It so happens that the team of managers working for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey are extraordinarily efficient and able. Their sense of strategy and timing is just about perfect. They have used their big ammunition, such as the winning over of Senator Martin of Pennsylvania and Governor Driscoll of New Jersey, at just the right moments.

That is the real Philadelphia story. The chances for an upset, for a miracle, have been cut down almost to zero by the Dewey team working not in one but a dozen smoke-filled rooms.

WHAT IS required for a miracle is a popular hero—a man who can seize the dramatic moment, capture the popular imagination. Such men are very rare in American politics and the Republicans are far less susceptible to their appeal than the Democrats.

A William Jennings Bryan and a Cross of Gold speech come once in every other generation. Theodore Roosevelt was a kind of freak in his own party and his party declined to follow him down the road to revolt. Wendell Willkie, whose nomination was less "spontaneous" than it seemed to be, never was at home in practical politics.

Two men conceivably could have been cast in the role of popular hero at this convention. The opportunity was wide open for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. But the truth is that neither by temperament nor predilection has he any bent for becoming a popular hero.

The whole concept is alien to the Senator who at 64 has risen to eminence by the most careful kind of party regularity. Whenever he has to oppose his own party, or even a substantial section of it, he is distinctly uncomfortable. In his leadership on foreign policy his solid achievement has been to compel the party to follow him by not too rapid stages. No, Arthur Vandenberg is not a Bryan, or a Teddy Roosevelt or a Willkie.

STASSEN'S chance to be a popular hero and perhaps to storm the convention faded before Philadelphia. Whether he went of his own accord or whether he was pushed, he found himself in the middle of too many compromises. He ceased to have the glow and the shine of a proud knight fighting alone.

It is important, too, to remember that the dominant thought in the minds of most delegates is victory. As the Republican News phrases it in an appeal for campaign contributions, "The stakes are too high to take any chances."

That is in itself almost sufficient explanation for the careful stage managing and the caution. Not too far behind the delegates are all sorts and conditions of powerful men who believe the GOP will lead them into the promised land. They may be disappointed but at this juncture they are certainly opposed to taking chances.

It all comes back to the skill of Dewey and his team. The stream of delegates who have passed through Dewey headquarters in the Bellevue-Stratford is tribute to that skill. As one cynical delegate expressed it:

"Say, that crowd is good. Why they could put over practically anybody. They could put over Taft."

Years of careful spadework have led up to the effort at Philadelphia. Alliances, pledges, comfortable trades, all these have been staked out long ago with the same skill and concentration.

This is normal and regular. This is the game of politics which has some resemblance to that other great American game—poker. As I write, a miracle still could intervene. But in politics as in poker you have to play your cards, and that is just what the Dewey boys have been doing for a long time now.

Liberal Arts Majors

Anent the recent public discussions of education for women, I would like to point out the futility of a liberal arts curriculum. No opportunity is given the student to learn any one field well. Instead, the groundwork is laid for many interesting hobbies in later life.

The graduate becomes the dilletante, but never knows any one field of professional endeavor well enough to become anything but a salesman or a housewife, depending on his or her sex. Unless specialized graduate work is taken, or a person received specialized training in one field, say ballet, from a tender age, a career of a drifter around the professions, accompanied by a vague restless feeling of not utilizing his capabilities to the full, lies before the college graduate, man or woman, of a liberal arts major.

Overtime Decision

A Communication

I AM greatly concerned by your editorial entitled "Overtime on Overtime" which appeared in The Washington Post.

The Fair Labor Standards Act, which it concerns, fills an important niche in our economy. It seeks to prevent another depression of the 1929 type by placing a floor below wages, and a ceiling above hours to insure that employment will be reasonably spread among our people.

The low minimum wage provided in the act, of course, has become outmoded by general inflation and by a tremendous increase in our national productivity. There is an urgent need for passage of an amendment, which I introduced, to raise minimum wages to 75 cents an hour.

Nevertheless, bills have been introduced by Representative Goodwin and Senator Wiley which would undermine the overtime standards now provided. While your editorial does not specifically indorse these two measures, its tone and its recommendation that the Fair Labor Standards Act be completely overhauled throws the weight of your influence behind them. This gives me grave concern.

YOUR EDITORIAL states that the financial burden of the Bay Ridge decision on industry generally will "run to fantastic figures," with as much as 43 million dollars liability imposed on a single stevedore, and accounting work connected with this lawsuit alone costing one stevedore over $265,000. These figures are fantastic. They have been challenged both by the Supreme Court and by the wage-hour administrator.

The available information indicates that the total amount at stake will be relatively small, and that the large figures exist only in the minds of the anti-labor forces. Indeed, your own news story reporting the decision gave no such fantastic figures. Your editorial also fails to mention the figure given out by the attorney for plaintiffs, who would not be inclined to minimize his own victory, and who claims that all recoveries resulting from this precedent will add up to less than five million dollars.

The administrator of the wages and hours division points out that the retroactive liabilities growing out of the decision applies almost exclusively to the longshore industry. Spokesmen for some industries have already stated that the decision creates no back-pay claims in their fields. At the trial itself, expert witnesses for the defendant admitted that the situation was unique to the longshore industry.

Moreover, even in the case decided and in the few other stevedoring cases now pending, the amounts recovered will be severely minimized by the defense of good faith reliance upon the interpretations of the administrator. Finally, many claims will be barred or reduced because of the new two-year statute of limitation.

Both of these defenses were created by last year's Portal-to-Portal Act. I feel that The Washington Post editorial should have made it quite clear that the Supreme Court sent the case back to the District Court with the express mandate that the defenses created by the Portal to Portal Act should be considered, and that these defenses will probably prevent large recoveries.

FURTHERMORE, the editorial should have made it clear that the amounts specified in claims filed, as everyone knows, are not the amounts which are necessarily recovered in the event the suit is successful. Lawsuit claims are customarily gross exaggerations of the amount which even the plaintiff hopes to recover. This is particularly true in a situation such as here, involving the stevedoring industry where casual laborers do not work for one particular employer, but for many. They obviously do not have the bookkeeping records which have made possible an exact estimate of the amount due them, so it is necessary to name outside figures.

The editorial conveys the fear that the recoveries will bankrupt industry. But it should have made it clear that all sums recovered in this particular case, plus the entire court costs, including all "accounting," will be defrayed by the Government. This is because the loading of ships for which recovery is sought was performed during the last war for the Government on a cost-plus basis. Further, the comparison of these cases to the portal case fails because the portion of the decision creating retroactive liabilities presents no new departure, but rather an affirmance of rulings of the wage-hour administrator which go back to 1939. No windfalls are involved here, but merely the enforcement of a just debt knowingly assumed.

I think it particularly unfortunate that your editorial should have adopted the conclusion that the sums allowed by the majority decision of the Supreme Court were in fact "overtime on overtime." This was the main question before the court for decision. The court ruled that the payments sought were not "overtime upon overtime," but on the contrary that the extra rates paid to longshoremen were regular rates for "disagreeable hours they were called upon to labor" rather than true overtime rates. The court recognized a fact that had been recognized by wage arrangements on the New York docks for almost a century: that night work is completely different from day work and is worthy of a greater hire.

IT WAS made clear during the debates on the wages and hours law, it is made clear in the language of the statute, it has been made clear by every court decision on the subject, that the word "overtime" as used in the act refers to hours in excess of 40 a week. In the Bay Ridge case the so-called "overtime" rate was paid for the very first hour worked. It was therefore not real overtime.

In view of this long history of interpretation, it is difficult to see how a man as well schooled in the judicial tradition as Mr. Justice Frankfurter could have permitted himself the intemperate petulance he expressed toward his colleagues' views, or the bald reference to the political pressures which make it so "practical" for a judge, in construing the Fair Labor Standards Act, to furl his conscience to the winds blowing across the park from the Congress.

Mr. Frankfurter's statement that the decision of the majority dislocates arrangements of long standing designed for the benefit of both employers and employes overlooks an essential element in a social statute such as the Fair Labor Standards Act. It is well settled that the purpose of such a statute is to establish basic standards below which no contract, whether individual or collective, may go. Having accepted the desirability of such standards, Congress felt that it would be a mistake to permit individual workers or groups of workers to bargain away these standards either intentionally or through inartistic expression. And it should further be remembered that this "long standing arrangement" was in conscious violation of rulings of the wage-hour administrator.

This has been in many ways a disheartening year, and I have no relish in the record of the Eightieth Congress. But I am refreshed by the reassuring testimony to the vitality of our democratic institutions which has been given by the Supreme Court in the Bay Ridge and Huron cases. Poor and humble men have petitioned for justice against the arrayed strength of large corporations, lobbies, the press, the Department of Justice (which argued the defendants' case) and even their own union, and yet the court found the courage to live up to the high challenge of its oath of office. We are reminded once more that great valor is sometimes involved in dispensing justice.

Goes to NLRB

'Hiring' Halls Violate Law, Agent Holds

A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner ruled yesterday that the National Maritime Union's use of hiring halls on the Great Lakes violates the Taft-Hartley Law.

Trial Examiner Howard Myers issued the ruling in a dispute between the CIO union and four Great Lakes shipping companies. He asked the NLRB to uphold his findings.

It was the first such ruling by a board agent on legality of hiring halls, a chief issue in the current maritime dispute on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coasts. Board officials emphasized, however, that Myers' ruling applies only to the NMU and the four Great Lakes companies.

20-Day Time Limit

If his findings are not contested within 20 days, they assume the effect of a court order that would outlaw the practice in the Great Lakes area.

Most maritime unions require ship owners to obtain their crews through the hiring halls.

Myers said the system gave union members the first crack at job openings and forced employers to violate the law's provision barring employers from idscriminating against nonunion workers.

He accused the union and seven of its top officers of bargaining in "bad faith" with the companies. The concerns are the Texas Co., New York; Cleveland Tankers, Inc., Cleveland; Lake Tankers Corp., New York; and the Great Lakes Transport Corp., Detroit. About 170 seamen are involved in the dispute.

NMU Threatens Strike Unless Terms Are Met

New York, June 24 (AP).—The CIO National Maritime Union Chief said today that the NMU will strike at the end of an 80-day antistrike injunction period unless present hiring hall practices continue and other demands are met by ship operators.

NMU President Joseph Curran said in a statement his union will observe the Federal Court orders issued yesterday barring threatened shipping strikes on three coasts and the Great Lakes.

Curran added, however, in a telegram to all members that at the end of the 80 days:

"The negotiating committee (of the NMU) will reject any offer of shipowners that does not provide continuation of present hiring practices and improvements in wages, hours and conditions. The committee will insist that any agreement reached will be retroactive to June 15."

Austrian Censorship Official 'Disappears'

Vienna, Austria, June 24 (U.P.).—The Ministry of Interior announced tonight that Otto Deutsch, one of its telephone and mail censorship officials, "disappeared" yesterday and has not been heard from since.

A ministry spokesman linked the disappearance to the recent arrest of Minister of Police Anton Marek by the Russians.

Coal Accord Ends Threat

President Truman will be withheld until today, awaiting signing of the formal agreement.

Lewis and his aides met with the operators again at 8 p. m. Before the meeting they said terms of the final agreement will be made public today.

It is believed the agreement will call for a wage increase of about $1 a day for the Nation's 400,000 soft coal miners. This would approximate an increase of 12½ cents an hour. The basic pay now is $13.05 for an 8-hour day, or $1.631 for an hour. The new rate will be $14.05 for eight hours, or $70.25 for a 40-hour week.

The new agreement also reportedly calls for doubling the payments into the welfare fund, from which pensions for retired miners are to be paid. The present payment is 10 cents a ton on all coal mined. In the last year this is estimated to have raised 45 milion dollars. The new contract terms would make available enough money to more than meet Lewis' desires for $100 a month for all miners above 62 who have worked 20 years or more underground. It also will provide for disability cases, and for dependents of miners.

Other features reportedly retained in the new contract are:

1. The clause by which miners must work only when they are "able and willing."

2. Union shop provisions as far as the Taft-Hartley law permits.

3. Continuation of payments of $100 each year as "vacation pay" to all miners with sufficient accumulated working hours.

It took less than an hour for the announcement to be made after Lewis and his union leaders had concluded a meeting with the UMW policy committee. At that meeting Lewis read the terms of the proposed agreement, which was greeted with cheers at the close of virtually every section.

District Bar Association Unit Elects Officers

The administrative law section of the District Bar Association elected the following officers last night: chairman, F. Gloyd Awalt; vice chairman, Robert Ash; secretary, Nathaniel J. Ely; council members, H. Donald Kistler, John P. Southmayd, and Gerard Riley.

The group also voted to cooperate with the Herbert Hoover Committee on governmental reorganization, and the Senate subcommittee on governmental reorganization in an investigation of Government administrative practices.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Seventeen Vice Presidents

Philadelphia, June 24—As these words are written, the sweating delegates are still tensely balloting for the presidential nominee. But although the main issue is undecided, this seems a good time to put forward a great project of constitutional reform, the need for which has been clearly disclosed by this convention.

In brief, what is needed is to remodel the Federal Government on the lines of the Chase Bank, thus remedying its most serious deficiency—the singleness of the vice presidency. A majority of the statesmen here present would unquestionably vote for an amendment providing 17 Federal vice presidents, or whatever other number may be the Chase Bank's current total. An improved Federal establishment, and still more interesting Republican conventions, would be the immediate results of this great reform.

The happy case of House Majority Leader Charles Halleck, and the sad story of Governor Dwight Green of Illinois, provide proof enough that the need for this great reform is grave and urgent. They also convey more of what can only be called the odor of this convention than any other single episodes.

To begin with Representative Halleck, this active, ambitious, busy little man has always cultivated connections with important persons; and one of his long-standing connections was with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. It was not clear. It was not definite. But it was never the less rather generally understood long months ago that Representative Halleck would be for Dewey at Philadelphia, and that Dewey would confer on Representative Halleck the second place on his ticket. Representative Halleck was a hopeful man when he entered this city at the head of the Indiana delegation, which was pledged to him as the State's favorite son.

Unfortunately, there are more votes in Illinois than there are in Indiana, and Governor Green has long felt that there was something a trifle provincial about life in Springfield. The Dewey managers had the happy, but rather foolish idea, that Governor Green could defy the terrifying thunders of Col. Robert R. McCormick, and take part of the Illinois delegation away from Senator Robert A. Taft. If this bold putsch or jacquerie of the political peasantry of Illinois could only succeed, Governor Green would have the natural right to a glittering new life, as Vice President in the Nation's Capital.

With the prize of Illinois dangling before them, the always business-like Dewey management deferred nailing down the smaller, easier prize of Indiana. At first Representative Halleck was a little plaintive about the absence of any reassurance about his own future. He was heard to wonder whether he ought to go to Governor Dewey, to talk things over, or wait for Governor Dewey to talk to him.

Then proper pride asserted itself. Two days before the balloting he joined the councils of the combination which was then forming to stop Governor Dewey. He assured Michigan State Chairman Arthur Summerfield that he would not go for Dewey and meant to hold the Indiana delegation to their favorite son commitment to himself. For 24 hours, Halleck was, in truth, an active member of the grand alliance against the New York Governor. Even in the afternoon of the last day, when rumors had begun to circulate about Indiana being for Dewey, Halleck assured Summerfield that his determination had not weakened.

Something else had happened, however. That Dewey bandwagon had roared into Indiana and almost all the delegates formally committed to Halleck had briskly climbed aboard. Evidently Halleck learned of this shortly after his telephone conversation with Summerfield, and decided to make the best of a bad business. At any rate, when Indiana caucused on the evening before the balloting, he had experienced a startling change of heart.

Representative Halleck stirred the Indiana caucus with an impassioned oration on Governor Dewey's virtues, suddenly but completely recalled to his mind. Indiana voted unanimously to go for Dewey on the first ballot, with former favorite son Halleck leading the parade.

Prior to this event, meanwhile, Governor Green had tried to organize his Illinois Jacquerie, and sadly failed. Far from resembling an impassioned uprising of the oppressed, the episode was much more like the brief independence of a rather timid little boy. The stern teacher merely points to the ruler, and the boy shrinks away from the jampot, and bows his little head with a tear in his little eye.

Representative Halleck, it is rumored, may still be Governor Dewey's running mate despite his flirtations with the anti-Dewey alliance. But if the amendment to remodel the Federal Government were only on the statute books today, it would also be possible to bring contentment and happiness to Governor Green, Senator Ferguson, Governor Driscoll and quite a lot of other people who rather oddly want to be Vice President, too.

Corn Crop Outlook Now Excellent

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—More than knee high by the Fourth of July appeared to be a certainty today for the Nation's all important corn crop.

Traditionally, corn should be knee high by July 4 if the country is to have a good harvest. It already is knee high in several Midwest areas and growing rapidly as a result of heavy rains in the past 48 hours.

That's good news to everyone who eats. Corn is a basic grain used mainly as a livestock and poultry feed. High prices now posted in grocery and meat stores are attributable at least in part to last year's short corn production.

Crop Not Yet "Made"

Crop experts cautioned the crop is a long, long way from being "made." It will need timely rains in July and August—what it lacked in last year's drought—to come through to a big harvest as desired. But right now the outlook has seldom, if ever, been better.

H. J. Gramlich, agriculture agent for the Chicago & North Western Railway, who returned here today from a survey through Iowa, said corn in that State was "coming forward by leaps and bounds."

"There is a big acreage and it's off to a wonderful start," Gramlich said. "There has been no flood damage, which contrasts sharply with last year at this time."

Other Reports Similar

Similar reports came to Lamson Bros. Co. grain commission firm, from its crop reporters throughout Iowa. Typical were these comments:

"Des Moines—Corn looks perfect in this territory."

"Sioux City—It would be hard to mention any year when the crops as a whole looked as good as they do at this time."

"Cedar Rapids—Oats, corn and soybeans never looked better in this area for this time of year."

In Nebraska, the State Agriculture Department said: "Corn has made excellent growth and recent rain has provided much needed moisture. The crop averages about knee high and for the most part is reasonably free from weeds. Some replanting has been necessary, but most of this is now up to a good stand."

The Kansas Agriculture Department said corn in that State had continued to make favorable growth with moisture supplies "very satisfactory."

Wheat Prospects Seen Good to Excellent

Minneapolis, June 24 (U.P.)—Wheat harvests and prospects across the country are good to excellent, the Cargill Crop Bulletin reported today.

In the Southwest, "wherever the combines have entered the fields," the harvest has surpassed expectations, the bulletin said. The Pacific Northwest crop gives a prospect of "record-breaking production"; and the Eastern and North Central States show good to excellent prospects.

In the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles, the winter wheat harvest shows heavy test weights and other good quality characteristics, the report said. The harvest has progressed into central Kansas.

Hopkins Wrote

Pearl Harbor 'Great Relief' To Roosevelt

Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor actually was a "great relief" for President Roosevelt, the late Harry Hopkins wrote in his secret papers.

For he saw it taking the Nation off a hot spot, Robert Sherwood, friend of the late President and Hopkins' biographer, explained yesterday.

Roosevelt had feared the Japanese would "conquer and exploit an empire," avoiding conflict with the United States, and forcing us to "put up or forever shut up," he said.

Dilemma Pictured

Sherwood, writing in Collier's magazine, pictures "Roosevelt's dilemma" this way:

1. Roosevelt believed the Japanese were about to strike at British or Dutch possessions and sweep onward without attacking the United States. And even if the United States went to war to stop it, she probably would do so half-heartedly after long delay.

2. If this aggression did not provoke us into war, as seemed likely, what would be the effect on the British, Russians, Chinese—or the Axis?

"The plain fact was that the moment was imminent when the United States would be forced at gun point either to put up or forever shut up," Sherwood wrote and went one:

"There was just one thing that the Japanese could do to get Roosevelt completely off the horns of the dilemma, and that is precisely what they did, at one stroke, in a manner so challenging, so insulting and enraging, that the divided and confused American people were instantly rendered unanimous and certain.

His "Great Relief"

"Thus Hopkins wrote later of the President's great relief at the method the Japanese used" in starting the war at Pearl Harbor."

On that fateful December Sunday, Hopkins said, Roosevelt had "discussed at some length his efforts to keep the country out of war and his earnest desire to complete his administration without war, but . . . the Japanese had made the decision for him."

Appraising the European situation in the fall of 1941, before the Japanese attack, Hopkins wrote:

"Both (Henry L.) Stimson (Secretary of War) and Marshall (Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff) feel that we can't win without getting into the war but they have no idea how that is going to be accomplished."

Grain Sales Figure In $240,000 Suit

Ralph W. Brauer, 3151 Mount Pleasant st. nw., yesterday filed suit in District Court for $240,000 commissions from Ralph W. Moore, who was recently indicted for alleged conspiracy to violate the Federal Lobbying Act.

The money represents 10 per cent of the proceeds from the sale of 1,500,000 bushels of surplus rye to "certain foreign governments," according to the suit. Brauer said Moore hired him to make the sale under contract as an expert.

Moore, secretary of the National Farm Committee, resides at 1707 N st. nw.

Names Two To High Posts

Oberlin, Ohio, June 24 (AP).—The Rev. Lloyd E. Galloway of Los Angeles and Mrs. Elbert A. Read of Shenandoah, Iowa, were elected assistant moderators today at the final session of 2000 delegates of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches.

Rev. David McKeith, jr., of Hartford, Conn., was named executive vice president of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions to succeed Dr. Fred Field Goodsell of Boston, who will retire August 31, 1949. The board supervises more than 400 missionaries and has a current annual budget of nearly $1,500,000.

Three men critical of a merger between the Congregationalists and the Evangelical and Reformed Church were added to the commission on interchurch relations which is arranging the union. They are Dr. Arthur C. McGiffert, jr., president of the Chicago Theological Seminary; Dr. Charles M. Houser of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Dr. Frederick M. Meek of Boston.

Resolutions were passed urging churches "to support educational and legislative programs to implement" the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

London Dock Strike Spread Threatened

London, June 24 (U.P.).—The 11-day dock strike in London threatened to spread to other British ports tonight as this city's meager meat supplies sank below the lowest wartime level.

A committee representing 20,000 London longshoremen met for 10 hours and reportedly decided to appeal Friday to dock workers throughout the country to join the stoppage.

London strikers scheduled a mass meeting Saturday, indicating that strike's end was not in sight.

With 50 food-laden ships and 100 other vessels idle in the Thames, Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the Commons he could not guarantee Britons their 20-cents-a-week meat ration for the next two weeks.

Opposition Leaders Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden criticized him for sending so few troops to unload the ships.

The walkout was a result of the suspension of 11 dock workers who demanded extra "dirty cargo" pay for unloading a cargo of zinc oxide.

At Prescott

Rough Riders Meet on 50th Anniversary

Prescott, Ariz., June 24 (U.P.).—The thinning ranks of Teddy Roosevelt's immortal Rough Riders converged here from across the Nation today for the fiftieth—and perhaps last—anniversary of their formation as the First United States Voluntary Cavalry of the Spanish-American War.

Only 107 members remain of the group which swarmed up San Juan Hill in Cuba. About half that number was expected here for the three-day celebration starting today.

The gathering will not be without prominent figures. Charles Heitman, chairman of the board of the Christian Science Monitor, said he was flying here. Also attending is a New York contingent of Kenneth D. Robertson, cousin of Theodore Roosevelt; Henry W. Bull, Douglas Campbell, Edwin Emerson, Francis B. Crowninshield, Arthur F. Cosby and Sumner H. Girard.

Others arriving include David M. Goodrich, New York, president of the Rough Riders Association; Robert W. Denney, Whittier, Calif., association secretary; former United States Diplomats Hoffman Philip and Henry P. Fletcher and Col. Roger S. Fitch, Monterey, Calif., veteran of three wars.

High light of the reunion will be a tribute to Mrs. Pauline O'Neil, 83, Hollywood, widow of Buck O'Neil, who won such fame as a Rough Rider that his statute stands on the Prescott courthouse plaza.

Girl Scouts Keep Plans

Father's Name

$1100 Check Forgery Laid To D. C. Man

A 30-year-old man was charged yesterday with forging his father's name to a $1100 veterans' death benefit check.

The check was for part payment of another son's National Serviceman's Life Insurance policy.

Charged with forgery and held under $500 bond by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for grand jury action was Marion Dale Pitts, 30, 1437 Rhode Island ave. nw. The brother who died in the European Theater of Operations was Philip D. Pitts.

The check was made out to the father, Ellis R. Pitts, who has a residence at the Rhode Island ave. address and at Newport, Ky. Marion Pitts, according to authorities, received the check here, forged his father's name and then indorsed it with his own name.

Treasury Department agents said that more than $1000 in other NSLI checks made out to Ellis Pitts were similarly forged.

Loyal Knights Of Round Table In Session Here

Loyal Knights of the Round Table, in convention here at Hotel Washington, spent a few working hours yesterday, then turned to relaxation.

A morning session adopted a resolution to create a Berea, Ky., college fund to assist underprivileged students. Members also voted to present youth citizen awards annually to students who "best exemplify" the organization's "international objective of citizenship responsibility."

In the afternoon, members and guests, totaling 300, went sightseeing to Mount Vernon, Alexandria and Arlington, later cruised on the Potomac.

Today election of officers is scheduled. Dr. Reuben G. Steinmeyer, University of Maryland professor, will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. in the Hall of Nations.

2000 Hail Father Divine In Talk Here

About 2000 persons last night hailed and hymned the wonders of Father Divine.

Gathered in Turner's Arena, W and 14th sts. nw., for a benefit program for a Northwestern College building building fund, they gave the cherubic leader a four-minute ovation as he began to speak, and punctuated his speech with cheers handclapping and the rattle of a tambourine.

Before he began to speak, his chorus of 200 Rosebuds, brought from the New York, Newark and Philadelphia "heavens" ecstatically sang, "If you don't want civilization to be extinct . . . recognize the body of Father Divine, he has mastery over every situation, he is master of circumstances."

Divine said, "the brotherhood of man is not just to be spoken of, but to be lived. I appeal to you once again to unite effectively and universally. This country will be the leader of all nations."

The Rev. Gaines S. Reid, assistant pastor of Divine's Peace Center Church at Newark, preceded him as speaker.

"When the nations of the earth recognize Father Divine as God, and he is, there will be peace, harmony and prosperity throughout the earth," he said.

An estimated 75 per cent or more of the audience were followers fo Father Divine who came by bus and train.

Among others on the program were the Rev. A. S. Phillips of the Maryland Baptist Center, Baltimore, and Lawrence E. Gichner, vice president of North-West Settlement House, Inc., Washington.

Chancellor Davis W. Board of Northwestern College, which is seeking funds for a new building, presided at the program.

Chile's U. N. Charge Protested by Russia

Lake Success, June 24 (AP).—Russia protested today against Chile's complaint that Moscow refused to release Russian wives of foreigners.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, wrote Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General, that Chile's proposal to put the question before the U. N. Assembly in Paris is illegal. Gromyko added that Chile's charge that the Soviet Union infringed basic human rights and principles of the U. N. is entirely unfounded.

Russians Hold 4 GIs 24 Hours

Berlin (Friday), June 25 (AP).—Four American soldiers were released last night more than 24 hours after they were arrested by Soviet military police, United States military authorities said today.

The names of the soldiers, who were seized when driving down a busy shopping district in the Russian sector of Berlin, were not released.

The Russians indicated the soldiers were detained for a traffic violation. American officials said the arrests may have been in retaliation for the stopping of a number of Russion vehicles by American military police during the current safe-driving campaign.

American Ship Saves Burned Tanker's Crew

New York, June 24 (U.P.).—A 9804-ton Norwegian oil tanker caught fire at sea 200 miles southwest of the English coast today, but an American ship steamed to the rescue and picked up the crew from lifeboats a few hours later.

The Coast Guard reported the stricken ship was the Fenris, a 448-foot ship of the type which usually carries a crew of 42 men.

5 Packed Crates Of Dogs and Cats Seized in Truck

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—A 44-year-old Baltimore County man was held today while police investigated ownership of five crates of dogs and cats found in his truck.

The man, of White Hall, was arrested by Patrolman Howard Brunner after a chase of several miles. Brunner said the man threatened him with a pocket knife.

A crowd of about 100 persons gathered, and some of them tried to take the prisoner away from Brunner when they saw the condition of the animals. Witnesses said the 10 dogs, 15 cats and four new-born kittens were "crowded like sardines" in the small crates.

Patrolman Brunner reported that he gave chase when he saw the man try to capture a large dog that was running loose at the city line on Loch Raven rd.

The animals were taken to the SPCA shelter. No charges were placed against the man.

Littleton, N. H., June 24 (AP).—A landslide poured down Mount Lafayette in Franconia Notch late today and buried heavily traveled Route 3 under 50 feet of earth.

Falling Birth Rate Held Cancer Cause

From Press Dispatches

Chicago, June 24.—The decreasing birth rate is a major factor in the increase in cancer of women's breasts, a British surgeon said today.

Sir Stanford Cade of London said smaller families and the modern trend toward bottle-fed babies are partially responsible for the growing number of cases of cancer of the breast. He told radiologists attending the American Medical Association convention that removal of infected breasts "remains the greatest achievement of surgery in the treatment of cancer of the breast."

In another meeting, two Dallas physicians reported that patients known to have been exposed to syphilis should be treated immediately, without waiting for test results.

Dr. Lee J. Alexander and Dr. Arthur G. Schoch said penicillin injections before syphilis symptoms become apparent "affords almost 100 per cent protection."

Blindness or impaired vision often are caused by diseases of other parts of the body, including ulcers, a St. Louis doctor said.

Dr. Lawrence T. Post reported that loss of eyesight alsomay result from tuberculosis, diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, syphilis and multiple sclerosis.

May Replace Stethoscope

The doctors were told the stethoscope, a symbol of the medical profession, may soon be as obsolete as the kerosene lamp.

An electronc amplifier, invented by Stanley Roth of New York, may take its place.

The device allows the physician to listen to the heart or lungs without the detraction of unwanted sounds, it was claimed.

A discovery that eating too much fat food may be bad for the heart diseases known as coronary thrombosis, coronary occlusion and angina pectoris, was reported by Dr. Milton Plotz, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Ten men with ailments ordinarily treated with high fat diets died within seven months after starting to eat the extra fat.

The AMA delegates named Dr. Ernest E. Irons of Chicago as president-elect. Irons will take office next year. Dr. Roscoe L. Sensenich of South Bend, Ind., is the current president of the AMA. Dr. Walter B. Martin, Norfolk, Va., was named a trustee.

West Virginia Beauty Contest To Continue Despite Bishop

Moundsville, W. Va., June 24 (AP).—Sponsors of a West Virginia beauty contest, although disturbed by a Catholic stand against "nakedness," declared today their program would be carried out as planned.

Swint

"We will proceed, if necessary, without any Catholic girls," said Evan M. Rogerson and Dale Stultz, two of the three codirectors of the pageant.

Bishop John J. Swint of the Wheeling Catholic Diocese, which embraces all West Virginia parishes, yesterday denounced such contests, saying any Catholic girls who take part would be expelled from the church.

The directors said Bishop Swint's stand "has upset things a little in Wheeling, but nothing has been heard to indicate a similar situation elsewhere in the State."

The bishop's ultimatum came after the withdrawal of Gertrude Bedway, one of the Catholic entries in a Wheeling contest, set for next Monday night. The West Virginia winner will compete for the title of "Miss America of 1948" at Atlantic City.

"There has never been anything of an offensive nature in any of these contests," said the Moundsville directors. "We hope the bishop will reconsider."

Speech Handicap Sufferers' Aid Urged in County

Dr. Richard R. Hutcheson, director of the District of Columbia Speech Clinic, yesterday called upon social, educational and medical leaders in Montgomery County to set up some agency to give full service to those handicapped in speech.

The community and parents are solely responsible, Dr. Hutcheson declared at a meeting held in the Board of Education office in Rockville.

He was called to Montgomery County by Howard Johnson, chairman of the children's service committee of the County Community Chest, to advise on plans for a speech clinic.

Oklahoma Families Flee Rising River

Oklahoma City, June 24 (U.P.).—Families in the North Canadian River bottomlands fled their homes today when the Weather Bureau warned that the river would give "real trouble" tonight or tomorrow.

Weatherman W. E. Maughan said the crest of the river, which measured 16.3 feet at El Reno, Okla., this morning, would send water surging over the low-lying area when it reaches the State capital.

"The river definitely will be dangerous to Oklahoma City," he said.

Four evacuation centers were set up. Troops from Fort Sill joined firemen and relief agencies in speeding the work of evacuating residents in the danger area.

Overnight rains added 5 inches to the swollen stream.

Nine persons already had lost their lives in flash floods around Hydro. Whitefield and Okmulgee were hard hit.

Heat Kills Two Men Here

Emergency Hospital treated others, including William Garland, 79, of 12 E. Lenox st., Chevy Chase, Md., and Theodore Poling, 27, of 615 Missouri ave. nw.

Mrs. Daisy Wise, 28, of 1246 Evarts st. ne., and Silas Emory, 37, of 2622 Colston dr., Chevy Chase, were treated at Prince Georges General Hospital for mild cases of heat prostration.

Thousands of Government workers, including 5000 District employes, were released from their offices early because of the hot and sultry weather.

The District Commissioners agreed to let out workers in non-air-conditioned offices at 3 p. m., two hours earlier than the normal quitting time.

Others Leave Early

At Gravelly Point, about 3500 Military Air Transport Service workers got an okay to leave at 4 p. m. Two hundred Labor Department workers, with offices in the Temporary U Bldg., 12th and Constitution ave. nw., quit at 1 p. m.

Some Maritime Commission and Federal Security Agency workers also were released earlier than usual.

Capital Transit Co. reported heat-caused delays tied up afternoon rush hour travel from 15 minutes to an hour. Spokesmen said the heat expanded the "third rail" and power plows, tearing several of the latter off trolleys.

Lines experiencing the most trouble, Vice President E. Cleveland Giddings announced, were the 14th st., Florida ave., Rosslyn, Pennsylvania ave., F st. and G st.

The temperature first hit 95 degrees at 2:05 p. m., dropping to 92 degrees by 3 o'clock but rising again to the 95-point peak by 3:55 p. m. It remained a steady 95 degrees until 5 p. m., when it started down again.

Within 30 minutes after the storm broke—at 6 p. m.—the mercury was down to 78 degrees, falling another four points by 7 o'clock.

Injured by a falling tree in the 1900 block 19th st. nw. as the wind lashed the city was Mary Semel, 34, of Zelienople, Pa. She was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment of back and leg injuries.

100-Foot Tree Crashes

In Hyattsville, a 100-foot tree crashed across the roof of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Norris, 4515 Buchanan st.

Plaster cracked on both floors of the two-story frame building, shaken by the crash.

Hyattsville firemen called by Norris to remove the tree advised that it would have to be cut up and removed in sections. It is about 2 feet in diameter.

Hundreds of Police Calls

Hundreds of Washington residents called police during the height of the storm to report trees felled in yards, on houses or in the streets by the whipping gales which accompanied the downpour.

More than 100 wires were also reported down in the District.

Maryland State police station at College Park was without lights or radio for several hours while radio failure was also reported by Fairfax County police.

Power failures were reported in portions of Chevy Chase, Seat Pleasant, Michigan Park, Chillum Gate and Marlboro and around the 600 block of Yuma st. se. and 10th and Girard sts. ne.

Trees were reported felled by lighning at South Capitol and E sts. and 4th and E sts. sw.

Dawson Retires

Money Saver For District Is Honored

EDWARD S. DAWSON

39 years of service

A certificate of merit was presented by the District Commissioners yesterday to Edward S. Dawson, 66, claims inspector of the Corporation Counsel's office, who retires July 1 after nearly four decades of saving money for the local government.

It's been Dawson's job to investigate all claims for damages against the city. He's handled hundreds of them, up to and including claims for $100,000, checking the stories of claimants, rounding up witnesses, and deciding whether the suit is justified.

A native of Rockville, Md., Dawson worked two years for the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey before entering District service in 1909. After a stretch with the highway department, Dawson took over the claims inspectorship in 1914. He's also been administrator over compensation funds for injured District employes since 1919.

High blood pressure is forcing Dawson's retirement. He plans to summer here and then go south for the winter. With his wife, the former Ellen Anderson, of Jonesburg, Tenn., Dawson lives at 1315 Juniper st. nw.

Red School Talk Backed By Official

A top Montgomery County school official said yesterday he would not be afraid to let an avowed Communist speak before high school seniors.

The statement, by E. M. Douglass, assistant school superintendent, was in reply to a complaint by a Chevy Chase attorney that a "pro-Soviet" talk was made last year before Montgomery Blair High students.

"I feel there is no group of Montgomery County citizens more thoroughly sold on the American way of life than our senior high school pupils," Douglass declared.

"I wouldn't have any fear about an avowed Communist speaking to high school seniors, as they are going to come in contact with Communist propaganda in real life anyway," he added.

"The best way to teach them to recognize it as propaganda is to bring it out in the light of day and not have it come to them in a hidden form.

"If high school seniors cannot be exposed to avowed communists without losing faith in American ideals, our educational program and American system are both a flop.

Douglass' statement was in reply to Franklin T. Miles, a Chevy Chase attorney, who complained to the county commissioners June 15 about a speech delivered at Montgomery Blair High School by Mrs. Aleksandra Lewis. Mrs. Lewis, who renounced her Russian citizenship to marry a State Department clerk, also was criticized last year for a similar talk at a Western High School assembly.

Replying to criticism of school officials for permitting the Montgomery Blair talk, Douglass declared:

"In my opinion such attacks are made either with the intent to deceive the public or by someone with an ax to grind." He also referred to a charge by Miles that Communist propaganda is contained in some county textbooks.

Commenting on the latter charge, Douglass said two of the three textbooks named by Miles had not been used for several years and the third was sponsored by the National Education Association.

He labeled the attack as "irresponsible" and said Miles had not "even bothered to check the facts before presenting them to the public." He added it was the policy of the board of education never to use "questionable" material.

Bolling Field Gets Third Mysterious Distress Message

Bolling Field yesterday received its third mysterious radio distress message—but this time took the call very much in stride.

T/Sergt. William F. Eichmann of 711 16th st. ne., control tower chief, revealed that the "mystery voice sounded like a fellow about 20 years old." He said the "voice was clear but not too cultivated."

The "pilot," who Tuesday radioed a distress signal that sent planes and boats in a lengthy search for "an airplane in trouble," asked for permission to land and then cut off.

The Federal Communications Commission is on his trail but so far reports no definite findings.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Riggs' Unique Ad Series Put In Book Form

By S. Oliver Goodman

Those original historical advertisements of the Riggs National Bank have been reproduced in booklet form.

The unique series, which attracted attention locally and nationally, was built around some of the 112-year-old institution's famous depositors. The ads appeared in local newspapers and national periodicals.

Attractively illustrated with sketches and authentic autographs of various personages, each advertisement gave a sidelight on the relationship of the man to history and the Riggs National Bank.

For instance, concerning Abraham Lincoln, the ad bore a reproduction of a check drawn by the President as follows: "Pay to Colored Man with one leg . . . Five Dollars. . . ."

In a foreword to the booklet, President Robert V. Fleming pointed out that "the generous approval with which this series (of advertisements) has been greeted has prompted us to gather them together in this booklet for the benefit of those who may not have seen all of them, and for the depositors and correspondents at distant points to whom the series may have been entirely unavailable. . . ."

Credit for the classic ads should be given to the Washington agency of Lewis Edwin Ryan Advertising for illustration, editing and technical presentation. John Hardie was agency's account executive, while collaborating were two Riggs' officers: Hulbert T. Bisselle, senior vice president and advertising officer, and Roland T. Carr, assistant vice president.

NCPPC Gets Playground Site Purchase List Today

General Agreement Is Reported With Recreation Board's Plan After Session

District recreation officials today will hand the National Capital Park and Planning Commission a list of sites they want purchased here for playgrounds and recreation areas.

The sites, a recreation board member said last night, will remain secret since they involve land purchases. The list, he said, will include recommended purchase priority.

Yesterday, at a meeting of the planning commission, the sites were discussed and afterward Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, NCPPC chairman, said commission members generally agreed with the recreation board's proposals.

Some of the sites, the recreation board member said, involve only enlargement of present areas, but some represent entirely new areas.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz does not appear today because of illness in his family.

The recreation board will ask that funds for the sites be provided in the 1950 NCPPC budget.

Representing the recreation board at yesterday's NCPPC meeting were Harry S. Wender, board chairman; Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, board secretary; Mrs. Andrew Saul; National Capital Parks Superintendent, Irving C. Root; Recreation Superintendent, Milo Christiansen and assistant recreation superintendents, Sibyl Baker, John L. Young and Robert Andrews.

The recreation officials asked the Planning Commission to see that adequate recreation space is provided in any new schools to be erected and resubmitted development plans for six recreational areas knocked out of the 1948-49 District budget by the Board of Commissioners.

These areas, according to Mrs. Hunter, were: Logan Playground at Logan School, Cleveland Park Recreation Center, Carroll Recreation Center at the Carroll Junior High School site, Beers Playground at the Beers School, Benning Recreation Center on Benning rd. and a playground in Northeast.

The Planning Commission, which is preparing its budget estimate for next year, also met with Redevelopment Land Agency officials and, earlier, heard a review of legislation affecting it passed by the recently adjourned Congress.

HE WENT FOR A STROLL—John Paul Delort received the standard welcome for lost boys yesterday at the Tenth Precinct Station House. John, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Delort, of 1821 Ingleside Terrace nw., was missing from home four hours before his parents located him at the station house. The boy escaped from the watchful eye of his "big sister" while playing at Bancroft Playground. His daddy is French Mission member

Racial Suit Taken Under Advisement

The American Association of University Women suit over the exclusion of Negroes from membership in the District chapter was taken under advisement yesterday by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court.

It was indicated that a decision may be rendered within the week.

The local chapter brought suit against the national organization of university women for an injunction. It was designed to prevent a threatened ouster from the group and from the clubhouse at 1634 I st. nw. Yesterday's action was for summary judgment on the injunction suit.

The national organization charged that the local group violated the constitution by placing in the bylaws a provision whereby the directors of the local group could decide whether any applicant could become a member.

With this bylaw, the directors refused admittance to Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, a Negro and widow of a Municipal Court judge.

The national organization protested and then declared that unless the local group complied with the organizational constitution which made eligibility depend solely upon receiving an accredited degree from an accredited university, the local group would be ousted.

Then a "middle-of-the-road" minority group of almost 40 per cent of the membership of 1000 here filed an action that the court approve the admittance of Mrs. Terrell, but prevent the threatened eviction.

The crux of the case may depend, it was indicated yesterday, upon the meaning of the word "eligibility." If it means that membership solely by educational requirements it might mean that the local group has violated the constitution.

Or, as Justice Laws queried yesterday, "Does it mean that applicants must have the requisite education to be eligible to apply for membership, but that the applicant's fitness on other grounds might be considered?"

Emery Place To Be Made Child Camp

The historic summer estate of Washington's last mayor, Matthew G. Emery, will go into use as a recreation center July 6, Miss Sybil Baker, assistant recreation supervisor, said yesterday.

A day camp with four to eight supervisors, expected to accommodate more than 60 youngsters, will be held on the 8½-acre estate at Georgia and Missouri aves. nw. through July and August, she said.

The estate covering two city blocks, was bought by the District in December, 1946, for $204,000 from Mayor Emery's heirs. The 100-year-old house, which was near collapse, has been torn down and the underbrush cleared.

Plans for permanent development and installation of permanent equipment have been held up for lack of funds. A group of Brightwood citizens, headed by Mrs. Jennie E. Clarke, 5418 8th st. nw., has raised several thousand dollars.

Mayor Emery was Washington Mayor 1870 to 1871, when the mayor form of government was abolished in favor of the territorial governor. The present commission government was established in 1874.

Suburban Hospital Sets Record With 207 Operations

More surgical operations—207—were performed at Suburban Hospital in May than during any month since the hospital was opened in Bethesda, four and one half years ago.

A report to the board of trustees also showed 56 babies were born and 353 adults admitted as patients last month.

With an average of 89 patients in residence daily, Suburban during the first five months this year rendered 13,476 days of hospital service. Last month the emergency room treated 230 patients and the out-patient clinics treated 181.

The patients' library committee circulated 328 books and magazines in 270 hours of volunteer service.

Good Templars To Dedicate Elm For Temperance

An elm on the grounds of the Capitol will be dedicated at 4 p. m. Saturday to temperance.

Dr. J. Raymond Schmidt, national legislative superintendent of the International Order of Good Templars, which claims to be the Nation's second oldest temperance organization, said his organization will sponsor the dedication.

A bronze plaque, he said, will be placed in cement at the tree's base.

The dedication will be in connection with the 96-year-old order's national sessions, meeting at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

Fire Damages Church Lady Astor Helped Build

Greenwood, Va., June 24 (AP).—Emanuel Episcopal Church was damaged by fire yesterday. Firemen thought lighning may have struck the switchbox in the vestry during a storm Tuesday night and the fire smouldered in the closed church. The flames spread to the auditorium and destroyed the organ.

The church was built in 1914 by Lady Astor and other members of the Langhorne family as a memorial to their mother.

Montgomery Held Up on Teacher Plan

Action Delayed on Expansion Program By Failure to Get Budget Breakdown

A meeting of the Montgomery County Board of Education in Rockville last night was stymied in its plan to shave other school services in order to get money for a teacher expansion program.

Failure of a budget breakdown to arrive from the County Board of Commissioners forced the education board to by-pass the plan since it had no way of knowing just how much money was allocated for the various services.

The board did, however, announce the appointment of 109 new teachers who had been offered jobs with no mention of what the salary would amount to.

The school system is slated to receive a total of $2,818,468 under the $6,135,346 county budget approved June 16. This allocation was $611,000 below the school board's request, made in keeping with a policy of higher wages and additional teachers.

The school board's program of cutting costs along other lines to provide more money for teachers met another setback in the form of an opinion expressed by the board's attorney, Charles W. Prettyman, who wrote that he didn't believe the board could legally take such action.

Stine Reads Opinion

Prettyman's opinion was read to the other board members by board President H. Stanley Stine. Stine also read a letter from Brooke Johns, president of the board of commissioners, which stated in part that the commissioners would make every effort "to see that the basic financial needs (of the school board wil be met . . ."

"Their idea of basic needs is very much different from ours," Stine commented. He, obviously, was referring to the fact that the board of commissioners had been openly opposed to raising teachers' salaries.

Newly appointed last night were 60 elementary school teachers; 28 high school teachers; 13 junior college teachers; 6 part-time junior college teachers; 2 colored high school teachers.

50 Viers Mill Laborers Quit Over Travel Pay

More than 50 laborers on the Viers Mill Village development of 1400 homes near Wheaton, Md., yesterday walked off their jobs over company refusal to pay 5 cents an hour for traveling time.

Business Agent James O. Hibbitts of Local 764, the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union of America (AFL), said some of the men travel 100 miles a day round trip. They now are paid $1.25 an hour, he said.

Sigmund Sommer, superintendent of construction, claimed some of the men are paid as high as $1.30 an hour with time and one half for all time over 40 hours a week. Some men, he said, earn $100 a week. He termed the walkout a "wildcat, unauthorized strike."

Barrett's Aides To Provide 24-Hour Top Rank Command

Three new assistant police superintendents, three new inspectors and four new captains were created yesterday.

Promotions, announced by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and effective July 1, numbered 105 in all.

The new assistant superindendents are Inspectors Clarence Tally, Oscar J. Letterman and Floyd E. Kelly. The posts of three new assistant superintendents were authorized by Congress in the 1949 District appropriation bill so the department would be commanded by Barrett or an assistant 24 hours of the day.

New Inspectors Named

Captains elevated to the rank of inspector were William J. Cunningham of No. 10, Clarence H. Lutz of No. 4 and George R. Wallrodt of No. 3.

Promoted from lieuteant to captain were Irving Umbaugh of No. 1, Basil F. McAllister of No. 2, Paul F. Barnes of No. 6, and William T. Murphy of the juvenile bureau.

Murphy will command the new Fourteenth Precinct which will be activated July 1. McAllister succeeds Cunningham at No. 10, and Barnes succeeds Lutz at No. 4. Capt. Anthony Richett will be transferred from command of the Ninth Precinct to command of the Third Precinct. Richett will be succeeded at the Ninth Precinct by Umbaugh.

The promotion list also bestowed the permanent rank of captain on Inspector Robert S. Bryant, who holds the temporary post of assistant superintendent as chief of the detective bureau, and Robert V. Murray, second in command of the detective bureau.

Seventeen Sergeants Promoted

The list advanced 17 sergeants to lieutenants, seven detective sergeants to lieutenants, 20 corporals to sergeants, 22 privates to corporals, nine precinct detectives to detective sergeants, seven probationary detectives to precinct detectives, four privates to precinct detectives, and seven privates to probationary detectives.

One oddity in the promotion list included the advancement of a husband and wife. The husband, Sergt. J. J. Boyd of the traffic division, became a lieutenant. His wife, Corpl. Katherine S. Boyd of the women's bureau was made a sergeant.

Following is the list of promotions to lieutenants, sergeants, corporals, detective sergeants, precinct detectives and probationary detectives with present assignments:

Fairfax Man Is Believed Tick Victim

A Fairfax man yesterday was in serious condition at Arlington Hospital with what doctors called "a pretty clear case" of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

He is Erwin N. Williams, 22, of Route 1, Box 289, McLean, Va., who was admitted to the hospital Wednesday. If the tick fever diagnosis is positive, he will be the fourth Fairfax case this year.

On May 16, Fairfax resident Worth J. Sharpe, a Navy Department employe, died at Arlington Hospital from the fever after doctors unsuccessfully tried to save his life.

Williams was employed at the Capper Meredith Nurseries on the Leesburg pike, near Tysons Corner, where he helped plant, sell and haul the shrubs, trees and plants handled by the company.

Williams, unmarried lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams, in their home next to the nursery.

According to his mother, several weeks ago a barber had found a tick embedded in Williams' scalp when he had his hair cut. Arlington Hospital doctors said the incubation period for the fever is "from 2 to 14 days."

A native of Charles Town, W. Va., Williams was educated in the schools there and had lived in Fairfax for the past six years. In addition to his parents, there are two other brothers in the family.

Policeman Acquitted in Auto Death Of Cabbie

2 Witnesses Tell Hyattsville Court Victim Ran in Front of Vehicle

A Prince Georges County policeman, Corpl. Roland Sweitzer, 28, of Laurel, whose automobile struck and killed a 34-year-old District cab driver June 16, was acquitted of manslaughter charges yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court.

Sweitzer was returning home after investigating another traffic fatality when his car struck Stuart J. Gay, 141 Bates st. nw., at Muirkirk on Baltimore blvd. Gay was pronounced dead at Leland Memorial Hospital.

Two witnesses, A. J. Butcher of Richmond, whose car was following Sweitzer's, and Roy Wofford of Burlington, N. C., who was coming from the opposite direction, testified Gay ran out into the highway in front of the policemen's vehicle.

Sweitzer said he was traveling about 45 miles an hour in the 50-mile speed zone. He had been, he said, investigating the death of Marion Jarboe, jr., 3, struck by a car near the child's home in Queens Chapel Manor. He was driving his personal car, he said.

In Washington a coroner's jury cleared Carl J. Birckner, 29, of 5900 Tucker rd. se., of charges in the traffic death June 7 of Walter S. Hall, 77, of 746 12th st. se. Birckner's car struck Hall at 11th and I sts. nw. Hall died five days later at Casualty Hospital.

Area News in Brief

Gas Dispute, Chase, Pile Up Two Cars

An irate Fairfax gas station owner, who said he was bilked out of payment for a tank of gas, yesterday chased the customer at speeds touching 80 miles per hour until both cars were wrecked in Falls Church.

Police identified the customer as Raymond Nash, 18, of Pensacola, Fla., who ran from the scene after the crash, which also involved a third car.

Falls Church policemen James Adams and Charles Dixon, who pursued and captured Nash on foot, charged him with hit and run driving and turned him over to Fairfax police.

H. E. Reid, proprietor of a filling station near Falls Church on Route 211 said Nash asked for gas about 7:30 a. m. yesterday. Reid told Nash that the 1947 Buick he drove had no gas tank cap and went to get him one.

While he was gone, Reid said, Nash drove off without paying for the gas. In the ensuing pursuit, police reported the cars collided on Hillwood ave. in Falls Church, and sideswiped a third car driven by T. B. Pringle, 300 George Mason rd., Falls Church.

"Humph," commented Judge Scott, "'Don't Fence Me In' would have been a more appropriate tune."

X-Ray Leads to Suit

A Takoma Park, Md., physician yesterday was named defendant in a $70,000 damage suit as a result of X-ray treatments he gave a 5-year-old child in 1945 for a scalp infection.

The suit was filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court by Leslie C. Vipond, a Government engineer, who lives at 10218 Colesville rd., Silver Spring. He says the scalp of his son, Joseph, was injured. The defendant is Dr. J. Norman Kimble of Takoma Park.

Also a defendant is the Washington Sanitarium where the treatments allegedly took place.

Reached for comment last night, Dr. Kimble said he remembered the case clearly and he declared: "Those things happen sometimes. Some people are more sensitive to the treatment than others. The boy didn't get an overdose of the X-ray."

Degrees were awarded 111 prospective teachers in graduating exercises here yesterday.

He described the changing requirements of education in a changing world, citing the sociological, economic, scientific and political courses needed now which were not found in the liberal arts curriculum in past times. Any system of education reflects the civilization of which it is a part, he said.

Degrees were conferred on the graduates by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the District Board of Education, after the graduates were presented by Dr. Walter E. Hager, college president.

Degrees were conferred on the Miner graduates by C. Melvin Sharpe, vice president of the Board of Education. Dr. A. Powell Davies, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church, delivered the commencement address. His topic was "Needed: Some Grown Up People."

Louis and Walcott Still Await Weatherman's O. K.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Off the Cuff

NEW YORK, JUNE 24.—The Bell Telephone Co. cashed in heavily on the two postponements of the Louis-Walcott fight. Bookmakers were in frantic conversation with their betting clients all last night and today, asking their pleasure all over again on their fight bets.

POVICH

The postponements canceled all bets made before the fight in the big betting centers like Rochester, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Camden under the bookies' code. In New York, it didn't make any difference, as fight bets made here stand for a week. But in the other towns, Washington included, all bets are off if there is even a one-day postponement.

And so long-distance phones were busy, with bookies calling clients and vice versa. Folks who had gotten down on Walcott at 14 to 5 and 13 to 5 a few days ago, took a beating on the price with the odds against Jersey Joe dwindling to 11 to 5 and 2 to 1 in some spots.

The Louis backers got a break on the new prices.

At 8 p. m., Walcott was held in high esteem at 2 to 1, the shortest-price challenger Louis has met since winning the title. But not the shortest-priced opponent. Schmeling was 9 to 5 in his second fight with Louis, a whopping tribute to Joe, who had been floored two times and knocked out by Schmeling in their first fight.

BECAUSE OF THE two postponements, the indefatigable searchers for omens came up with one that doesn't favor Louis. Research revealed that Joe fought two of his worst fights following the only two postponements.

Those were the battles with Schmeling and Tommy Farr. What happened to Louis in that first Schmeling fight has been already recorded, and Farr not only stayed with him for 15 rounds but won the decision from one of the judges. It was the Farr fight that first exposed Louis as inept at adjusting himself to a new style of opponent.

Louis never caught up with Farr solidly. It was his first defense of the title he won from Jimmy Braddock, and Joe looked little like the killer he was supposed to be. "He fights sideways," said Louis of Farr after the bout, as if that weren't permissible and against the rules. Walcott fought sideways on occasions, too, last December, and Louis didn't know what to do about that.

THERE WAS FURIOUS debate in fight circles, too, about who would be affected most by the postponements—champion or challenger. The point was made that defending his title was old stuff to Louis, that the imminence of another title fight would not affect his composure.

The pressure would be on Walcott, it was argued.

This was Jersey Joe's big chance, you heard, if he could just kiss off the extra two days' delay lightly. But he did. When he awoke from a nap yesterday to learn the fight was off until tonight, Walcott was completely unconcerned. "So I'll knock off another hour's sleep," he said, and went back to the pillow.

In his training camp, Louis gave evidence that he was more concerned, if not worried, about this fight than any any other since he won the title. The split decision he won last time over Walcott was never satisfactory with him. He's fighting this one not alone for his title, but for vindication. Walcott, never a champion and with less to lose, had the better of it psychologically.

ON THE CHANCE THAT the bout would go the 15-round limit, there was left with the referee and judges a messy sort of situation to deal with. It resulted from the goobledegook of State Boxing Commission Chairman Eddie Eagan, who pointed out that the fight is to be decided in favor of the man winning the greater number of rounds.

That pronouncement does not draw any distinction between closely won and one-sided rounds. Thus it was that in the last bout Judge Frank Forbes cast his ballot for Louis despite the fact that his point score favored Walcott. Forbes credited Louis with eight rounds, Walcott six and one even, but taking cognizance of Walcott's two knockdowns of Louis he had the challenger in front on points.

"Each round is regarded as a contest in itself," stated Eagan, "unless the rounds total an even number for each contestant, whereupon the winner should be decided on points." Apparently, unless each fighter won the same number of rounds at the finish, a knockdown counted no more than a dull, thinly won round.

Three Yank Homers Top Feller, 4-0; Raschi Wins

Cleveland, June 24 (AP). — Vic Raschi shut out the Cleveland Indians, 4-0, today with home runs by George McQuinn, Johnny Lindell and Joe DiMaggio accounting for all of the New York Yankee runs.

Bob Feller went the route for the Indians and was charged with his eighth setback. Feller yielded only five safeties, fanned eight and walked two.

Raschi allowed the Indians six hits in gaining his ninth straight victory of the season. He has lost only once.

DiMaggio Slams No. 17

A walk to Tommy Henrich started Feller on his way to defeat in the fourth inning. Feller passed Henrich to start the frame and then retired the next two batters, but McQuinn then came through with his eighth round-tripper of the season and the Yanks were never headed.

Lindell opened the fifth with his ninth four-bagger of the year over the left-field barrier and Di Maggio started the ninth by socking his seventeenth home run of the campaign over the right-field fence.

Ted's Two Homers Give Bosox Split

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—Ted Williams' home run bat enabled Boston to split a double-header with the Chicago White Sox today.

Williams increased his American League lead run batted-in total to 65 with his fourteenth and fifteenth homers. They helped Boston overcome a 5-1 deficit to gain an 8-5 triumph. Bill Wight pitched Chicago to a 3-1 decision in the opener.

Chicago gave starter Joe Haynes a 5-1 second game edge with two runs in the first and three in the third, but he was unable to hold the advantage.

Dominic DiMaggio homered and Johnny Pesky singled before Ted belted his No. 14, in the fifth.

What Will Happen to Title If Louis Wins and Retires?

By Murray Rose

New York, June 24 (AP).—What will happen to the heavyweight crown tomorrow should Joe Louis defeat Jersey Joe Walcott and then announce his retirement as undefeated champion of the world?

Probably the most wide open scramble of the division would occur. Walcott, Light-Heavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich, Ezzard Charles, Joey Maxim and various other assorted characters like Lee Savold, Lee Oma, Joe Baksi, Tommy Gomez, Elmer Ray and Alfredo Lagay most certainly would put up a howl for a piece of the title.

The result could very well be an elimination tournament, such as happened after Gene Tunney stopped Tom Heeney in 11 rounds on July 23, 1928, picked up a check of around $600,000 and decided to call it a career.

Tunney's retirement while still champion was the second time that happened among the big battlers of modern times.

Jim Jeffries was the first to quit with the heavyweight diadem still in his possession.

Jeffries won the championship by knocking out Bob Fitzsimmons in 11 rounds on June 9, 1899. By the end of 1904, Jeffries had cleaned up his opposition and he announced his retirement in March, 1905.

The situation after Tunney's abdication wasn't as clear.

The New York State Athletic Commission, which figured then as the leading fistic body because most of the big fights were staged in New York, ordered an elimination tourney.

Finally Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling tangle don June 12, 1930, before a crowd of 79,222 in Yankee Stadium and Schmeling was declared the victor on a fourth round foul. The National Boxing Association proclaimed Schmeling as world champion. The New York commission followed suit six days later.

Nats Halted For Fourth Time in West

By Morris Siegel,
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 24 — The Nats and Detroit were ready to play ball today, but the weatherman issued rain checks and told them to come back another day, August 7 to be exact.

So postponement No. 4 was entered in the Griff docket, meaning that the next Western swing, originally an 11-game jaunt, has now become at least a 15-game affair.

There are two games to be made up with the Brownies and with today's series finale with the Tigers rained out there are also a pair to be made up with them.

The Nats didn't particularly welcome the unscheduled off day. They feel they're in a winning mood now, after dropping eight in a row, and were looking forward to seeing Early Wynn hurling them to their third straight over Detroit and their fourth consecutive victory.

Faces Bob Lemon

Wynn will get a chance to strut his stuff in Cleveland tomorrow night when Joe Kuhel's sixth placers tangle with the league leading Indians. His opponent will be Bob Lemon, who's beaten the Nats twice and lost to them once.

The Detroit stay has been very pleasant for Washington. The Griffs knocked off the Tigers twice and are now only 1½ games behind the fifth place Detroiters, who are in a tailspin of their own, having lost five in a row.

Earl Wooten, in particular, hates to leave here. He's had a couple of big days against the Tigers and has clinched center field job.

His home run, the first of his major league career, was the big blow of Washington's 5-4 triumph Tuesday, and his single knocked in Gil Coan with the winning run yesterday.

Shines in Field

He'ss stay in center, Manager Kuhel said today, for the time being anyway. He's hitting better than Carden Gillenwater, with whom he's been sharing the spot, and as a fielder the blond from Pelzer, S. C., has few equals in the league.

Pitcher Dick Welteroth left for Washington today to join the National Guard. Dick's only 20 and is ripe for the draft . . . Jake Early wears a golfer's glove on his left hand when he bats, favoring an injured thumb he received in the Brownie series at home three weeks ago. . . . McKeesport, Pa., friends of Al Kozar have chartered a train to see their home-town boy play against Cleveland Sunday. There'll be a few gifts for the Nat second baseman in between games of the twin bill. . . . In Philadelphia next week friends of Pitcher Tom Ferrick will honor him similarly. Just in case you're interested, most of the Nats think Louis will beat Walcott.

Robinson's 7 Hits Give Bums 2 Victories Over Bucs, 6-2, 8-6

Brooklyn, June 24 (AP).—Jackie Robinson went on a batting rampage today, banging out seven hits including six in a row to spark the Brooklyn Dodgers to 6-2 and 8-6 triumphs over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The second game was called after the top of the eighth inning because of darkness.

Robinson won the first game when he homered with the bases loaded and two were out in the ninth inning. In the second, Robinson pounded out two doubles and two singles in as many trips to the plate and drove in two runs and scored three.

Riegel's Eagle Beats Kosten

Kansas City, June 24 (AP).—Skee Riegel, the National amateur champion, had to pull his "Sunday shot" on the 18th hole to eliminate unheralded Bob Kosten, Kansas City, in the quarter-finals of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament today.

Riegel scored his 1-up victory with a spectacular 90-foot chip into the cup for an eagle-2 on the 320-yard 18th. Skee's tee-shot had carried 290 yards on the damp 6,700-yard Mission Hills Country Club course.

In other quarter-final matches this afternoon, John Kraft of Denver, Colo., 1942 Trans-Mississippi champion, outlasted Bill Sanders of Kansas City, 1-up, in 21 holes; Lawrence Glosser, Oklahoma City, defeated Robert Meeker, Kansas City, 3 and 1, and Irl Oliver, Kansas City, beat Bob Willits, Kansas City, 1-up, on 20 holes.

Nats Bring Up Shortstop

The Nats yesterday revealed they had called up Angel Freitas, Cuban shortstop of the Chattanooga Lookouts, but didn't know when he would arrive in Washington.

Freitas, a right-hannder hitting .335 for the Lookouts, is at present in Cuba attending the illness of his sister. He will be a third shortstop on the Nat roster, joining Mark Christmas and Johnny Sullivan.

Macks Edge Brownies, 6-5

St. Louis, June 24 (AP).—Ferris Fain's triple and Barney McCosky's double were good for four eighth-inning runs which enabled the Philadelphia A's to nose out the St. Louis Browns tonight, 6 to 5.

The Browns made but three hits off three Philadelphia pitchers but were benefited by 12 bases on balls. Another slim crowd of 2188 saw the Mackmen make it three out of four in the series.

Top Victory Scored With Filly La Vega

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 24.—Jockey Sammy Palumbo, who makes his home with his family just beyond the backstretch of this track, turned boos aimed his way into cheers today. After losing with his first three mounts on the Thursday program, the veteran booter came back to win three straight races, all purse affairs.

Palumbo's chief victory came in the Trojan Purse featuring the card. He was aboard Allen M. Hirsh's La Vega and kept the three-year-old filly in front all the way to bring a $3.80 payoff to the favorite players.

In the previous event, Palumbo came from well back in the field to make Mrs. C. P. Chenoweth's Phoness a going away winner at $10.20. After taking the day's main prize, the Italian-American saddle artist put up a desperate ride aboard Mrs. Mary Knieriem's Aylesbury to take a half length victory with a $7.20 pay-off.

Blue April Rallies

In the feature, La Vega went to the top immediately after the break. Green Garden, Sand Rose and Hairanette all took cracks at La Vega only to weaken. Blue April rallied but met some interference at the far turn and was cutting down La Vega's margin at every stride nearing the wire. Hairanette closed gamely to be third in the field of seven.

La Vega, saddled by Trainer F. D. Christmas, was clocked in 1.17 3/5 for the six furlongs, plus 130 feet.

The day's fourth purse race went to J. E. Hughes' Equifuta, ridden by Jockey Jimmy Baird. The little filly went to the front at the break and had seven other three year olds chasing her all the way. Equifuta paid $5 and ran the about four and a half furlongs in .50.

The daily double paid $58.80. H. G. Tonkin's Golden Media took the first race at $6.60 under good handling by Jockey W. Billington. In the second race, Jockey R. Shirey got into trouble with R. Bates' Wise Banny, but the game mare came to the outside and won going away.

Babe, Berg, Dettweiler Gain Semi-Finals

Miss Hanson Eliminates Lenczyk, 9-7

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—A dark horse and three former champions—headed by Babe Didrikson Zaharias—today climbed into the semifinals of the Women's Western Open golf tournment.

Mrs. Zaharias, entered from Grossingers Country Club, N. Y., was a 3-and-2 quarter-final victor over highly regarded Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex.

The Babe tomorrow meets Helen Dettweiler, formerly of Washington, D. C., 1939 Open champion. She rallied for a 1-up quarter-final decision over Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich.

In the lower bracket, Patty Berg, 1941-43 champion from Minneapolis, won as expected from Claire Doran of Lakewood, Ohio, 3 and 2.

Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., provided the day's only excitement. She walked away from Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., 1948 national collegiate women's champion, 9 and 7.

Miss Hanson, who faces Miss Berg tomorrow, sailed around the nine-hole turn seven holes in front. Miss Lenczyk, whose driver was treacherous throughout the match, conceded three of the 11 holes played.

Mrs. Zaharias, Open champion in 1940-44-45, played out the 18 holes after vanquishing Miss Riley and posted a medal of 73 for a new women's 18-hole score at rolling Skycrest Country Club. The former record was 76, posted in Monday's qualifying round by Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., who was eliminated yesterday by Miss Wall.

Ironically, Mrs. Zaharias zoomed over the first nine today in 35, 2 under women's par, and the same score Miss Riley posted for her first nine yesterday in squelching Bettye Mims White of Dallas, Tex. Miss Riley took 38 taps against the Babe in the first nine today.

Miss Berg took a 39 for her first nine during which she built a four-hole lead over Miss Doran.

Miss Dettweiler, two-down at the nine-hole turn, rallied to take the tenth and eleventh holes, squaring the match. Then she sank a 15-foot putt to go ahead on the thirteenth. The lead see-sawed the next three holes, but Miss Dettweiler went ahead for keeps on the seventeenth when Miss Wall took a two-over-par seven.

Contract Foils Illinois Hopes For Service Tiff

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP). Representative Sid Simpson (R., Ill.) and other Midwesterners who'd like to see an Army-Navy football game in their own backyard will have to wait a while.

The two service academies are under contract for another year with Philadelphia, Capt. E. B. Taylor, Navy Athletic Director, said today.

What will happen after that "is still under negotiation with the city of Philadelphia."

The Midshipmen and Cadets have been staging most of their recent grid classics in the Quaker City's giant Municipal Stadium. Under their alternating system, Navy will be home team this year.

Representative Simpson said yesterday he had written Secretary of Defense Forrestal urging that the game be played in Chicago. If not possible this year, he'd like it there in 1949.

Mrs. Amanuel Wins Golf Event

Mrs. Eli Amanuel captured the low net prize at yesterday's Ladies' Day Tournament at Indian Spring Country Club.

Shooting a 53—17—36, Mrs. Amanuel held a one-stroke lead in the nine-hole event over Mrs. H. L. Winston, 53—16—37 and Mrs. Paul Costello, 43—6—37. Mrs. R. J. Lillibridge followed with 51—13—38.

Guest prize went to Manor's Mrs. Evelyn Sullivan, 49—14—35, while Mrs. Saga Bond of Kenwood was runner-up with 47—11—36.

Rickey, Ill, Calls Off Fishing Trip for Exam

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 24 (AP).—Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today called off a planned fishing trip and visited Peck Memorial Hospital, near Ebbetts Field, for a physical checkup when he ran a slight fever. Rickey is 64 years old.

Two District Anglers Claim to Know Spots Where One Can Find the Elusive Bass

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

THE LEADING QUESTION these days—and it's an embarrassing one—is: "Where is there good bass fishing nearby?"

It doesn't take too much research to discover that it's practically nonexistent right in our backyard.

Rumor persists that there are bass in the Tidal Basin, certainly nothing could be nearer. But we've heard only of isolated catches there.

Tridelphia Lake is bound to offer bass. However, the reservoir of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission won't open until July 1. We'll have more on it in the near future.

Fortunately, though, a couple of expert anglers generously suggested a few spots that aren't too far away.

James R. Baker, 1207 F st. ne., recommended Lake Jackson, 5 miles east of Manassas, Va.

Baker also said he has had fair results fishing Occoquan Run, which is past Fort Belvoir on Route 1. He plans to go to Lake Jackson over the weekend with John Heater, 1320 21st st. nw., and Dave Ledford, 1212 Mount Vernon blvd., Alexandria.

Incidentally, Baker made it quite clear that he wouldn't be visiting Virginia spots after July 1. That's when the two-day nonresident license will be dropped and the annual fee jumps to $10. Said Baker, "I'm able to fish there only a few times a year and it won't be worth it to me."

Walter R. Longanecker of Branchville, Md., added that he has to go to Virginia for his fishing. According to Longanecker, excellent bass fishing may be found on the Shenandoah River, near Berryville, Va., only 35 miles from here.

Longanecker, assistant general manager for the National Association of Motorbus Operators, also said he has found fine trout fishing in Virginia this spring. Although the opinion prevails that most spots are fished out, Longanecker said he knows where there still are plenty of large trout.

Mainly, he likes to fish the Hughes and Rapidan Rivers and Big Piney and Little Piney for the elusive trout.

TODAY'S TIP—Bill Keull, 1807 28th pl. se., casts a vote for Sands Gate, below Benedict, on the Patuxent River. Keull informed us that croakers and perch have been taken there in abundance for some time.

Wright Predicts Hursey Will Lose

Al Wright, local middleweight, sparred three rounds with Smuggy Hursey yesterday and then predicted that Smuggy would lose to Cecil Hudson in their 10-round fight at Griffith Stadium Monday.

It was the first time Wright and Hursey had been in the same ring since Al cut Smuggy's lip a year ago, forcing postponement of the third Hursey-Kepilow bout.

Hursey's camp was awaiting the arrival today of Henry Armstrong, former triple champion, who will map Smuggy's strategy. Hudson's pilot, Joe Bluman, is also due here today.

Seeded Americans Gain at Wimbledon

By Gayle Talbot

London, June 24 (AP).—Five seeded American players drove through to the round of 16 in the Wimbledon men's singles championships today but a couple of them had to hike up their shorts and play serious tennis.

Third seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., subdued Sumant Misra, a tall Indian Davis Cup player, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

Young Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood, Calif., seeded seventh, beat Drago Mitic of Yugoslavia. The scores were 5—7, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Frankie Parker, the top-seeded favorite from Los Angeles, required only 35 minutes to polish off Cyril Kemp of Eire, 6—0, 6—1, 6—0.

Tom Brown of San Francisco whaled Borger Fornstedt of Sweden, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, and Budge Patty of Los Angeles won by default after he had taken one set from Franjo Puncec of Yugoslavia, 6-3. Puncec complained of a pain in his chest and was running a temperature.

Tony Mottram, Britain's 28-year-old Davis Cup ace, scored the day's outstanding victory when he wore down Italian phenom, Gianni Cucelli, 6-8, 6-3, 10-12, 9-7, 6-2.

Cucelli upset Jaroslav Drobny, the fifth-seeded Czech star, two days ago.

Aussie in Form

Jack Bromwich of Australia, seeded second, won easily over Vladimir Cernik of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Four of America's lesser-known women players were casualties, two of them falling before the pounding rackets of their countrywomen.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., the United States champion, seventh-ranked American pion, beat Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles, seventh-ranked American star, 6—1, 4—6, 6—1. Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., bashed Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany of Boston, 6—0, 6—1.

The other three top-seeded American girls, Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, did not play singles today.

Mrs. Owen Anderson of Los Angeles, a former British player, lost to Mrs. Antoinette Weiwers of France, 8—10, 14—12, 6—4. Little Gloria Butler of New York was licked in a second-round match by Mrs. A. Thomas of Britain, 6—2, 6—3.

Mixed Doubles Start

The mixed doubles also got off to a good start without anyone of importance getting hurt.

Louise Brough and John Bromwich, who are expected to win the mixed doubles title again, reached the third round with a 6—2, 6—1 triumph over E. Mandelbaum of Egypt and Miss V. Mattar of Britain.

Tom Brown and Mrs. DuPont eliminated D. G. C. Mockridge and Miss K. L. A. Tuckey of Britain, 6-0, 6-1, while Mrs. Todd and Drobny turned back Mr. and Mrs. Henry Billington of Britain, 6-0, 5-7, 6-2.

Miss Hart and Frank Sedgman whipped Hans Redl and Mrs. H. Doleschell of Austria, 6-3, 6-2. Miss Fry and Philippe Washer advanced on a 6-1, 6-3 conquest of C. N. O. Ritchie and Barbara Knapp of Britain. Mrs. Rihbany and Heraldo Weiss of Argentina defeated the South African pair, Walter Musgrove and Mrs. P. Belin, 7-5, 6-2.

Heafner, Keiser Lead

Toledo, Ohio, June 24 (AP).—Big Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., and Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, blasted into the lead today in the opening round of the $10,650 Inverness four-ball golf matches, as 16 pros tore the course apart with a 48-birdie barrage.

The Rubber City sharpshooter clipped seven strokes off par with a 32-32—64 performance to finish five up on former Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum and Dick Metz, who turned in the poorest best-ball score of the rain-swept ground, a 69.

Jimmy Demaret and PGA-National Open Champion Ben Hogan, favored in this tourney which they have copped three of the last four times, were next in line with a three-up win over Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis and Jim Ferrier, the Australian who won the 1947 PGA laurels.

Hogan and Demaret had a best ball of 65 after clipping four strokes off par on the front nine with 31, all played in a driving rain storm.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison from Little Rock, Ark., and Bob Hamilton from Evansville, Ind., had the best round of the day, a 33-30—63, eight strokes under even figures, but could manufacture only a two-up edge over the two hot-shots from North Carolina, Johnny Palmer of Badin, and "Skip" Alexander of Lexington.

Bobby Locke, the South African champion, and Ed Furgol, his rigid-armed partner from Detroit, cofavorites with the Hogan-Demret duo, also finished two up after a rugged fight with Chick Harbert, the long driver from Detroit, and Vic Ghezzi, former PGA champion from Kansas City.

Picketed Md. U. School to Run For 2 Negroes

Baltimore, June 24 (AP). — The University of Maryland plans to continue a special summer course in Baltimore for Negro teachers despite the fact that picketing has driven off most of the students.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been picketing the sessions, being held at a Baltimore high school, on the ground the course furthers racial segregation.

Only two Negro teachers registered. But Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the College of Education, said the two would receive instruction. He had expected 50 to 60.

He asked that the university be given a "sporting chance for at least one year" to operate a teacher education program for Negroes.

Dr. Benjamin said the course was established with a tentative staff of 14 instructors "equal to the best at College Park."

O'Conor Declares U. S. Financial State 'Alarming'

Ocean City, Md., June 24 (AP).—Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) today said one "of the most alarming aspects of our national affairs is the situation relating to fiscal matters."

He told a convention of the Maryland Association of Insurance Agents it is a matter that "vitally affects every insurance policy now in effect."

A large portion of the national debt—in excess of 250 billion dollars—is in the hands of insurance companies, the Senator said.

A result of "the huge debt, and of the factors of swollen pay rolls and war purchases that were its immediate cause, is the sharp increase in prices of all commodities and services.

"With respect to insurance, that means . . . that the real value of all insurance policies now in effect decreases in proportion to the rise in commodities and other prices."

Arlington League May Indorse Non-Partisan

Arlington's Better Government League "will consider" indorsing a non-partisan candidate for the Arlington County Board this year. Following a meeting Wednesday night, the group said it might meet with other non-partisan groups in the county to decide on a candidate.

Thus far, three Democrats have filed for the party primary August 3, a Republican candidate has been rejected by his party, and one independent candidate, I. Lee Potter, has announced he will run.

Seixas Ousts W & M's Hopeful

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP).—Top-seeded Victor Seixas of the University of North Carolina led the way into the semifianls of the National intercollegiate tennis championships today after a round of bitter battles and one marked upset.

Seixas found Fred Kovaleski of the College of William and Mary, sixth seeded, easy prey and bounced him to the sidelines by scores of 6—3, 6—2, 6—4.

In tomorrow's semifinal round Seixas plays Herb Flam of UCLA, who defeated the other remaining William and Mary challenger, Bernard Bartzen, after a 2-hour-and-20-minute struggle on the UCLA courts by scores of 4—6, 6—2, 6—2, 8—6.

Greek Rebels Booby-Trap Stray Mules

Athens, Greece, June 24 (U.P.).—Despite mounting guerilla resistance, Greek government troops have driven to Vourbiani, 11 miles from the strategic city of Konitsa, front reports said today.

Government regulars had to sidestep stray mules booby-trapped and cut loose by the determined defenders.

Registering one of the few big gains of their week-old "final" offensive against Gen. Markos Vafiades' rebels, government forces seized Pyrgos Ridge in the face of heavy machinegun fire, the dispatches said.

Elsewhere on the Grammos Mountain front, however, the offensive still was stalled.

With both sides maneuvering for position, casualties have been relatively light.

Plane-Fueling Truck Catches Fire in N. Y.

New York, June 24 (U.P.).—A gasoline truck, fueling an American Airlines DC-6, broke into flames as passengers were boarding the plane at LaGuardia Field today, but the fire was quickly extinguished and no one was injured.

The company said there was no damage to the plane.

Several passengers already were in their seats and others were stepping up the ramp when the truck caught fire. The plane was ready to depart for Washington, Nashville, Dallas and Fort Worth.

The flight, No. 103, was delayed briefly.

Man Who Recognized During Analysis That His Mother Had Authored His Predicament Voices Sympathy for Neurotic Personality

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The popular impression of the neurotic mother as a parasite or vampire is born of ignorance and purveyed of sadism.

The "Mom's" abnormal behavior in relation to her children inheres in her own deluded fear that she is socially inadequate; and this fear, profound and pervasive, incorporates fear of being unable to experience affection: to give or receive it.

It follows that she will act on compulsive necessity to keep and control whatever scraps of regard that may be forthcoming from her children, or from anyone else upon whom she can impose her frantic demands. So there's no use applying opprobrious terms to Mom, or to any neurotic.

In my own psychoanalysis I was never permitted to disparage my mother, despite the fact that the doctor and I knew full well how she had contributed to my predicament. And as I developed insight, I also developed inhibitions against evaluating Mom as a leech or vampire.

Turns Thumbs Down On Strecker's Book

NO MATURE, responsible, experienced psychiatrist would have written "Their Mothers' Sons," and the descriptive evaluation of the neurotic Mom as a sort of harpy—an exercise at which you are most adept—has no therapeutic value. It is equivalent to suggesting that she is so by conscious deliberate choice; which is poppycock, of course.

If one is 30 or 40 years of age, what difference does it make to know that Mom initiated one's neurosis? Little is gained by introspective concern about the past. Improvement depends on man's efforts, here and now, to overcome delusional fears of social rejection and failure and go about developing personal capacity to give-and-take in the human relations of love and friendship.

The distortions of half a lifetime don't iron out easily; nevertheless, one can do something about them; but not while spending himself in resentment, self pity or preoccupation with past frustrations.

All of which is to say that your column might be more interesting, humane and effective if you would eschew name-calling when writing of neurotics. So long as you do the reverse, pandering to the popular taste with so-called realistic, salty language, then for so long will you affront a certain percentage of your readers. R. L.

He Reads Himself Into Recent Column

DEAR R. L.: There is much interesting instructive material in your letter; that's why I am publishing it (condensed to essence). But take off the false whiskers. At bottom this isn't an altruist defense of your fellowmen against an Old Meanie columnist.

In process of inhibiting your grudge against your Mom, you elected me (some years ago) to be the substitute object of smouldering wrath; and periodically you growl at me. In this instance you're doing it again because you've identified yourself with the "mother's son" whose problem was discussed here June 4: the day on which your letter was posted, I see.

Having been analyzed, surely you know it's neurotic to read yourself defensively into an exchange between other persons, of which you are only an observer.

Incidentally, on June 4, I said of the mother: "Granted that she isn't wholly to blame for her unfortunate character formation, nevertheless if the son honestly wants help he must face the fact that her influence is ruinous." Which isn't invective but objective truth, and a call to the man to save himself. M. H.

Mrs. Saltonstall Shares Her Recipes

New England Favorites Are Judged 'Good, Plain Food'

This is the third in a series of articles on regional cookery in the United States, featuring favorite recipes of wives of the Nation's legislators.

By Lucia Brown

"JUST GOOD, plain food" is the way Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, wife of the senior Senator from Massachusetts, characterizes the New England cookery she likes best.

"Ours is not elaborate or highly seasoned food," says Mrs. Saltonstall, pointing out that early Massachusetts settlers took the Indian corn, clams, oysters, pumpkins and other native foods found there and learned to cook them in appetizing ways that reflect the English heritage.

Since they had a fondness for puddings and pies, they used the ground corn for Indian pudding and apples and pumpkin for pie. They made oyster stews, baked beans in brick ovens, and boiled down the sap of the sugar maple tree to make syrup. They enjoyed, too, a wealth of fresh vegetables they learned to grow in the rock-ribbed New England soil.

The tasty dishes they originated are still favorites with such New England families as the Saltonstalls, who enjoy Massachusetts-grown food even in Washington, through a very modern means—freezing. Some 20 years ago, Senator and Mrs. Saltonstall bought a farm at Dover, Mass., 20 miles from Boston. There they make their home when not in Washington and there they grow most of the food served on the family table. Fruits, vegetables, beef, chickens, and ducks are frozen on the place and brought to Washington when the family moves to its house at 2222 Wyoming ave., nw., for the sessions of Congress.

Lone Oak is the name of the Saltonstall farm at Dover, though Mrs. Saltonstall says younger members of the family have been calling it Gone Oak ever since a hurricane blew down the huge oak tree on the lawn several years ago. The farm, incidentally, will be the scene of the marriage this summer of Emily Saltonstall, one of the two daughters of the family, to "Dicky" Byrd, son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richard E. Byrd of Boston. Other Saltonstall sons and daughters are Leverett, jr., William, and Susan. Another son, Peter, was killed in action in the Marines in World War II.

Three favorite New England dishes of Mrs. Saltonstall's are clam soup, Indian pudding, and codfish balls. The soup is of the cream-type, not the clam chowder more generally known outside New England.

About Translations Of European Letters

Can you tell me where I can send letters from Europe and have them translated? I have received some from recipients of boxes I have sent, and am told there is a place one can send them with self-addressed stamped envelopes to be translated free. E. S. C.

The Society of Federal Translators has been doing this work on a voluntary basis for private individuals who receive letters of thanks for packages sent to foreign countries. To get your letter translated free-of-charge, mail it (along with stamped, self-addressed envelope), to Mrs. Gladys Clark, corresponding secretary, Society of Federal Translators, Room 701, 1344 Connecticut ave. nw. If the letter is a long one, the translator will send you a resume; if a short one, a full translation.

Due to circumstances, I was forced to soak clothing in my bathtub from time to time, over a period of months. I added a commercial bleach and regular soap powder to the water. Now this procedure is no longer necessary, but I find that there is a grayish stain in the tub that I can't seem to remove with ordinary cleanser. Since this gives the tub a dirty appearance. I wonder if you can tell me of some way to remove it. O. B. G.

Dirt has apparently become ingrained in the tub—and the finish possibly damaged permanently—by its repeated use for clothes-soaking purposes. To loosen the dirt, allow clean water containing commercial bleach to stand in the tub overnight. Use two cups chlorine bleach to a tub full of water. The next day, scrub the tub thoroughly right after letting the water out. You might mix kerosene cleanser for this scrubbing, as this will act more quickly than just the cleansing powder alone.

How About an Aunt Sally?

Wife of Uncle Sam—It's Need of Country, Says Man Matchmaker

By Marie McNair

IN THE MAIL yesterday came a strange assortment of correspondence—from people with projects to poetry for brides

A gentleman with a project is George M. Waldrop of Charleston, S. C., who writes to ask for help.

MRS. McNAIR

"A condition exists," says he, "that I think something should be done about. We have our Uncle Sam, our Miss Liberty, the Republicans have their elephant and the Democrats their donkey. But don't you think Uncle Sam should have a wife?"

Maybe he's got something there. At any rate Mr. Waldrop has got so far as to enlist the support of his Governor, a bridegroom of seven months.

Mr. Waldrop contends that America's women deserve a place in their land of the free and the home of the brave.

"No home is complete without a mother and the woman certainly deserves a place in our home," says he. Governor Thurmond thinks that the Congressional delegation should "take the lead in the matter and if they think advisable, create an Aunt Sally for our grand Uncle Sam."

From Miss Genevieve Marsh of Washington, comes the suggestion that in this month of brides, it might be a happy thought to print for them the old rhyme on Wedding Weather.

So here goes, brides!

If the sun shines on your wedding day
You will be happy forever and aye
Rain will bring goodly riches, they say
Wind will blow fun in every day.
Snow will bring peace and plenty to you
Thunder and lightning storms that brew
Bespeak God's approval on this that you do
Best of all that can come to you
A rainbow will make every wish come true.

Fashion-Wise Mrs. Fahenstock

THE TWO BEST looking women lunching in the Mayflower Lounge Wednesday were Mrs. Harry Hawes and her daughter, Mrs. William Fahnestock.

Eppes Fahnestock, daughter of the late Senator Hawes, was a great beauty in her debutante days. She still is, and today is twice as chic.

At Centerville on Maryland's Eastern Shore, the Fahnestocks live in an old Southern mansion, built in 1731. They're adding a wing to it now and have engaged as architect Thomas T. Waterman, authority on Georgian architecture, author of "Mansions of Virginia" and in a large measure responsible for the restoration of Williamsburg. With that project in progress and her half ownership in Braagaard's hat design firm, Eppes Hawes Fahnestock comes to Washington only to see her mother and her favorite dentist.

Fashion-wise Mrs. Fahnestock is tremendously enthusiastic about the new fall hats. "Something like the old cloche," she said yesterday, only younger and gayer. Not since I was in Paris, have I wanted every hat I tried on," she says of Braagaard's collection.

Her own chapeau, on her smooth dark hair, was a natural colored straw boater from which sprouted a single long stemmed rose.

The Fahnestocks will go to Canada in a month or so to visit Mrs. Fahnestock's mother, then will stop off in Newport and Easthampton. But Eppes can't be away for long. The house is about to be painted and it must be just that right shade of blue!

Story of Italy's First Lady

A POSTCARD from Westport, Conn., signed only with the initial, "F," so intrigued me that I rushed right out yesterday and did what the message suggested.

On the card was printed: "Have you read my story on the last page of Look Magazine June 22? I am very interested to have your comments. Please let me know in care of Look, 511 Fifth ave., New York. This last page in Look is my first page in print!"

The mystery was solved! The author is Francesca Braggiotti Lodge, Italian born wife of Representative John Davis Lodge. The story, "First Lady of Italy," was an interview by Mrs. Lodge with Donna Francesca de Gasperi, wife of the Premier of Italy.

The story of Signora de Gasperi is one of humanitarianism, sacrifice and courage. In her simple, sparsely furnished home she works unendingly for the people of Italy. Her desk is piled high with letters—requests for jobs, food, medicines. Every plea is answered if it's humanly possible. Many times Signora de Gasperi has her own or one of her four daughters' belongings sent in response to an urgent request.

Signora de Gasperi saw her husband, an outspoken democrat, imprisoned several times during Mussolini's regime. With the liberation of Italy the de Gasperis are gay again but there's much work to be done and they're going to do it together.

New England Recipes

grease until brown. Put in top of double boiler with the clams, water and flour, and let cook 2 hours. Strain and add milk, cream, and pepper and salt to taste. Serve hot.

A PUDDING made by cooking meal with milk and molasses early became a standby in the New England cuisine. Today, Indian Pudding is still a popular dessert and the one Senator Saltonstall likes best.

INDIAN PUDDING

4½ cups milk
5 tablespoons yellow corn meal
2/3 cup molasses
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Scald 4 cups milk in double boiler, add corn meal and cook 20 minutes. Add molasses, ginger, salt, and butter to corn meal mixture. Put in baking dish. Pour scant ½ cup milk over pudding. Bake in slow oven 3 or 4 hours.

ALTHOUGH it's reported that the Pilgrims were able to catch very few codfish during their early days on the bleak New England shores, their descendants have made this fish such a staple diet that the cod is practically a symbol of that part of the country. A favorite way of serving it is in the form of Codfish Balls. Here is Mrs. Saltonstall's recipe for them:

CODFISH BALLS

2 cups shredded salt codfish
2 cups potatoes, cut fine
1 egg beaten
1 teaspoon melted butter

Bring codfish to boil. Add potato and boil until potato is thoroughly cooked and soft. Strain every bit of water out and shake a little pepper on the fish and potatoes. Mash until creamy. Add beaten egg and melted butter. Have panful of hot fat ready. Drop small ball of mixture in to test. (It will float to top if light.) If fat is good and hot, drop fish in by tablespoons, not too many at a time. When brown, take out into strainer which has a piece of brown paper in bottom to absorb extra fat.

Women with fastidious tastes still prefer pure silk for lingerie, since that fabric is attractive, washes well, and is long lasting. It remains the most expensive of fabrics and prices vary according to whether or not the garment is handmade, and the quality and workmanship of the lace trim. Nylon lingerie is fast becoming popular, since that fabric, along with being extremely durable, launders beautifully and dries in a few hours. Combinations of nylon and rayon are also good. Rayon is, of course, the most widely accepted material for low priced lingerie.

Although it is possible to buy reliable garments for as low as $2.98, if you are interesterd in a pretty, long lasting piece of lingerie you will probably have to pay at least $5.95 to $6.95.

ATTENTION P. H. M.: If you wish to have your blankets mothproofed, rather than treating them at home, you'll be interested in knowing that there is a concern in this area which does mothproofing that is guaranteed forever. The firm is operated by a local man who perfected his own mothproofing formula four years ago. His claim that the mothproofing qualities last for the life of the material treated is backed up by an insurance policy with Lloyds of London. If clothes moths or carpet beetles damage your woolens at any time after treatment, you can bring them back to him to collect the cash value of the garment or have it repaired free of charge. He is in a position to do this since he operates two reweaving shops, but he has never had a claim of moth damage since he started giving this service. The treatment does not shrink, discolor or damage materials in any way, according to its inventor, who has mothproofed everything from a $20,000 chinchilla coat to an African fez. The service can be obtained either at his Clarendon shop (telephone Oxford 2544) or at the one in Silver Spring (Shepherd 8100).

On the Town

THE Shoreham Terrace's two acts are winding up this week. Usually the shows are booked for two weeks, but this is the exception. The feature act is a dance team called Los Barrancos who stick close to Latin American routines. The audience was somewhat taken by surprise when the Barrancos whipped into a bit of jitterbug jump. The average person there has never come closer than a newsreel to a jitterburg.

Krupa

The Sensationalists make up the rest of the show with a roller-skating bit put on by three people who have as much nerve as they have balance. Their whole act is done on a small well-rosined floor and consists of much twirling and throwing around of each other in an apparent attempt to either shorten the life or boost the insurance premium of the soul unlucky enough to be thrown. To date they're the best this year.

Monday Pierce and Roland, sophisticates of the dance, will headline the show bill on the terrace.

THE Casino Royal's new show opened this week with Beverly Becker tapping her way to a fast start. Headlining the show under the regulars are William and Fiora D'Albrew, who do a ballroom dance routine to what might be called salon music. Senor Francisco has a juggling act that is really fun to watch. Contrary to the usual stuff he drops a bit of humor into the act with a pleasing result. Of course, Jack Jive Shafer walks away with the late show. The crowd seems to have been there often enough to learn the lyrics to the risque songs because you can see the nudging of elbows when a particular verse is about to be sung. That's loyalty.

Here's a new one. Instead of retrenching for the dull summer months as most night clubs do, the Nightingale has gone out and booked a big band. Bert Motley leads it and doubles on the comic stuff.

Gene Krupa apparently decided to make Washington and vicinity somewhat of a second home. He's due to appear near here Saturday night at a Chesapeake Beach Park.

A note on coats: Jimmy Nichols, vocalist at the Glen Echo Ballroom, was about to throw his coat over his shoulder in that conteenentaaal manner when he missed and the coat plopped neatly in the mud. Just then a lady placed a dainty foot on it before she could stop herself. Or was she feeling Elizabethan? Anyway, she said she was sorry. Jimmy picked up the begrimed coat unangered by the whole incident. You're a better man than I, Gunga Jim.

Francesca, the seeress at the Roger Smith, has a new angle on telling the future. Instead of reading palms, tea leaves, faces, handwriting or foot prints, she tells the future by personal vibrations from the hand.

One on the Aisle—

'All My Sons' Is A Powerful Film

By Richard L. Coe

"ALL MY SONS," at the Palace, is a finely-made, adult and engrossing film. Written with integrity and acted with skill, it is a picture for the discriminating.

This is the Arthur Miller play which won the New York Drama Critics' Circle award a season ago. One of Miller's points—that it is a very wrong world which permits profits to be made from war—gives way a trifle in the struggle between greed and integrity on the basis of character, but the implication is definitely there and who is to say this is an unsound belief?

It is a crushing indictment of the contemporary screen that this is one of the year's few serious films to come out of Hollywood, yet, again, is it fair to blame this on Hollywood? At the risk of getting into The New Yorker's "Hungry Critics" parade, I'll eat one of Drew Pearson's hats if this serious, powerful film manages to squeak through more than one week at the Palace.

For "All My Sons" is an angry, powerful picture, especially when compared with the ineffable bilge one experiences in the constant diet of "entertainment." I think it's a better film than it was a play, for, by carefully avoiding any criticism that it attacks a "system," it has based its action on characters, the weaknesses and foibles that make the human soul so fascinating, merely another word for "entertaining."

A Story of Characters

In the course of a few days, Script Writer Chester Erskine shows us the collapse of several characters and their relationship with others. As the story unreels we watch the carefully nurtured, false world of Edward G. Robinson and Mady Christians tumble.

Robinson is a manufacturer who raises himself from poverty to ownership of a small town's most productive plant. Miss Christians is his wife, who can see her husband realistically, yet pathetically deceive herself about her lost son. He is supposed to have been killed in the war but the mother refuses to believe he's dead.

Back from the war comes their other son, Burt Lancaster, who forces himself to believe that in a wartime scandal his father was completely innocent of allowing defective parts to get out of the factory. These parts later caused the deaths of 21 pilots; a trial ensued in which the father was acquitted but his partner was jailed.

Back to the town to visit Burt, who loves her, comes the partner's daughter. At first she believes her father was guilty; gradually, when her brother assures her otherwise, she realizes the fault was the acquitted Robinson's.

Swiftly, now, the cards collapse. By a chance remark, the dead past lives again, the mother is forced to acknowledge that her son is dead, the son is faced with his father's guilt and the father realizes at last that those who lost their lives through his greed were "all my sons."

Thanks to a fine production from Universal, this gets the forthright treatment such a story deserves. The film makes virtually none of the customary attempts to relieve its tone; "here," says the film, "is our story."

Edward G. Robinson is splendid as the hard-hitting business man who learns too late that one must live with one's soul. He is brilliantly resourceful in his shading of the character, a man among men, respected for his success, pathetic in his awakening. Mady Christians finally gets her chance at a sound, meaty role and is outstandingly good as the mother who clutches at the straws of the settled past.

As the young couple, Burt Lancaster and Louisa Horton, too, are fine. He suggests admirably the son's troubled reluctance to believe in his father's guilt and Miss Horton makes a definitely impressive screen bow as a young lady who looks like no one but herself. The supporting parts are eloquently acted and altogether Director Irving Reis and Producer Erskine have made a picture to be proud of.

"ALL MY SONS." Universal-International release produced and written for the screen by Chester Erskine from the play by Arthur Miller. Directed by Irving Reis. Photographed by Russell Metty. Music by Leith Stevens. At the Palace.

Danger—'Hazard'

Goddard Movie Offers Little, But Warner's Is Nice and Cool

NOTHING could be further from my cantering thoughts than to keep the faithful away from the Warner theater's portals, through which pass some of the darnedest people. The house is wondrously cool these warm days, the seats are soft and easy, the ushers are both politely to kindly keep my feet off them, a young lady, asked me most politely to kingly keep my feet off the furniture. At the Warner also are some newsreel shots of the convention in Philadelphia, though by the time this is immortalized in movable type I tremble to think what may have happened up there.

I regret it, but these are the total of nice things I can say about the Warner, where a movie called "Hazard," surely one of the saddest attempts to come off the Hollywood assembly line in this or any other season, is now showing. Paulette Goddard is starred, a sleepy, ineffectual man named Macdonald Carey plays opposite her, and a particularly offensive juvenile, Stanley Clements, has the role of a bellhop. Even Maxie Rosenbloom, who glories in one of those leaky larynxes and who stumbles into the film a couple of times, fails to help it.

The beautiful Paulette ("Boy, is she built!" hissed a young fellow near me. "Built is what she is, Mac," I hissed back), plays a lady who likes to gamble—she'll gamble for marbles or money, as the script says, making no attempt at originality. She gets in a jam with a big gambler and is forced to leave town. The gambler then hires a private detective, Carey, to follow her and bring her back. He brings her back all right—in a convertible, all the way from California.

You might think that putting Paulette Goddard and a healthy young Irishman in a convertible and starting them across the country would result in some fun. It doesn't, though. It's just a great bore. The film makes some effort at comedy, but I don't recall anything relieving. Goddard shoves Carey into a pond at one point, and at another there is a scene not only tiresome but downright distasteful wherein a pack of women in jail sort of walk through a brawl sequence.

Paulette is shown playing the wheel some of the time, shooting craps some of the time, and being painfully arch most of the time. She contrives to have some of her clothes elsewhere than on her frame at various junctures, but even this doesn't help much. Carey this soggy tale and I hope one Roy gets the girl at the conclusion of Chanslor, who wrote it, is satisfied. It's a pretty poor product all around.

The shorts at the Warner are a rather interesting one about the photography craze and a wholly uninteresting one about a man with a lion farm.

Still, it's cool over there.

"HAZARD." Paramount release produced by Mel Epstein. Screen play by Arthur Sheekman and Roy Chanslor from a book by Chanslor. Photographed by Daniel L. Fapp. Music by Frank Skinner. Directed by George Marshall. At the Warner.

Virginia Players in Comedy

Cross Roads Theater Opens Season With 'Parlor Story'

THE CROSS ROADS Theater, now the older of Washington's summer theaters, has openeds its twelfth season with a creditable nonprofessional production of William McCleery's three-act comedy, "Parlor Story."

McCleery's effort is on the lightweight side, but it's admirably adapted to the purpose of summer entertainment in Virginia's red barn. Under Forney Reese's direction, the amateur cast plays it with precision and effectiveness.

"Parlor Story," which had a brief New York run, is new to these parts. The title is the play's setting, the living room of a State university's professor of journalism. He longs for the job of university president, but keeps it quiet. His wife openly speaks of it and when a sorority sister, now the wife of the Governor, comes to call, sh institutes a plot that involves all manner of upper-bracket horse-trading.

In the bracket are the Governor, a State trooper with "connections," a high-pressure publisher, representatives of New York banks and a young student who's in love with in a finer, wittier comedy, "The action is continuous and it shouldn't take any brainwork for anyone to figure out how the plot comes out.

The lines are blithe and airy, with the situation of academic freedom stressed much as it was in finer, wittier comedy, "The Male Animal." But "pleasant" has been reformed Newswriter McCleery's keynote and he sticks to it with warm weather canniness.

Karl Schuon Heads Cast

The Cross Roads cast is headed by Karl Schuon, the professor, and Ann Cloward, as his wife. Their son-in-law-to-be is nicely played Byron Rash and Beatrice Blease is particularly appealing as the younger daughter.

Others in the cast include Joseph E. Gross and Margaret Morrison, as the Governor and his wife; Jane Drew, as the love-struck daughter; Jim O'Neill and Richard Vosburgh, as two State troopers, and Frank Moss as the conniving publisher. Direction and setting are more than adequate to the Cross Roader's evident purpose of offering modest entertainment to their old friends.

Performances at Bailey's Cross Roads this season will be four nights each week, Wednesdays through Saturdays, with runs of two weeks for each play. Reservations can be made by calling Woodley 5303. The next play will open Wednesday, July 7, "The Bees and the Flowers."

Cabbie Lindberg Jailed

Charles A. Lindberg—this one a cabbie—flew through a stop sign with the result that yesterday he was grounded in Rockville Jail for 80 days unless he pays $120 for three traffic convictions.

Lindberg, 23, of 905 Domer ave., Takoma Park, was convicted in Silver Spring Police Court of failing to stop at a stop sign, failing to keep to the right, and speeding.

Yes, $5,000. I've seen his paychecks... Not a bad return for an acre, is it? Stony land, too.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

You're wrong. Maryland drivers aren't safe—even in Maryland.

I'm sure I've aged 15 years in the 12 months I've been in Maryland. I never get into my car for a trip of any length that I don't almost get hit by bird-brained native drivers.

If I were Mr. Kenoipp I'd make the Maryland drivers put up a peace bond as soon as they cross the District Line.

Hazel Hutchin,
Riva, Md.

Dear Hazel:

If I don't put an end to this Maryland - District controversy pretty soon, I'm afraid the District Line will also have to put up a peace bond.

Bill.

NAMES MAKE NEWS

Several months ago, when we were still hip-deep in odd place names, Maj. Lyman D. Lynn of 316 14th st., Charlottesville, Va., sent in a few dillies from the State of Washington.

During the next few days he was busy with a special project, and didn't get to see his favorite newspaper. So he didn't notice that his contribution had been used.

"But since then," he writes, "I got a postcard from a shut-in in a veterans' hospital in Colorado. He said he had a clipping about me, and offered some postcards for sale. So I bought his postcards and got the clipping I had missed.

"Then, just a few days ago, I got a copy of a magazine published by the alumni of the first college I attended — Whitman College, at Walla Walla, Wash.

"Included in the notes about graduates was an item to the effect that my contribution had been printed in The Washington Post, and all the details.

"First Colorado, and then the State of Washington! Boy, The Washington Post is really well read, isn't it?"

I don't know, major, but they tell me the Maharaja of Punjab simply can't start his day until he's read Mary Haworth.

"Exceptionally pretty male kittens; will deliver." (Union 1421).

STREET SCENE

Our reporter for this one is David A. Lane, jr., of 828 7th st. ne.:

A Pentagon-bound Arnold bus was making the difficult turn from 12th st. nw. to Madison ave., which is very narrow.

When the turn was half completed, the bus driver found himself confronted by a passenger auto, which had been traveling along Madison ave.

Both vehicles stopped, and it was obvious that one of them would have to back up to let the other pass.

The private car was on the right side of the street, but the bus wasn't, because it was too big to make the turn in strictly legal fashion.

Both drivers waited for a few seconds, to see whether the other would yield. I made a mental bet with myself that the bus driver would win the war of nerves.

But I didn't count on the grim resolution of the driver of the private car.

He reached up to his sun visor, took down a magazine he had parked there, and placidly began to read.

Across his countenance was clearly written the message: "If necessary, I'm prepared to sit here all day."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—For the past few weeks six German broadcasters have been touring America secretly, at the invitation of the Rockefeller Foundation and the National Association of Educational Broadcasters. These Germans, who work in the American zone in Germany, have been inspecting radio stations throughout the Nation, and observing program work at such places as the University of Wisconsin and Kentucky U. They've been learning how to conduct forums and other democratic programs heretofore unknown in Germany—and how to offer to listeners, without fear, the views and programs put forth by opposition groups.

A young Hollywood comedian who was scheduled to appear in a benefit show at a large stadium, asked George Jessel for advice. "Here is the line-up of the show," he told Jessel. "Red Skelton opens the show, and then is followed by Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Jimmy Durante and Al Jolson. Then I'm supposed to come on. What do you suggest I do?" . . . "I'd suggest," Jessel advised, "that you immediately get yourself an excruciating stomach-ache which will prevent your appearance that night."

Edgar Snow, associate editor of the Sat. Eve. Post, arrived in Prague last week. He started to maneuver to get some exclusive interviews. The day after he arrived the Prague newspapers published a report by the Czech News Agency, date-lined Ottawa, announcing that the Canadian government had banned the sale of works by Pushkin, Whitman, Tolstoy and Edgar Snow's books about China on the grounds that they were revolutionary literature . . . Snow, therefore, was offered immediate exclusive interviews with the satellite foreign minister and the new President of Czechoslovakia.

Convention Democracy Diluted

By Drew Pearson

Philadelphia.—Watching the picking of a President: Delegates in convention lobbies, delegates in hotel lobbies, delegates eating hot dogs, lady delegates, gray-haired, slightly paunching delegates—marching in the aisles, carrying banners, sleepy-eyed, singing delegates, deadly serious, fighting-mad delegates, a mixture of P. T. Barnum, a boy scout jamboree and real democracy . . . Golden-voiced Congressman George Bender of Ohio, with a megaphone rolled out of the Chicago Tribune, shouting the Taft theme song in the middle of a hotel lobby . . . Senator Taft "shaking hands" with a baby elephant . . . Negroes picketing the convention hall, their signs read: "GOP Congress Killed Civil Rights Program" . . . Mrs. Bertha Baur of Illinois wearing three gold elephants in her hat . . . Governor and Mrs. Dewey strolling down Chestnut st. alone while the crowds clamor to see them at Dewey headquarters.

TAFT

Seen in the lobbies—Alf Landon of Kansas, hero of 1936, wandering about, looking lonesome . . . Herbert Hoover looking older . . . Chief Spotted Crow of Pine Ridge, S. Dak., in full regalia, taking three minutes to tell a radio audience in Sioux language: "I'm for Stassen. But I think Dewey win." . . . Democrats in windows throwing cigarette butts down on the inflated rubber elephant in front of the Bellevue-Stratford. (No wonder the elephant became deflated so often) . . . Taft rooters marching up to Stassen's neon-lit headquarters. Stassen rooters rushing out with banners to meet Taft forces head on . . . It couldn't happen any place but in America. What would Europe think? Gray-haired delegates, paunchy delegates, serious delegates, determined delegates—where else could you see women politicians on equal footing with men, the son of a former President of the United States rubbing shoulders with the son of a bootblack, the head of the Sun Oil Co. friendly with the head of the carpenters' union? . . . It's democracy, an unusual brand perhaps, uniquely American, found nowhere else in the world . . . Sure, it costs money, but it happens only once in four years . . . There's George Bender again singing: "We're Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover" . . . He's almost hoarse now . . . There's Alice Longworth sporting a big Taft button. (She claims to keep him isolationist) . . . And beauteous Mrs. Morris Cafritz, the lady who entertains so many Democrats, now vigorously applauding Governor Green as he blasts the Democrats . . . And Senator Ferguson of Michigan. He says Philadelphia is a vacation after staying up all night at Senate sessions.

Smoke-Filled Rooms

Of course there's one dilution in the democracy of these conventions. It takes such a buildup, such a publicity machine, so much money to be a candidate. The money poured into bands, uniforms, buttons and giveaways would make up the District of Columbia deficit. . . . No longer can a good man walk into public life and become a candidate — merely because he's a good man. If so, one of the best men here, Governor Warren of California, would have been in. But Warren didn't have the advance buildup . . . The road to the Presidency these days must be paved with glamor and money, to say nothing of horse trading in smoke-filled rooms . . . That's where the big blocks of delegates are auctioned off . . . It's a delegates', not a peoples' convention. And the top leaders don't hesitate to barter their big blocks of votes back and forth like so many shares of stock across the board of the Stock Exchange . . . It's a blemish on democracy, but before this convention is over part of the next Cabinet may be picked.

Whispering Campaigns

Senator Ralph Flanders, presiding at a spiritual breakfast of 200 delegates (he attends such a breakfast every week in Washington), heard Chicago Banker Nathaniel Leverone blast reported bigamy among presidential candidates.

Turning to the women delegates at the breakfast, Leverone inquired: "Do you women want a bigamist in the White House?" . . . Seldom have the private lives of candidates been so carefully scrutinized. Remarked one GOP politico: "It's better now than later. We don't want another Nan Britton incident in the White House."

Hard-Luck Taft

Poor Bob Taft. He's a little like Harry Truman — courageous, sincere, hard-working. But trouble seems to dog his heels . . . Taft got to Philadelphia after two sleepless nights in the closing days of the Senate, where he did a superhuman job. Home one morning at 7 o'clock, he left for Philadelphia at 7:30 . . . Arriving in Philadelphia simultaneously were John L. Lewis and Big Bill Hutchinson, head of the Carpenters Union, who announced to all within earshot that he had come for the express purpose of blocking Bob Taft. The Republicans, he said, could pick anyone but Taft . . . John L. Lewis came for the double purpose of blocking Taft and nominating his friend, Speaker Joe Martin . . . Taft's crowning catastrophe just as he was having his picture taken with Little Eva, the elephant, the huge Taft banner across the hotel lobby fell on his head

My Hope for You

When you are somewhat older and . . . Your dreams are more mature . . . I hope you will be wiser and . . . Your heart will be more sure . . . Because the future holds a day . . . When you are bound to find . . . That you have chosen and it is . . . Too late to change your mind . . . Real love is not a plaything, dear . . . That you can throw away . . . And instantly pick up again . . . Wherever you may stray . . . Each person has an equal right . . . To happiness on earth . . . And all the world is judged by what . . . Its promises are worth . . . And so I hope as time goes by . . . Your heart will have more sense . . . And you will not divide yourself . . . By sitting on the fence.
